Russians Cut Power, Stop Trains to West Berlin

Barrage Balloons On Corridor Also Follow Rejection of Soviet Zone Mark

Berlin (Thursday), June 24 (AP).—The Russians halted all railway traffic into the western sectors of Berlin early today. They also shut off that part of the western sector's electric power generated in the Soviet sector

[The New York Herald Tribune's Berlin correspondent said the Russians also put up three barrage balloons along the middle air corridor to the west from Berlin to Bueckeburg. With air traffic the city's last link with the west, the balloon hazard was protested by the British. The Russians said the balloons had been put up in connection with artillery practice near Magdeburg.]

Western circles viewed these moves as Soviet retaliation for the refusal of the United States, Britain and France to accept the Soviet zone mark as Berlin's only legal currency.

The Russian-licensed German News Agency said the Soviets halted all freight and passenger traffic between Berlin and the western zone railhead at Helmstedt because of a "technical disturbance." It did not explain the nature of the disturbance.

Only Half Produced There

British sources said the Soviets notified the Berlin electricity works that electric power used in the western sectors in the future will have to be produced in the west. Normally, power stations in the western sectors produce only one-half of the electricity used in those sectors.

All freight for Berlin's western sectors moves over the Helmstedt-Berlin line.

Earlier the Russians officially had threatened economic sanctions against western Berlin if the western powers refused to accept the Soviet zone mark.

The three western powers, however, yesterday voided a Russian decree making a new Soviet-stamped mark the only legal tender in Berlin and orderd issuance of the new western German

FCC Will Probe Second Mystery Call From 'Plane'

Bolling Field yesterday received another mysterious radio distress message, this one seeking "landing permission."

Convinced the signal was a "hoax," authorities immediately asked the Federal Communications Commission to investigate. An FCC spokesman said the agency would attempt to get "a fix" on the mystery set and track it down.

Earlier, Bolling Field officials called off a search for an "airplane in trouble" after "checking every possible angle."

Yesterday's message came through at 3 p. m. and Gen. B. M. Hovey, commander of the base, immediately ordered the control tower to keep in touch with the alleged pilot in order to establish his location.

During the conversation, they revealed, the "pilot" asked:

"How did you find the fellow who went into the river?"

Red Satellites Hold Parley On Germany

By Larry Allen

Warsaw, June 23 (AP).—Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov flew to Warsaw today for a hush-hush conference with representatives of seven eastern European satellites. Authoritative reports said they are considering creation of a separate east German state.

(The Moscow Radio, heard in London, said the conference would discuss the decisions of the recent six-nation London conference which drafted a plan for eventual self-government for the three western occupation zones of Germany. The participating nations were the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.)

Molotov gave the only official hint of what he and the foreign ministers of Hungary, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Bulgaria, Albania and Poland will discuss.

When he arrived at Okecie Airport from Moscow, he spoke of the necessity for security against "new German imperialist aggression." He spoke of the brotherhood between the Slavic nations.

Molotov's brief remarks were generally construed as indicating the conferees will devote their major talks to German problems.

There were many reports tonight that out of the parley may evolve an announcement that Russia favors setting up an east German state as an answer to the western Allies proposed federalized western Germany.

(The meeting at Warsaw could reasonably have been expected, United States Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett said at Washington yesterday. He said the Communist nations naturally would want to talk things over since Con-

19 Others Injured as Gas Explosion Wrecks Department Store

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Winchester, Va., June 23.—One man was fatally injured and 19 other persons were hurt when a gas explosion wrecked the three-story Raylass Department Store in the center of the shopping district today.

Lawrence Burns, 23, assistant manager of the store, died tonight of burns. He was in the basement of the store when the blast shattered the building.

Employes of the store and early morning shoppers were among those injured.

The blast was similar to the one that leveled a beauty parlor, killed 11 and injured more than 20 persons nearly a year ago at Harrisonburg, Va., 68 miles away, according to State Fire Marshal A. J. Bell.

The explosion occurred at the very time the community was taking safety measures to prevent a repetition of the Harrisonburg tragedy, it was disclosed by City Manager S. L. Grant.

Only yesterday, work crews of Consumer Utilities Co., which supplies the city with gas, had ripped out the curbing in front of the blasted building and installed two cutoffs into unused feeder gas lines.

The blast rocked the 100 block of North Loudoun st., the city's main thoroughfare, shortly after 10 a. m. Believed to have been set off in the basement, it blew up the first floor, blew out the brick front and rear walls and tore out the roof in the rear.

The shock and the flying debris smashed show windows of stores adjacent to the department store—located in the middle of the block—and across the street.

Police later reported that the side walls of the building, at first

D. C. Guard Moves to Top Quota Limit

The District National Guard, swamped by recruits seeking draft exemption, moved last night to get authority to take in more men than its quota permits.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, local Guard commander, made it clear he will continue recruiting activities to build his units despite limitations on personnel set by current appropriations.

Except for Army reserve units, every organized reserve group in Washington — National Guard, Navy and Marines—was either full or swelled to near-capacity.

Whether membership in Army active reserves would exempt the eligible 19-to-25-year-olds from the draft still remained unanswered at the Pentagon. But recruiting officers for reserves in other branches felt that their units came properly under the draft bill's deferment of those youngsters who are enrolled in an organized reserve before President Truman signs the bill.

The White House indicated yesterday that the bill would go unsigned for another day or two. But when the President signs it, it will then be too late to gain exemption from the draft by joining an active reserve unit.

The District National Guard is authorized a strength of 4031 men, Cox said, but its actual quota, set by the National Guard Bureau, is 2633. With the more than 500 recruits it jammed in since Monday morning, the guard yesterday had more than 2500 members.

But the air reserve unit had only about 650 of this total. Its quota is 1020. Thus, it appeared that the ground units had overstepped their quota of some 1600 by about 250 men.

Cox explained that he was operating on the over-all quota of 2633, which would mean the Guard as a whole was still short by about 150. Nonetheless, Col. Laidler B. Mackall, commanding the air units, said he would go ahead to reach his authorized strength of 1020.

Cox, determined to seize this golden opportunity to strengthen the Guard, sent a request to the Coal Dispute Settlement Seen Near

Fact-Finding Board Asks for More Time For Negotiations On Mine Contract

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A settlement of the dispute between the Nation's 400,000 soft coal miners and the mine operators was reported near last night.

After a day and night of negotiations the miners and operators met late yesterday with the three members of the presidential fact-finding board, headed by Chairman David E. Cole.

After the meeting, Cole announced the board was asking the White House for an extension of time to continue negotiations. The order setting up the board required that it report its recommendations last night. Cole asked to extend that time until tonight.

More Time Indicated

At the White House it was stated that the board would be given more time, if needed, to work out a peaceful settlement.

In announcing his request for an additional 24 hours, Cole said his board does not know any details of yesterday's negotiations between the workers and operators. He added that Lewis and the mine owners had advised him they were making "considerable progress" toward writing a 1948 contract.

Cole added that he saw a good chance that John L. Lewis and the operators would agree by that time either on:

1. A new contract.
2. A basis for continuing negotiations for a new contract without a stoppage of work when the present contract expires June 30.

Industry sources indicated that a wage increase was under consideration. This, it was understood, would follow approximately the pattern set in the automobile industry by General Motors Corp., which granted union workers an 11-cent wage increase based on the present cost of living.

Support of Court Orders

Lewis went into yesterday's session with the support of two orders from Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough:

1. Goldsborough, who in recent months has twice heavily fined Lewis for violation of court orders, Tuesday upheld Lewis' demand that payment of $100-a-month pensions to retired members of the United Mine Workers be started at once. Ezra Van Horn, operators' representative on the pension board, had sought to restrain payment of the pensions that had been voted by Lewis and Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), third member of the pension board.

2. Yesterday Goldsborough dissolved a court order which had forbidden the UMW to strike over the pension issue while it was before the court.

The two orders gave Lewis the right to press for his demand that pension payments be started before a new contract is discussed.

Irgun Zvai Leumi Orders Troops To Cease Fire

Tel Aviv (Thursday), June 24 (NYHT).—Irgun Zvai Leumi headquarters ordered its rebellious troops to cease fire today, and Tel Aviv's fratricidal conflict ground to an uneasy halt with government forces in control of nearly all of the Jewish capital city.

There were occasional exchanges of fire in Tel Aviv but government armored cars patrolled main thoroughfares without hindrance and hundreds of uprooted civilians returned to their homes along the coast.

Irgun forces were withdrawn into a heavily-guarded compound in the southeast section of Tel Aviv adjoining the Manshieh quarter of Jaffa. Armored cars and machine guns guarded every entrance and army of Israel troops made no effort to storm the barricades.

Dewey, Taft, Warren, Stassen Names Put in Nomination

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 24.—Amid the roaring din of their supporters' demonstrations, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Gov. Earl Warren of California and former Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota early today had been offered to the Republican National Convention as the party's 1948 standard-bearer.

Boos mingled with cheers as Dewey's name was presented to the delegates, but a wild 32-minute demonstration shook the hall after he had been formally put in nomination.

A similarly noisy display lasting 36 minutes accompanied the naming of Taft. Warren's acclaim lasted for 21 minutes.

Still to be offered for consideration of this victory-hungry convention were Senator Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, Gen. Douglas MacArthur of Wisconsin and perhaps others.

The short anti-Dewey demonstration, mostly in the galleries, broke as Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania clambered to the platform in this bulging auditorium to urge Dewey as the man.

Permanent Chairman Joseph W. Martin was forced twice to use his gavel. He admonished spectators in the galleries, as he often has done in the House, that they were "guests" of the house—this time the Republican convention.

The boos in the galleries turned to cheers on the floor as Senator Martin, the man who started the favorite-son break to Dewey when he withdrew his own favorite-son candidacy, got on with his speech.

And the cheers turned to thunderous applause and a mammoth parade formed when Martin told the hall it was "the greatest honor of my life" to present the name of "tried, tested and true" Governor Dewey.

New York started the parade through the narrow aisles with bobbing placards bearing Dewey's portrait and signs blazoning "Win With Dewey," "Clean Up With Dewey."

The band struck up and Pennsylvania banners joined the parade.

The parade lengthened as Alabama, Maryland, Oregon, Washington, Colorado, North Carolina, Idaho and other Dewey standards fell into line. The band swung into "Sidewalks of New York" and

Home Rule Approved in GOP Platform

Suffrage Plank Takes Place for First Time In Republican Program

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—District home rule today was anchored firmly in the Republican Party's national program.

The call for self-government for residents of the Nation's Capital rode with the GOP campaign platform recommended by the committee headed by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.), to unopposed approval by the Republican Convention. Approval came on a voice vote in this morning's session.

Wording of Plank

It was the first time a District suffrage plank had taken its place in the official platform of the Republican Party.

The District plank puts the GOP on record this way:

"We favor self-government for the residents of the Nation's Capital."

Leaders of this year's House drive for passage of the bill for District reorganization and home rule promptly hailed the self-government plank as a big boost for their legislation.

Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), chairman of this year's House District Committee and leader of the House fight for passage of the home-rule bill, said he was greatly pleased with the platform declaration.

Auchincloss Pleased

Dirksen said he was glad to see that it emphasized the word "residents." This referred to the recommendation in the home-rule bill that would have made one-year residence in the District a basic qualification for voting for the proposed city council and elected school board for the District.

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), head of the House subcommittee that developed and sponsored the home-rule bill, said the self-government plank in the platform had strengthened chances

Stassen Busy Trying to Halt Dewey Boom

Headquarters Parleys Almost Continuous; Staff Is Optimistic

By J. R. Wiggins

Philadelphia, June 23.—Governor Harold E. Stassen struggled manfully today to keep his own delegates nailed down and to build a Dewey bandwagon - blocking coalition.

Stassen headquarters were packed with bustling politicos until 4 a. m. today and rounds of conferences were resumed before 9 a. m.

Optimism was the official attitude and atmosphere of candidate and staff. In spite of 24 hours of effort, however, Stassen had yet to disclose either the program or the candidate on which Governor Dewey's rivals will unite.

"Steps" Planned

He emerged after each conference to assert (1) the Martin shift to Dewey is a "Dewey-Grundy" deal; (2) it would deprive the delegates to the convention of their right to pick a candidate; (3) resentment at the Martin withdrawal without a caucus is costing Dewey support; (4) Stassen still is a candidate for first place; (5) steps that will assure a convention free choice have been planned.

Late Tuesday night Taft and Stassen held their first serious conference. Governor Duff of Pennsylvania joined them in their discussion. The conference was arranged after a comedy of errors, credit for which seems to be evenly distributed among aides of both candidates. Stassen got a preliminary message to stand by for a call from Taft—through an intermediary. He "stood by" for hours. The call finally reached him—delayed for the incredible reason that someone had forgotten his private telephone number.

News that the conference had been held came to newsmen when Stassen came back to the Warwick at 11 o'clock. He reported the meeting had been held. He was asked if this meant that a "Taft-Stassen" ticket was a "possibility." He said it wasn't. This impromptu

Philadelphia, June 23.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York is at the threshold of victory in his fight for the Republican presidential nomination.

He made big gains today when the favorite sons of New Jersey and Indiana came out for him.

The fierce contest for the 1948 nomination will be settled by ballots tomorrow but unless his rivals develop undemonstrated and unforeseen power they will be unable to stop the New York Governor.

A coalition of his foes, nonetheless, is still in the fight, and has not despaired of heading him off.

The anti-Dewey coalition met this evening in the apartment of John D. M. Hamilton, GOP national chairman in the Alf Landon campaign of 1936, now a political ally of Joseph N. (Sun Oil) Pew.

Harold E. Stassen, one of those present, said afterward that a survey had shown that a majority of the convention delegates still were lined up against Governor Dewey.

Asked how he and Senator Robert A. Taft and the other anti-Dewey people expected to stop the New Yorker, Stassen became mysterious and said he preferred to let developments unfold on the convention floor.

Dewey was far out in front, yet even his supporters admitted that he was shy of the 548 needed to capture the nomination. They put it this way—"close but not in."

But if that was true, it was also true that his rivals had not yet demonstrated that they would be able to halt his fast-moving bandwagon.

Both sides had something to

2 Planes Collide, Fall in Detroit; Set Homes Afire

Detroit, June 23 (AP).—Two Navy planes, flying in a seven-ship formation, crashed and burned today after colliding over the heavily populated East Side of Detroit.

The flaming wreckage set fire to four houses and a tool shop, but scores of residents fled to safety.

The two pilots of the single-seater planes died in the crash, and one tool shop employe was slightly injured when struck by flaming debris.

Excommunication Threatened

Bishop Tells Catholic Girls To Stay Out of Beauty Shows

Wheeling, W. Va., June 23 (AP).—Bishop John J. Swint announced today he would excommunicate any Catholic girl of the Wheeling Diocese who takes part in a beauty contest.

He called modern beauty pageants "totally pagan" and "absolutely immoral."

The bishop made his statement in confirming reports he had told a Catholic girl to withdraw from a contest here or be expelled from the church.

Protesting what he called the "indecent exposure" of girls' bodies before the public, he told reporters:

"How any girl can submit herself to that ordeal is beyond me."

"If nakedness were eliminated" from beauty contests," he said, "the whole thing would fall to pieces."

Miss Gertrude Bedway of Wheeling had asked that her name be withdrawn from the list of entrants of a contest set for next Monday night. She said she dropped out because of the bishop's stand.

Seven girls were entered in the contest Monday night. It was understood three of them are Catholics, but no others have announced their withdrawal.

Miss Bedway is a graduate of the Northeastern Conservatory of Music.

No Parades for Losers

Dejection Will Cover Camps Of Several Candidates Soon

By Alexander F. Jones
Post Reporter

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—Within a few hours the Republican Party will have picked its 1948 standard-bearer.

The victorious candidate—probably Gov. Thomas E. Dewey—will address this convention amid scenes of wild tumult, blaring bands, parades, the glare of movie and television lights.

His smiling wife, her arms full of roses, will be interviewed, photographed, televised. Every move of the entire family will immediately become hot news.

But what about the losers?

There is nothing deader than a defeated candidate's headquarters the minute the verdict is announced. The confident slogans and banners that bedeck the place are themselves a reproach. All the gay volunteer workers are gone. The tables and floor are littered with meaningless literature. The paid workers moodily brood about where they are going to get a job. Nothing remains but the inevitable deficit.

No one knows the sting of defeat better than Governor Dewey. If this convention nominates him, he will undoubtedly pause in his

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Grundy, Reported Behind Dewey Deal, Is Tariff Lobbyist

Who is this man . . . Joseph Ridgway Grundy . . . who reportedly made a "deal" with the Dewey forces that swung most of the Pennsylvania delegation into line behind the New York Governnor?

He is a former United States Senator, probably the most potent Republican in Pennsylvania and his political life has been dedicated to a high protective tariff and low taxes on American industry.

He lobbied in Washington for the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act. This act came to be known as the "Grundy Tariff" as a result of Senate lobby investigations in 1929 in which Grundy was one of the chief targets.

Grundy fought openly for high tariffs on the Hill. In 1917, he wrote, "Honest lobbying is the inalienable right of every American citizen."

JOSEPH GRUNDY
Potent Pennsylvania Politico

Calvin Coolidge, he was a frequent visitor at the White House for consultation on tariff policy.

64 Years in Politics

Grundy's stanch defense of high tariffs was inherited directly from his father, William H. Grundy, who started the woolen firm which his son later built into one of the largest in the country.

Now 85, Grundy has been active in Republican affairs in Pennsylvania since the age of 21. He was a stanch ally of the late Senator Boise Penrose. He succeeded Penrose as Republican boss of Pennsylvania after the latter's death in 1921.

A multimillionaire, Grundy has twice held political office. He was appointed Senator from Pennsylvania for two years in 1929 and 1930 after the Senate refused to seat William S. Vare because of allegedly excessive primary campaign expenditures.

He has also served as councilman in Bristol, Pa., the center of his business interests. Grundy, a lifelong bachelor, lives in Bristol.

His substantial contributions to party war chests have given him a powerful voice in GOP affairs. He is said to have raised $700,000 for the Coolidge campaign and almost as much for the Hoover campaign.

This fund-raising ability almost kept Grundy from his Senate seat. After the Senate's refusal to seat Vare, and Grundy's appointment, a resolution was introduced in the Senate to bar Grundy on the same grounds as Vare, but it was defeated. Grundy tried to retain his Senate seat but lost out in the Republican primary of 1930.

Swung Votes to Harding

Grundy showed his political muscles best in the 1920 Republican campaign. He clashed with Senator William E. Crow, chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation at the GOP convention, and won. Grundy swung the Pennsylvania votes to Harding.

In the Senate lobby investigation of 1929, Grundy bluntly asserted some Southern and Western States were backward and should take a back seat on national revenue legislation.

He told the Senate committee he would exclude Arkansas and Idaho from a voice in tariff legislation.

"I'd hate to tell what I would do to Wisconsin," he added.

He also listed Arizona, South Dakota and Mississippi as "backward" States. Other States criticized by Grundy were Georgia, Louisiana, Nebraska, Kansas, South Carolina.

When pressed to state his views on the constitutional provision that each State is entitled to two Senators, Grundy finally said it was "unfortunate."

Criticized Hoover

So strong has Grundy felt on the tariff subject that when President-elect Hoover decided to take a vacation in South America before his inauguration instead of going to work immediately on a tariff bill, Grundy said bitterly:

"Our President-elect has gone to South America on other kinds of business. My concern is not lessened at all by the knowledge the President-elect, while he is a very fine fellow, has never had any legislative experience.

"He never ran for office before. He never ran for even the office of dog catcher. He doesn't know anything at all from experience what legislation means. His mind runs on many other subjects than economic subjects."

Pennsylvania has long known Grundy as a champion of manufacturers' interests: In the 80s he helped form the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association which lobbied against and defeated a proposed tax on manufactures.—Jack K. Burness.

Two More Favorite Sons Throw Support to Dewey

crow about during the day, with the score coming out like this:

Governor Dewey took two more favorite sons into his camp—Representative Charles A. Halleck of Indiana and Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey.

The entire Indiana delegation of 29, including Halleck, voted to support Dewey on the first ballot. The New Yorker was certain to get most of the delegates in the end, anyway, but today's action meant that he had the whole delegation nailed down from the outset.

It was believed that Governor Driscoll could swing at least 25 of the 35 New Jersey delegates to Dewey on the second ballot. It was agreed that the delegation would give Driscoll a complimentary vote on the first.

The anti-Dewey people had their chance to cheer when Gov. Dwight Green, another favorite son, announced that his delegation would vote for Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio on the second ballot.

It was believed Green could take 40 of the 56 delegates of Illinois into the Taft column.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, who had been regarded as a formidable compromise candidate, lost strength late this evening at a caucus of the Pennsylvania delegation.

Gov. James E. Duff, a bitter foe of Governor Dewey, swung from Vandenberg to Taft in advance of the Pennsylvania caucus.

Dewey, 41; Taft, 27; Stassen, 2; Vandenberg, 2; Pass, 3.

The anti-Dewey people, it was clear, were having great difficulty in settling on one man to slug it out with the New York Governor. Stassen, his friends say, would never go for Taft and Taft was no more enthusiastic about Stassen.

Dewey Remains at Hotel

Governor Dewey was not in Municipal Auditorium tonight. He remained in his suite at the Bellevue Stratford, and followed the proceedings by radio. Thus he not only heard the cheers when his name was mentioned, but also the boos.

Most of the other principals also were in town.

Stassen said that he had no plans to meet tonight with Senator Taft, Gov. Kim Sigler of Michigan, Governor Duff and the other anti-Dewey leaders. He added, however, that he was not ruling out a meeting.

Senator James P. Kem of Missouri, who came out for Dewey earlier in the day, marched with the other delegates from the Show Me State in tonight's demonstration for the New Yorker.

It had been reported that Senator Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts had moved into the Dewey camp. He may before long, but tonight he remained in his chair during the whoop-de-de for the New York Governor.

Lodge Sees Deadlock

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., of Massachusetts said a deadlock seemed likely among the so-called "front runners." He therefore asked the delegates to rally behind Senator Vandenberg.

"The real danger is," he said, "that out of a smoke-filled room will come a compromise candidate who could never command the long-range and broadly-based confidence so necessary to our country at this time."

On the other hand, the Bay State's Gov. Robert F. Bradford threw his support to Dewey.

Governor Dewey's campaign managers have scoffed at all the talk about a deadlock. If Dewey himself feels the way they talk, then he already has his acceptance speech ready and is prepared to move into the hall tomorrow to be acclaimed.

Md. Delegation Holds Discussion Of Voting Rules

Philadelphia, June 23 (AP).—Maryland delegates to the Republican convention met today, but no effort was made to poll the members on their first-ballot presidential choice.

The session, held at State headquarters at the Penn-Sheraton, was devoted to a discussion of voting rules.

Maryland has 16 votes in the convention. A majority are expected to go to Governor Dewey of New York, with the others scattered among former Gov. Stassen of Minnesota, Senator Taft (R., Ohio) and Representative Martin (R., Mass.).

GOP Clubs to Show Convention in Video

An open-to-the-public television show of the Republican National Convention will be held under sponsorship of the District of Columbia Young Republican Club from 3 p. m. to midnight today in the Queen Elizabeth room of the Raleigh Hotel.

Stu Magee, chairman, said the showing was arranged "to give persons unable to get to Philadelphia a chance to watch the proceedings."

GOP Platform Is Approved By Convention

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—The shortest GOP platform ever written, with the strongest international planks, was overwhelmingly adopted today by the Republican Convention.

Approval by a thundering chorus of "Ayes" and no audible "Noes" followed applause-studded reading of the 2000-word party stand by Resolutions Chairman Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (Mass.)

Isolationist elements, who had grumbled over the prudent-aid-to-a-"free-world" Vandenberg planks, dropped their differences and no minority report was presented.

Lodge told the convention the sharp debate within the resolutions committee finally resolved in "a document that makes sense" during Tuesday's early morning hours.

"A people who can do that is well qualified for self-government," said Lodge. "Is there any other country where this kind of thing happens?"

Red Press Calls GOP Militant Imperialists

Moscow, June 23 (NYHT).—The Soviet press, in reporting the Republican National Convention, said today that speakers there were flaunting statements of "militant imperialism" and a program for destroying the social and labor reforms achieved by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

To the Tass special correspondent covering the convention, Gov. Dwight Green's entire speech "sounded like a manifesto of militant imperialism."

National Chairman B. Carroll Reece was quoted as saying that if the Republicans win power they "will try to destroy the labor and other reforms which the American people secured during the Roosevelt Administration.

Halleck Gaining For No. 2 Choice

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 23.—Representative Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, House majority leader and Hoosier favorite son, today moved well up in the running for the Republican vice presidential nomination on a Dewey ticket.

In fact, Indiana threw Halleck's hat in the ring for the No. 2 spot when it caucused late today. What it did was withdraw the name of its favorite son from first place running, and pledge all its votes to Dewey on the first ballot.

Since Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, when and if he is nominated, will choose his own running mate, Indiana's action was a clear bid for their man for second spot.

Governor Dewey may have other ideas, but so far he hasn't disclosed them. In talks with friendly delegates he is known to have asked what they thought about four men: Halleck, Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois, Gov. Earl Warren of California, and surprisingly enough, Senator John Bricker of Ohio.

Publicly he has said that he will run with anyone the convention nominates for Vice President.

Until today, Governor Green had led in most vice presidential betting. Reasoning was Governor Dewey needed Green's Illinois delegation to cinch a second or third ballot victory, and Green could have the second place nomination in return.

Green upset the cards when he announced instead that his Illinois delegation will vote for Taft on the second ballot after casting a token first ballot vote for the Illinois Governor himself.

Green swung to Taft after Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor of the Chicago Tribune, was said to have vehemently objected to a Dewey-Green line-up. Dewey forces still claim strength in the Illinois delegation, however. Representative Everett Dirksen (Ill.) conferred with Dewey twice during the day and there was even some Dirksen second place talk.

Dewey's personal preference for a 1948 running mate is believed to be California's Governor Warren, whose own delegation today again stuck together as a unit for Warren for the first position.

In 1944, Governor Warren flatly turned down a Dewey offer of second place on his ticket. Since then, publicly and privately, Warren has often said he would not accept a vice presidential nomination. His friends said that as a lawyer, he would prefer the Attorney General's post if he ever went to Washington. It is known that many persons close to him are now trying to persuade him to run with Dewey.

The name of Governor Bricker, Dewey's 1944 running mate, strangely keeps popping up despite the fact that he is placing Senator Robert A. Taft's name in nomination for the Presidency, and was the leading Taft delegate in the Ohio primaries.

Picture Can Change

The whole vice presidential line-up could change in a twinkling if the stop-Dewey candidates actually hold the New York Governor on the five-yard line. But right now the stop-Dewey people aren't talking Vice Presidents—they are trying desperately to agree on a first choice they all can support.

The not-so-surprising action of the Indiana delegation in pledging their full 29 delegates to Dewey on the first ballot followed a conference between Halleck and the New York Governor earlier in the day.

Halleck declined to say whether he asked or got any vice presidential commitment, but certainly the Indiana caucus behaved as though he did.

The Hoosiers locked the doors and conferred for 90 minutes. When they came out, Halleck dictated a statement to reporters that read very much like the one Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania issued when he started the favorite-son parade to Dewey Tuesday.

Returning a Favor

Halleck said he would always cherish the favorite-son honor conferred on him but he and the delegation had just canvassed the convention outlook.

"We have concluded," he said, "that in the interest of clarification and expeditious nomination of our party's candidate for President . . . it will be well not to present my name for the nomination.

"Indiana's 29 votes will be cast for Governor Dewey on the first ballot."

It was Halleck's first formal bid for Vice President if you looked at it that way, but in a sense he was returning a favor. When he announced for House majority leader last year, against Taft's campaign manager, Representative Clarence Brown, it was Dewey who came out for Halleck.

Cabbies Disgusted

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 23.—Nothing that has happened here so far has left anyone speechless. Western Union wires have handled 2,493,000 words in the first two days of the Republican Convention. They moved only 2,620,000 in the 1940 conclave and 2,550,500 in the 1944 meeting.

Cab drivers are disgusted with the convention. They say delegates ride out to the Convention Hall in the morning and back at night. Rest of the time they mill around lobbies and headquarters and jam Philadelphia's downtown streets.

Apocryphal tale of Dewey headquarters: Dewey won't wear pancake makeup for television. His stubble shows through the lights like a full beard. Tiny tot visitor watching television screen on Dewey interview with Margaret McBride is supposed to have exclaimed: "Look mummy! Abraham Lincoln!"

Governor Green is the televisors' hero. He got sun-tanned especially for the convention. His television visage is the industry's ideal. He acquired it under a sun lamp but it looks like its right off the desert.

The informal bourse on which delegates and tickets have hitherto been exchanged at par reported a new relationship today. As the balloting draws closer, delegates now have grown to be worth more than seats.

There is no refuge from the "big voice" of this convention. Those who have carted their auditory apparatus out of the range of the convention amplifiers now find their ears assailed by sound trucks screaming out the several messages of the rival candidates. Stassen's truck is the loudest. It stopped outside the Bellevue-Stratford, blaring its message. An annoyed Deweyite observed:

"The Supreme Court says you can't stop sound trucks — but Dewey will stop that one, anyway."

Dewey's sons, Thomas E. jr., 15, and John, 12, arrived today by train, escorted by a State trooper. Thomas was delayed in Albany to take the New York regents examinations. They were whisked up an elevator to Governor Dewey's suite at 808 Bellevue Stratford. Tom jr., won't know how his examinations turned out for another month. His father will find out right away if he flunks.

Senate and House employes who are second-level big shots during congressional sessions find themselves scrambling for convention seats in Philadelphia. Harried committee clerks who spend working days doing favors for constituents are having a hard time finding some one to do favors for them.

The Brooklyn Bums symphony orchestra—an aggregation of fans who make music on the bums' home grounds on weekend night games—are here serenading Tom Dewey. They wear great Dewey buttons and their own badges reading "Our 1947 Bums."

Home Rule in GOP Platform

for favorable home-rule action by Congress next year.

"I'm very pleased," said Auchincloss. "The plank has given those of us who are interested in home rule much encouragement to renew the fight for justice for the people of Washington."

Auchincloss saw in the plank a direct indorsement of the principles of his home-rule bill.

Representative John J. Allen, jr., (R., Calif.), a member of the Auchincloss committee, said "I am very pleased to see the self-government section go into the platform. I think it assures the friendly consideration of home rule in the next session.

"Now that District self-government is in the national policy of the Republican Party, it's a favorable omen for home rule and an appreciated compliment to the work of the committee of which I was a member."

Auchincloss had earlier announced that if elected he will promptly introduce a home-rule bill and seek early House passage for it in the new Congress.

McGrath Hits GOP As Still Party of Isolationism

Philadelphia, June 23 (AP).—Senator J. Howard McGrath, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said today he thinks the Republican Party still is committed to isolationism.

Commenting on a speech made last night by House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., at the Republican National Convention, McGrath said in a statement:

"Speaker Martin, who helped engineer the gutting of the Reciprocal Trade Act, and who aided and abetted the abortive effort of isolationists in the House of Representatives to destroy the European Recovery Program by slashing its appropriations, cannot pose as a strong defender of a broad international policy."

"Once more," he said, "the Republican Party stands committed to isolationism."

Sen. Taft in Desperate Effort To Get 'Stop Dewey' Coalition

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 23.—Battling with bulldog tenacity, Senator Robert A. Taft today struggled desperately to form a coalition powerful enough to wrest the GOP presidential nomination from the reaching hands of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

By a late hour today, however, it was clear the coalition had not yet jelled.

Gov. Earl Warren of California, who is in acknowledged control of the 53 votes of the Golden State, ignored an invitation to attend an afternoon session of the coalition backers.

His absence was regarded as significant, despite the fact that Taft told an afternoon press conference it didn't matter because California would hold to Warren anyway and not "fall for the Dewey blitz."

Taft held a morning conference with presidential aspirant Harold E. Stassen and Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, an ardent Vandenberg supporter.

Later the Ohio Senator called a press conference to announce that a second conference would be held in the afternoon.

Later Taft told reporters that Gov. Kim Sigler of Michigan and Harold Mitchell, powerful State chairmen of the Connecticut delegation, were present at this second gathering.

Warren, he said, did not attend.

There was some uncertainty, he indicated, about whether or not Warren had received the invitation.

"We tried to telephone him," Taft said.

Taft said no definite plan of action had been agreed upon at either conference.

The only thing the conference had agreed upon, Taft said, was that their canvass of the situation showed Dewey did not have sufficient votes to win.

He added that a review of voting strength in all the State delegations convinced the conferees that Dewey's claims to the nomination were nowhere near justified.

And, said Taft, Dewey's "blitz" tactics have aroused much resentment against the New York Governor.

Can the so-called Dewey blitz be stopped unless several contenders unite on a single strong candidate? Taft was asked.

"The Dewey blitz is already stopped," Taft snapped.

Early in the day Taft announced that one of his seconders when his name is placed in nomination would be a delegate from New York.

In some quarters here the "raid" on Dewey's presumably solid New York delegation was believed to have precipitated the declaration of support for Dewey from Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania.

Taft's campaign manager, Representative Clarence Brown of Ohio, was asked if that New York delegate was Pepper Winn of the Bronx. Brown said he did not know his name.

Brown slashed out angrily at an announcement that New Jersey's Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll had declared for Dewey. Driscoll had told reporters after a New Jersey State delegation caucus of his 35-vote delegation that he would support Dewey.

On the first roll call, Driscoll said, the delegation will stay with him as a favorite son candidate, and then will be released.

Brown said he had been informed "on the very highest level within the New Jersey delegation," that Driscoll had "never made any such statement."

The Taft campaign manager said the caucus had decided to stay with Driscoll for three ballots before going elsewhere.

Brown refused to identify his "highest level source." And when the delegation does move, he added, it will not be for Dewey but for Taft.

Taft expressed great gratification over the support thrown to him today by Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois. This gives another 40 or 50 votes to Taft, his supporters claim.

Dewey will reach his peak strength early, Taft predicted.

After that, the Ohio Senator said, Dewey's votes will drop off, while for an unestimated number of ballots Taft will climb until, he predicted, he would win the nomination.

Facing the crowded press conference on a large green sofa were Mrs. Taft and three of their four sons.

Mrs. Taft declared herself very optimistic over the outcome of the balloting.

Losing Candidates to Get No Parades

keen enjoyment of his triumph and think back to the heartbreaking defeats he suffered in 1940 and 1944.

In 1940 Dewey started off with 360 votes on the first ballot, it was his high point, for he lost on each succeeding ballot as the Willkie tidal wave got under way. Dewey was contemptuously referred to by Alice Longworth as "the little man on the wedding cake." Dewey went home from this same hall a saddened, but wiser young man. He learned a great deal about the rough and tumble of political jockeying in a national convention.

In 1944 he was his party's standard bearer, nominated on the first ballot. And even Franklin D. Roosevelt admitted that he made a whale of a good campaign. With the country in the middle of a great war and Roosevelt a great world figure, Dewey put up a highly creditable performance.

But again he knew defeat. He spent election night at his New York headquarters and political reporters will never forget the picture of Tom Dewey and his wife walking down a corridor of the Roosevelt Hotel the next morning, all alone and headed back for Albany.

Stassen Faces Heartbreak

Here he is again on the eve of the balloting. But this time his political fortunes appear at an all-time high. Both he and his organization seem to have the situation well in hand and his coup yesterday in gaining control of the Pennsylvania delegation proves that he knows all the tricks. Today some observers are wondering if he is pushing too hard; to the point where he is making certain delegation leaders angry. The Dewey forces are exerting terrific pressure to gain a first ballot victory.

A Dewey victory will come as a heartbreaking development for Harold E. Stassen and his loyal organization. The former Minnesota Governor has waged the most vigorous campaign for the past two years of any candidate in many years.

Stassen is surrounded by a young and almost fanatically loyal entourage. He has been supplied with money and his campaign has lacked nothing. Today his headquarters was humming with activity, everybody wore a smile, and anyone would think everything was just lovely, which is not the case. Like Dewey in 1940, it is very probable that Harold Stassen, a game fighter, will have to take his nice family home to Minnesota and start all over. He has campaigned in practically every State, he has worked day and night on a killing schedule. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in his behalf. But late Thursday or early Friday, the porters will be sweeping out his gaudy headquarters.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio is another who will probably wend his way back to Washington, his presidential hopes shattered. Senator Taft also was a victim of the Willkie bombshell in 1940. But, unlike Dewey, he gained on every ballot in that now-historic convention. He started with 189 votes and wound up with 429. Like Dewey, he started all over and this year nas conducted a good campaign that took him to the Pacific Coast and that, here in Philadelphia, has had experienced political managers and day and night leadership from the Senator himself. Taft worked right through the final days in the Senate and arrived in Philadelphia with only 30 minutes' sleep in 48 hours. He has not stopped since. What these candidates will take in the way of physical punishment proves that the presidential bug is the most virulent of all insects.

And speaking of punishment, Gen. Jonathan Wainwright is running the Gen. Douglas MacArthur headquarters at the Adelphia Hotel. Wainwright, the leathery old hero of Bataan and the martyr of American unpreparedness in the Philippines, is accustomed to rear-guard actions. That he has only a small handful of votes at his command means nothing to him. He is carrying on like a real soldier assigned to a hopeless task. Like McAuliffe at Bastogne, Wainwright is sending "nuts" messages to the enemy.

Roaring Demonstration Greets Nominations

the demonstration started up again.

But in all the bedlam some State standards held as quietly still as Gibraltar. Conspicuously firm were the State banners linked with the stop-Dewey movement—Ohio, Minnesota, Michigan and Connecticut.

After 30 minutes of it Chairman Martin finally halted the parade and silenced the band with his gavel. But the hall never really quieted until Martin called Mrs. Jessie McCullough Weiss of Rochester to the platform to second Dewey's nomination.

But a later surprise second to Dewey's nomination came from House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck, whose Indiana delegation only a few hours before had withdrawn Halleck's favorite son status and thrown its full strength to Dewey on the first ballot.

Haleck asked the convention to nominate Dewey to "meet the challenge of our times" abroad and at home. He said of Dewey's record as an administrator, "It's unequaled by any other American."

Dewey's name, now synonymous with the "blitz" that has been driving with planned will through favorite son delegations, became the first presented to the convention when Alabama voted 8 to 6 to yield to Senator Martin for the purpose. Arizona surrendered its preferred position on the roll to Ohio to nominate Dewey's leading challenger, Senator Robert A. Taft. California said it would present the name of its own Governor Earl Warren. Colorado as an "act of courtesy," cleared the way for Minnesota to nominate Harold E. Stassen.

Taft's turn came when Senator John W. Bricker whipped up his famed crusading zeal and plenty of perspiration in a speech nominating his Ohio colleague.

Bricker said Republicans "dare not" nominate a man who does not stand on the record of the Eightieth Congress. Americans "distrust a President who likes 'Old Joe'" and have decided to elect a Republican, Bricker said.

Taft, he said, has made a "great" Senate leader and will make "the best President we can choose" and there "will be no more secret agreements" if he goes to the White House.

Bricker stepped from the stand at 11:20 p. m. and a series of high rebel yells, from Taft's Dixie supporters, rent the hall. Ohio started the Taft parade, ringing cowbells. Big red balloons, trailing "Win With Taft" banners, were released and shot to the rafters. One of them burst and the trailer dropped to the floor.

Quickly joining the parade were standards from Texas, Colorado, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Virginia, New Jersey, South Carolina and others. Some of them had been in the Dewey parade.

Taft placards waved by the Ohioan's marchers read "Save What's Left With Taft," "To Steer Our Craft, Let's Take Taft," "The Trend is to Taft" and "The Man Who Gets Things Done."

Cleveland's booming-voiced Representative George Bender, who helped swing Cleveland to the Senator in the Ohio primaries, shouted words of "The Four Leaf Clover," theme song of Taft's campaign. It didn't matter that neither the band nor the other marchers joined in. He sang all the verses again and again until he was hoarse and then started shouting "We Want Taft."

Finally, Bender, through the mike, on the rostrum, announced the demonstration would close with "three verses of 'Four Leaf Clover' and one of 'Onward Christian Soldiers.' This time the band took the cue and marchers who knew the words joined in.

Edgar Morris, of Washington, D. C., chairman of the District Board of Public Welfare, but a South Carolina delegate, took his place among Taft paraders.

News photographers in the galleries signaled for more Taft action and some of the Dewey placard bearers, standing at their seats, temporarily stole the spotlight by holding high their own Dewey standards.

Aside from the opening gallery boos for Dewey, the gallerites were pretty silent during both the Dewey and Taft demonstrations.

Chairman Joe Martin finally got the marchers to their seats at 11:58 p. m. after a nearly 40-minute furore.

A Missouri belle, Mrs. Carolyn Hyde Kelly, daughter of Hoover's late Secretary of Agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde, delivered one of the Taft seconding speeches.

"One thing about women," she said, "we know we can never be President, and therefore we can afford to be honest . . . we must have an honest, forthright man, whose word is his bond."

Taft succeeded in raiding Governor Dewey's delegation for another seconding speech. Peter Wynne of the Bronx told the convention he favored the Ohioan, "who can keep us strong."

While another Taft second, Roscoe Conklin Simmons of Illinois was speaking, a small fire started in one corner of the hall and the commotion around it stopped the speech. Speaker Martin told the delegates it was under control, and the convention went on.

At 12:30 a. m. it was Earl Warren's turn. California sent to the stand Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, to nominate him.

Sproul called Warren "a man ahead of his times . . . a modest man with a high sense of duty, awake to the problems of the ordinary man . . . intelligently aware of a world in which time and space have been almost eliminated—a liberal."

The Warren demonstration broke at 12:49 a. m. as the California standards swung into the aisle, two Hollywood stars, Irene Dunne and George Murphy clambered out on the platform in front of the chairman's mike. Irene Dunne held a huge picture of Warren aloft and with Murphy started shouting over the loudspeaker, "We Want Warren."

Following the California paraders around the hall were the placards of Washington, Nevada, Nebraska, Utah, New Mexico, South Dakota, Missouri, Mississippi and others.

Some of the marchers blew whistles and rattled noise-makers. Others bore a Warren streamer on poles and held up cards reading "Warren in '48," "America Deserves the Best" and "Win With Warren."

To get on with the nominations, Joe Martin cut the California demonstration short after 21 minutes, gaveling down the band and sending delegates to their seats.

The lovely Miss Dunne delivered a seconding speech for Warren. She said she isn't versed in politics and didn't think of Warren as a politician "but as one we have learned to trust . . . who understands the needs, dreams and hopes of his fellow men."

Senator William Knowland of California delivered another Warren seconding speech, urging the delegates, "Come join with us and win."

Stassen's name was presented at 1:30 a. m. by representative Walter Judd of Minnesota, amid lusty cheers from the Minnesotan's contingent.

Judd told the delegates the 1948 election "is not in the bag."

"It takes only a majority of the 1094 delegates to nominate but it takes a majority of 60 million votes to elect."

Judd said the convention atmosphere is charged with "deals and talk of deals" and the American voters won't be bound by them.

Claiming Stassen will get more independent, women, farm, labor, veteran and youth votes than any other Republican, he said the GOP is "tired of winning in June and losing in November."

GWU Hospital Gets $1000 for Asthma Patients

A $1000 grant for use in hospitalizing patients suffering intractable asthma has been awarded George Washington University Hospital here, it was announced yesterday. Donor was the Marcelle Fleischmann Foundation, Inc., of Baltimore.

The fund, hospital authorities said, will be used to care for patients requiring surgical treatment for the constant and severe type of asthma unrelieved by other therapy. One form of surgery in use for intractable asthma involves the severing of nerves to the bronchial tubes.

Persons afflicted who wish to take advantage of the grant are asked to apply to the GWU Hospital, Department of Surgery.

Vandenberg's Wife Dreads Nomination

By Christine Sadler Coe

Philadelphia, June 23.—Among some 8000 women at GOP's biggest national convention there is one who emphatically hopes her husband will not be nominated for the Presidency. She is Hazel Whittaker Vandenberg, wife of the popular Senator from Michigan. She has had 20 years of active political life and yesterday Mrs. Vandenberg assured a press conference that she has no desire to "go on until I drop."

"I've about reached the point where I think that if either of us go on much more we'll drop," she declared. She is recuperating from a lengthy illness which has included two major operations and although she hoped to get to the convention hall when her husband's name is placed in nomination, the thing she looks forward to is a vacation when the doings here are over. "We don't care where we go, just so it's by boat," Mrs. Vandenberg declared.

Anybody who knows Hazel Vandenberg knows also that she would do an excellent job as First Lady, just as she does all jobs well. A former newspaper woman, she married publisher Vandenberg 30 years ago and became a mother to his three children, who were aged 5, 9 and 11 at the time—and all of them whom are here with her now.

Mrs. Vandenberg has ontinued to write, off and on, did a four-year publicity job for the Red Cross during the war, and is now chairman of the Senate ladies. The latter job is automatic for the wife of the Vice President and since the country has none now it falls on her. If the next Vice President should be a bachelor, she would continue to head the club, which does Red Cross work.

Mrs. Vandenberg has been coming to conventions for 20 years and says she notices no difference in the total percentage of women in attendance but a considerable pickup in the number who are doing actual work. "But the number of women delegates is not as large as one would expect it to be after two decades," she declared.

Mrs. McCauley Speaks

Woman speaker at the convention today—the fourth this week to make a major address—was Mrs. Robert W. McCauley, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee, who declared woman's place is in politics.

Taking a tip from her party's platform, which has sloughed off all traces of isolationism, Mrs. McCauley called on women to break through the domestic isolation which has kept them away from the polls.

"Naturally, home comes first in every woman's heart, but consider: Where is woman's home? Can a woman of today contain her life within four walls of domestic isolation? Should she try to shield her home from the encroachments of society? Indeed, she should not. Today her home, like her community and her Nation, is vitally affected by influences far beyond the physical boundary lines.

"No one—man or woman—can live his life today between home and business and within a close circle of friends, unmolested by the tides of society's efforts to find peace and security.

"In our changing, unsettled world a great catalyst has entered our individual lives—big government. Once our servant, government today influences and disciplines nearly every phase of our lives. At every meal it sits at our tables; it has a major place in our family budgets. It is a constant and exacting shopping companion. Instead of being a balance, government has become a drag. Its own weight is pulling us down. We must join together to protect ourselves from its excesses," she declared.

Buttons Replenished

Dewey women, who are running the large $1000-a-day headquarters for the New York candidate, as well as having raised the money for it, ran out of Dewey buttons yesterday but soon received a new supply from New York City. They have given out more than 90,000—and can't understand where they're all going, since the convention crowd—counting out Philadelphians—totals around 20,000. They also have had to receive new supplies of nylons and other gifts being handed out as door prizes to the swarms of visitors who come in to get cups of coffee, soft drinks, gifts, and to watch convention proceedings over television.

Mrs. Vandenberg declared at her conference that she had no intention of going on television, but one of the cameramen said: "Mrs. Vandenberg, you are on television now. We're making this reel for it." So no celebrity has escaped the bright lights, which have the women upset because "everybody looks terrible on television." Special dark makeup and brown lipstick are needed to lessen the harsh effects, and few have the time—or are given the chance—to make up properly.

Success Secret Given By Woman Nominee

Philadelphia, June 23. — To win a political campaign, take the affirmative approach and never mention your opponent by name, Maine's new nominee for the Senate said upon her arrival here last night.

Margaret Chase Smith, who received more votes than her three men opponents put together, was presented to the GOP convention by Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr.

At a press conference earlier she declared that in six months of speaking from one to six times daily she never called attention to anything she was against, but always stressed what she was for.

Stassen Busy Trying to Curb Boom for Dewey

interview gave rise to another comedy of assertions and denials. Apparently Stassen ment to say that it was not then "possible" that any Taft-Stassen ticket had been arranged. But he was reported at Taft's headquarters as saying that such a ticket was an "impossibility." From midnight until 3 o'clock conflicting statements as to what he had said issued from the two headquarters.

Stassen, after his return to the Warwick, went into a huddle with his aides—Warren Burger, Fred Seaton, Ted Gamble, Bernard Levander, Victor Johnson and others. This conference, he later announced, was devoted to floor plans . . . The selection of a nominating speaker and floor manager and the plan of campaign. (Some of the emerging conferees admitted that a few other things were talked about, too).

At 3 a. m., Stassen emerged from his conference room on the tenth floor of the Warwick and held a press conference.

Stassen said floor plans had been completed. "We are going into this convention in a hard fight to win a presidential nomination," he declared. Stassen said he felt that as the Dewey-Grundy deal shook down it would turn into a boomerang.

"There is a very strong opinion among the delegates that they were elected to have something to say about the nomination and procedure by which an attempt is made to blast out a decision without even a caucus of the Pennsylvania organization has aroused resentment among all the delegates," he argued.

"Is it true that you would go along on a swing to Vandenberg but Taft wouldn't?" a reporter asked.

"I have no comment," Stassen replied.

"Where was the conference held," another reporter inquired.

"I prefer not to tell" was Stassen's rejoinder. He added that it was a good conference place and he hoped to hold some additional conferences later.

He was asked to explain the "Taft-Stassen ticket is impossible" statement. He stated: "As I walked in somebody said, 'Is it possible that there will be a Taft- Stassen ticket?' I said, 'No it isn't possible.'"

"Did you reach any agreement on strategy?" he was asked. He declined to detail any plan.

"A majority of the delegates resent the Grundy move and that resentment has led to joint moves to see to it that the delegates to this convention have an opportunity to express their views at the balloting," Stassen told newspapermen.

Entering elevator in Philadelphia, Harold E. Stassen gives a "stop" sign after conferring at a "Stop Dewey" meeting

"Do you anticipate a meeting with Governor Warren?" was the next question. Stassen said he had talked with Governor Warren at a reception and "had a few words" on the Martin switch to Dewey.

He was not surprise by the Grundy move, Stassen declared. He was surprised at the timing. He had thought the switch would come after the second ballot.

Queried once more on the Vice Presidency, Stassen said "the only thing I have to say at this time is that I am driving hard for the nomination of Stassen for President."

Prospects of victory, he declared,, were better than before the Pennsylvania episode.

At 10 a. m. Wednesday Stassen and Taft conferred again. Stassen reported on this meeting at an 11 o'clock press conference. Meeting a hundred reporters packed into the small "Green Room" of the Warwick, he said that he had just talked again with Taft.

"There is a consistent program developing to give the delegates to this convention an opportunity to express their wishes and to work out their choices in their own caucuses openly and to arrive at a Republican nomination for the next President," Stassen told the conference.

He said he would have further conferences with Taft during the day, indicating for the first time the formation of a permanent working coalition. He said there had been no agreement on any single choice of a candidate—that the choice would come from the delegates.

Returning to his attack on the Dewey ballot drive, Stassen said Dewey's methods were "prejudicing the outlook for a Republican victory next November."

"Are you meeting with Warren?" he was asked.

He said he would have lots of conferences during the day.

"How does Vandenberg figure in this?" another inquirer put in.

"All delegates and leaders of the Republican Party figure in this," Stassen retorted.

"Have you heard from General MacArthur?" was the next question.

He said he hadn't. Someone said there was a report that MacArthur was with him and he said he had no message from him.

Asked if there had been any change since Tuesday night, Stassen said there had been continuing development of tactics and strategy so he thought the answer would be "yes."

Stassen said he favored starting the balloting Thursday when he was asked if he would like to see a first ballot Wednesday night.

When he was asked why he thought Dewey's tactics were prejudicing party chances in November, Stassen reverted to "Grundy deal" complaints. He also said he had in mind the "tactics of spreading false rumors" of the actions of delegations, such as the rumor that Governor Driscoll was to attend the Dewey press conference Wednesday morning. That story and many others, he protested, were without foundation and calculated to stampede the delegates and deprive them of freedom of action.

Stassen would not forecast his first ballot strength beyond saying he would be a "strong third." He would not predict the outcome of the Pennsylvania caucus or make a guess on how many delegates would stick to Senator Martin and Dewey and how many to Governor Duff.

When Stassen and Taft held their third conference, at 2:30 this afternoon, Senator Vandenberg was for the first time represented by Gov. Kim Sigler. Also present were Harold Mitchell, national committeeman for Connecticut, which is committed to favorite son candidate, Senator Ray Baldwin, and Governor Duff. This meeting was held at the home of John D. Hamilton, GOP national chairman who piloted the Landon campaign. The group met at the large residence, 2831 Locut st., not far from the convention hall.

Stassen was vague on the tactics of the coalition when he met 200 newspapermen at a conference at the Warwick at 3:30. The conference had to be moved into a large reception room when it overflowed the cocktail lounge in which previous press sessions were held. Stassen fans mingled with reporters, joining in questioning.

Stassen said the conferees had put under way "a program which we're confident will give delegates to this convention an opportunity to make decisions on the next Republican nominee through their own caucuses and through balloting on the floor of this convention."

"We are making a fight to make this an open convention," he declared.

He repeated his earlier assertions that most of the delegates resent the tactics of committing the Pennsylvania delegates without a caucus, and fear that the Dewey methods have hurt Republican chances this fall.

No deal on a ticket has been made, according to Stassen. He said all the coalition had talked of was procedures "by which the delegates will decide the ticket."

He said this was in conformity with the strongly expressed views of delegates that the candidate ought to be picked by the delegates and not by groups of insiders.

The field of candidates remains the same as it was before the conversations with Taft, in Stassen's view.

He was again asked about Col. Robert McCormick. He said he had not been in touch with the Chicago publisher but his aides were trying to keep in touch with all delegates and that McCormick was a delegate. He was asked if he welcomed support. He said he neither welcomed it nor rebuffed it.

Two more Dewey maneuvers are expected by the coalition. Stassen said the balloting will not be swung by either of them.

"Who do you want for Vice President?" he was asked.

He said he wanted a candidate with the same philosophy that Stassen has, from the New England of Midatlantic States.

Warren Burger, who has managed the Stassen campaign, will be Stassen's floor manager. His nomination will be made by Congressman Walter Judd of Minneapolis. It will be seconded by Robert Kay, former State chairman of West Virginia; Jay Cooke former Philadelphia county chairman; Will G. Saltonstall, relative of Senator Leverett Saltanstall and head master of Exeter Academy, New Hampshire; Osro Cobb. Little Rock, Republican State chairman of Arkansas; Mrs. Dan Kirkbride, Wyoming delegate and chairman of the Wyoming Federation of Women's Clubs.

Stassen announced that he was holding further conferences through the day and said he would meet newspapermen again at 8 p. m.

Draft Exemption Enlistments Studied

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

How much longer men can sign up in the draft-exempt reserve is expected to be decided today—and at the Pentagon rather than the White House.

Men who enroll in the National Guard or an organized, drilling, reserve unit before President Truman signs the Draft Act will be exempt. A White House secretary said yesterday that the bill will not reach Mr. Truman's desk for another two days or so. He may postpone signing until July 15.

But this is no longer the $64 question.

All of the reserve units which guarantee draft exemption either have filled up or are nearing their manpower ceilings. Two other categories of the Organized Reserve, however, have not yet been opened up to draft-exempt enlistments. The important questions now, therefore, are whether they will be opened, when and to what extent.

National Guard and Navy and Marine Corps Reserve recruiting got off to a fast start this week under impetus of the impending draft and raced to new highs.

General Staff Studies Question

Red tape and delays in reaching decisions, however, left the Army Organized Reserve and Air Force Organized Reserve standing at the post. An Air Force spokesman said that men who enlisted in their Organized Reserve units and took training would be exempt from draft calls, but USAF recruiters couldn't guarantee it.

The Army specifically warned that men signing up in the Organized Reserve might not have draft exemption.

Army officials said last night that the question is now under General Staff study. According to the draft bill, Defense Secretary James Forrestal must decide what types of organized units give draft exemption. Although it has been apparent for some weeks that this decision had to be made, the Army up to last night had not made up its mind as to what its policy should be in the matter.

Time Is Important

Time is important, for after President Truman signs the bill, volunteers for the reserve components are expected to drop off to a trickle. Several factors are involved, however. Many Army chiefs are not much in favor of taking green recruits into the reserve. They prefer to wait for the 18-year-old trainees to come in and transfer to the reserve a year hence.

Also they have to decide whether to spend their reserve appropriations in giving intensive training to a small group or spread it over more people. And many top General Staff men never liked Congress' idea of the draft "escape hatch" from the beginning.

However, an Army spokesman predicted that a decision in the matter would be made today. Air Force officials also said the question was under study, and a decision is expected.

Meanwhile, National Guard officials said that many State Guards had recruited well beyond their June 30, 1949, manpower ceilings and were continuing to take men. Others, it was said, had reached top strength and had requested that their quotas be raised.

But the National Guard Bureau of the Army Department said it had no authority to authorize units to go beyond the money limits voted by Congress for the Guard next year. They said as much to several States and were expected to give a similar answer to a request made by the District of Columbia.

However, many State adjutants general apparently are relying on congressional fondness for the Guard. They expect to create a deficiency in their appropriations and ask Congress to give them more money next January to pay the additional men.

Navy Within Ceiling

Navy chiefs, however, decided to keep within their 200,000-man ceiling for the fiscal year ending next Wednesday. They are allowed to expand to 220,000 enlisted men in the Organized Reserve next year, but expect to build up to this strength by taking veterans or men over 25.

The draft bill arrived at the White House yesterday and was sent to the Budget Bureau for study. Presidential Secretary Eben Ayers estimated it would not reach the President before Saturday.

Meanwhile, Omar B. Ketchum, VFW legislation director, said that "sources close to the President" had informed him that Mr. Truman would wait the full 10 days before signing the bill.

Man Overcome By Heat, First 1948 Area Victim

A District man, the first this season, was overcome by heat yesterday as Greater Washington registered a humid 85-degree high temperature.

The heat victim, identified as William Gray, 819 24th st. nw., was reported overcome at No. 1 East Bradley lane, Bethesda, police said. Gray recovered before an ambulane arrived, and refused treatment, police said.

The average temperature yesterday was 76, just about normal for this time of the year, the Weather Bureau said. Little chance of relief was in sight for today, it was announced, although there is some chance of thundershowers. The day is expected to be mostly sunny, humid and warm with the mercury in the upper 80's, the bureau announced.

Alexandrian

Bendheim Heads VFW Of Virginia

By The Associated Press

Leroy Bendheim of Alexandria yesterday was elected commander of the Department of Virginia, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the closing session of the State organization's twenty-sixth annual encampment.

Bendheim

Bendheim, who was department vice commander during the past year, succeeds Lester H. Mitchell of Roanoke. He also is commander of the Russell Mitchell VFW Post in Alexandria.

Other officers elected were Theodore C. Pilcher, Norfolk, senior vice commander; W. M. Farmer, Pulaski, junior vice commander; W. L. Woodell, Staunton, quartermaster; Bernard Nagelson, Alexandria, advocate; Ralph D. Fowler, Arlington, chaplain, and Hugh T. Williams, Danville, surgeon.

The following four district commanders also were named: L. W. Baker, Norfolk, District No. 2; E. H. Walsh, Hopewell, District No 4; E. W. Lukey, Salem, District No. 6., and Karl O. Spiess, Fairfax, District No. 8.

The Virginia Department adopted a resolution opposing veterans' benefits for non-military or quasi military organizations. Other resolutions asked removal of certain inequities in the Veterans Preference Act of 1944 and Social Security provisions during military service.

Speaking a second time at the closing session of the encampment, Omar B. Ketchem, VFW national legislative officer, said the lack of housing legislation for veterans was the biggest disappointment in the Eightieth Congress.

Bendheim, 42, an Alexandria attorney and a veteran of General Patton's Third Army, is the first World War II veteran to head the 17,500 Virginia VFW members. He was recently elected an Alexandria City councilman.

D. C. Guard Moves to Exceed Quota Limit

National Guard Bureau that his quota be increased. When a reporter pointed out that existing quotas are based on the money available, Cox said:

"All the units will be evened out. We'll make adjustments."

Other officers expressed belief that the Guard, with local as well as Federal control, could go ahead on its own. One officer said there would be "no trouble" getting a deficiency appropriation to meet swollen needs.

Possibilities for Exemption

Unless they choose to take their chances with an Army reserve unit, the District's draft eligibles appeared to have left these possibilities to gain exemption:

1. The National Guard ground units—as long as Cox keeps the doors open at the armory, 20th and E. Capitol sts., and before the President signs the bill.

2. The National Guard air units, recruiting at the armory and at 1406 G st. nw. They have room for about 350 more men

3. The Organized Naval Reserve, at the Naval Gun Factory. Here, the authorized strength is about 1900 men, and a recruiting officer said yesterday it was "mighty close" to being full. Nearly 300 applicants have been processed since Monday.

20 Billets at Anacostia

4. The Naval Air Reserve, at the Anacostia Air Station. Up to about 965 men yesterday, it had only 20 billets left to fill to reach its authorized complement of 1086. About 35 applications were in process.

5. The Fifth Marine Reserve Battalion, with headquarters at 230 C st. nw. Lieut. Col. John A. Fondahl, commander, who is also commander of the Eighth Police Precinct, said he had about 50 vacancies to meet a quota of some 570 men.

Business was slow at both the Army ground forces reserve station, 10th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., and the reserve Air Force office, 2131 C st. nw.—with barely perceptible increases in applications.

Reports of swelling National Guard units and Navy and Marine reserves came also from nearby Virginia and Maryland. Alexandria's new Guard unit, Battery B, 710th AAA Gun Battalion, more than doubled in size since passage of the draft law Saturday night. It shot up from 21 members Sunday to 59 by yesterday morning.

Louis-Walcott Fight On Armory Screen

As part of its recruitment drive, the District National Guard will offer the Louis-Walcott fight on a 7-by-9-foot television screen at the Guard Armory, 20th and E. Capitol sts., at 10 tonight. District Guardsmen, their friends, and prospective Guardsmen are invited.

Maybank's Son-in-Law Killed by Lightning

Charleston, S. C., June 23 (AP).—George D. Paul, son-in-law of Senator Burnet R. Maybank, was killed and six persons were injured this afternoon when lightning struck an oak tree on the golf course of the Charleston Country Club.

Court Bans Ship Strike for 80 Days

New York, June 23 (AP).—A Federal judge today issued an injunction restraining the CIO National Maritime Union and two affiliated unions from taking strike action for 80 days.

The court dismissed a Government application to enjoin 55 Atlantic and Gulf Coast shipowners from engaging in a lockout. The court held that there was no evidence to indicate a threatened lockout.

The judge, John W. Clancy, issued the injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The three unions and four other maritime unions have threatened a Nationwide strike.

The 80-day period starts from June 14 when the judge issued a 10-day restraining order. The judge said if a contract agreement is reached before the end of the 80 days the United States Attorney General is directed by statute to ask discontinuance of the stay.

The injunction is effective against the American Radio Association and the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, both CIO, in addition to the NMU.

NLRB Must Hold Elections

If no agreement is reached within 60 days of June 14, the presidential board of inquiry which investigated the dispute must report to President Truman the position of the parties, efforts made toward settlement and the last offer made by the operators.

The President must make the report public. The National Labor Relations Board during the next 15 days must hold a secret ballot among the employes of each company on acceptance of the final offer. The results must be certified to the United States Attorney General within the last five days of the injunction period.

Joseph Curran, president of the NMU, largest of the unions involved, said in an affidavit filed with the court yesterday that an injunction would be "futile" and would aggravate the dispute rather than promote a settlement.

Hiring Halls, Chief Issue

He said there was no prospect of any real collective bargaining during the injunction period and that "the issue can be resolved only through a test of strength."

Chief issue in the dispute is union insistence on retention of the hiring hall, by which the union supplies crews as needed on request of ship operators.

The operators say the hiring hall represents a closed shop, illegal under the Taft-Hartley law.

After the judge's action, Curran said in letters to NMU members that the union "will not strike in the face of a Federal injunction that maintains the status quo which includes the hiring hall."

He declared, however, that left-wing factions might use "illegal means in an effort to stampede the membership or to split the union into a phony Communist-dominated strike . . . hoping thus to wreck our union.

At Cleveland, Federal Judge Emerich B. Freed extended until July 2 a temporary injunction against the NMU to block a walkout affecting Great Lakes vessels.

During the hearing, the judge commented:

"I never believed there was any proposition of law clearly giving the right to strike and I would like to see such authority."

Truman Held Champion of Civil Rights

Kansas City, June 23 (AP).—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was told tonight that President Truman was the acknowledged champion of civil rights.

Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, said Mr. Truman "deliberately risked his whole political future" in taking his "forthright stand" in setting out his civil rights program.

Ewing told the association's thirty-ninth convention that Mr. Truman "stuck to his guns."

Ewing said it was the business of the "Federal Government to fight vigorously the prejudices and hostilities—the selfishness and greed—which so long have prevented a decent solution of our so-called Negro problem."

A Negro editor told the convention last night that the NAACP will intensify its political action and continue its fight against discrimination.

The editor, Roy Wilkins, of New York, urged a close watch on the Republican and Democratic National Conventions to determine which party will offer a convincing civil rights program.

"It is a nice question as to whether the nice-talking-but-do-nothing Republicans are worse than the bad-talking-and-do-nothing Democrats," he declared.

Eight hundred delegates are attending the convention which ends Sunday. They represent 500,000 members from 45 States.

By White House

New Effort For Railroad Peace Made

The White House yesterday began a new effort to settle the labor dispute between the railroads and the three unions of engineers, firemen and switchmen.

Steelman

Leaders of the three latter organizations met with Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman in secret conferences. Representatives of the roads are expected to confer with him later. No result came from the negotiations, in which Steelman is seeking a basis for renewed talks between the two groups.

President Truman blocked a threatened strike of the rail workers in May by seizing the roads and obtaining a Federal Court injunction forbidding a work stoppage. The temporary injunction has been extended three times. A hearing will be held July 1 before Justice T. Alan Goldsborough to decide whether the order should be made permanent.

Reds in Labor Unions Face House Group Probe

New York, June 23 (AP).—Representative Fred A. Hartley (R., N. J.), announced today an investigation of alleged Communist infiltration into the labor movement will begin in Washington next Wednesday.

Hartley, coauthor of the Taft-Hartley law, said the probe first would consider alleged infiltration into clerical unions of retail store employes in New York City.

He said the investigation will be conducted by a subcommittee of the House on education and labor of which he is chairman. He will serve as chairman ex-officio of the subcommittee.

Hartley referred to published reports that New York retail store union officials have demanded that anti-Communist members be fired for alleged "disruptive activity" within the union.

Hartley said officials of three New York stores—Bloomingdale's, Gimbel's and Lerner Stores—have been subpenaed already for the investigation.

Local Three of the CIO United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Workers Union suspended three members employed by Bloomingdale's.

The three appealed to the executive board of the union and were reinstated over the local's protest.

The local had claimed the men—Gustave Holstrom, Anthony Bucceri and Samuel Wolfson—were trying to "disrupt" the local and had made false charges against its officials.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey ordered a probe of the local suspension.

Wiley Sees New Drive For Anti-Red Laws

By The Associated Press

A renewed drive for anti-Communist legislation will be pressed in the next Congress, Senator Wiley (R., Wis.) said yesterday.

The chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee told a reporter the Mundt-Nixon bill will be presented in new form to take care of constitutional objections to the House-passed measure.

Wiley said Attorney General Clark's information that the original bill contained sections which might violate the Constitution left his committee too little time to make changes before Congress quit last Sunday. But he added in a statement:

"Let not the Communists, however, take heart and crow about the fact the Senate did not act on the bill.

"Let them not attempt to imply that they had anything to do with killing the bill. On the contrary, we emerged from committee meetings with firmer conviction than ever before that the Communist threat must and will be met."

Wiley's statement was pointed up by Republican platform framers in Philadelphia. They called for:

"Vigorous enforcement of existing laws against Communists and enactment of such new legislation as may be necessary to expose the treasonable activities of Communists and defeat their objective of establishing here a Godless dictatorship controlled from abroad."

Reds Accept British Bid

London, June 23 (U.P.).—The Soviet Union has accepted an invitation from Britain to open talks on a long-term trade agreement, it was announced today.

Print Shops Reach Terms

Chicago, June 23 (AP).—A wage settlement has been reached between the Franklin Association, a trade group of Chicago printing shops, and Local 16, Chicago Typographical Union.

Forty-eight of the association's 400 member shops have been shut down and approximately 2000 printers have been idle since the dispute began early in March.

The proposed agreement provides a pay increase of $11.89 a week for the 3500 printers employed in all 400 shops affiliated with the association. The proposed new scale will be $92 a week, day shift, and a $96 a week for night shift, on a 36¼-hour week.

Officers of Local 16 said they would recommend ratification of the agreement to union members at a meeting Sunday. If the settlement is approved, the printers are expected to return to their jobs Monday.

Approximately 1500 members of the same union are striking against Chicago's five daily newspapers. The latter strike began November 24.

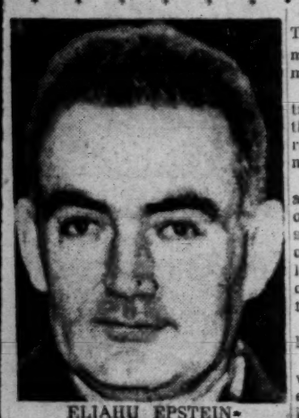
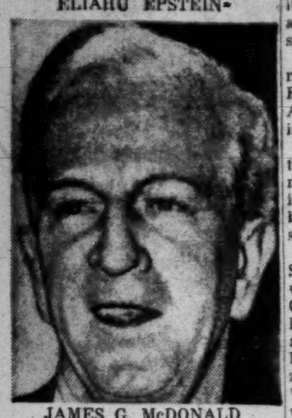
Grave Crisis Splits Cabinet of Israel



ELIAHU EPSTEIN-



JAMES G. McDONALD

In an exchange of diplomatic missions between the United States and the provisional government of Israel, Eliahu Epstein has been designated special representative by Israel and James Grover McDonald is President Truman's special representative

Tel Aviv, Israel, June 23 (U.P.).—The first grave internal government crisis split the cabinet of the month-old state of Israel today.

Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish extremist group, broke formally with the provisional government. As a result of the dispute two cabinet members resigned.

The government struck back by arresting 70 Jewish "rebels," some of them Irgunists. Among those seized were the American captain of Irgun's gun-running ship, Altalena, and Peter Bergson, founder of the Hebrew National Committee.

The ship's captain is 25-year-old Monroe Fein of Chicago.

Irgun announced it no longer would recognize the Israeli government. It said it had ordered its men to quit the Israeli army and bear the consequences of desertion.

The two cabinet members who resigned were Rabbi Yehuda Leib Fishman, Minister for Religious Affairs, and Moshe Shapiro, Minister of Immigration.

Shots were exchanged during today's funeral for five Irgun members who died yesterday trying to land munitions on Tel Aviv beach. The government had shelled the Irgun ship.

(Bergson went to the United States in 1940. In 1946, while he was there as head of the Hebrew Committee of National Liberation, he was investigated by the FBI as an alien agent. He was born in Lithuania but claimed British citizenship. In December, 1946, in Washington, he "announced" he was going to form a "Palestine government in exile" in Paris.)

Menachem Beigin, Irgun commander, said last night that the LST landed 800 European-trained combat soldiers at Natnya Sunday night before it proceeded to Tel Aviv. Censors prevented correspondents from filing Beigin statement until this afternoon. (Such a landing would violate the truce.)

74 More Polio Cases

Austin, Tex., June 23 (AP).—Seventy-four new polio victims in 18 Texas counties were reported by the State health department today. The year's total is 502.

Greeks Pierce Rebel Line

Athens, June 23 (AP).—Greek army troops pierced a guerilla defense line along the Albanian border today andmounted a heavy assault against the southern portion of the semi-circular front, field dispatches said.

A general staff communique said guerilla resistance was broken in the Kastanohorion area southwest of Nestorion. There the Communist-led rebels had slowed one prong of the pincers which American-advised Greek commanders are seeking to close around the entire rebel force of 7000 in the Grammos Mountains area.

Front accounts said units of the crack Ninth Division seized Vourbiani near the frontier.

Some accounts reported the guerillas were trying to flee northward into Communist Albania to avoid encirclement.

Greek soldiers moving up to the front shouted: "God and justice with us forward and let's throw the Bulgarians out of Macedonia."

Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, head of the United States military mission, said he was satisfied with the progress made by Greek troops.

He predicted major fighting in the Grammos area would end within four weeks and that mopping up would be complete by August 1.

Two District Men Get Nieman Awards

Cambridge, Mass., June 23 (AP).—Twelve newspapermen, including two in Washington, today were awarded Nieman fellowships for a year of study at Harvard University.

The Nieman Foundation said Georg. Polk, Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent killed in Greece last month, would have been awarded a fellowship but for his death.

Six Are Veterans

Six of the fellows are World War II veterans. One is Army Capt. Charles D. Willis, 33, in Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C.

In addition to Willis, the awards were made to:

Alan Barth, 41, Washington, D. C., Post editorial writer.

Robert R. Brunn, San Francisco correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor. During the war he was shot down over France and was a German prisoner for 2½ years.

Grady E. Clay, Louisville

Grady E. Clay, jr., 31, reporter on the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal. A newspaperman since 1939, he served two years in the Army.

Robert De Roos, 37, San Francisco Chronicle reporter since 1945. He has been a newspaperman for 14 years, with the Merced Sun-Star, San Francisco News and manager of the San Francisco office of Time, Inc.

David B. Dreiman, 31, feature writer on the Minneapolis (Minn.) Star since 1937 except for two years Army service.

Frank Tillman Durdin, 41, chief correspondent in China for the New York Times. A newspaperman for 20 years. Durdin began as a reporter on the San Antonio (Tex.) Express and served six years as managing editor of the China Press in Shanghai.

Elmer L. Holland, jr., 29, Birmingham, Ala., News-Age-Herald editorial writer. Except for two years Army service, Holland has been in the newspaper business since 1940.

Peter Lisagor, Chicago

Peter Lisagor, 32, Chicago, Ill., Daily News reporter. He began newspaper work in 1939 with the United Press. Except for three years in the Army, Lisagor has been with the Daily News since 1941. During the war he was managing editor of the London edition of Stars and Stripes and later editor of the Stars and Stripes weekly magazine in Paris.

Christopher Rand, 36, China correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune. Prior to the Herald Tribune, Rand was connected with Time magazine and the San Francisco Chronicle.

Aldric R. Revell, 38, Madison, Wis., Capital Times political writer since 1935.

Lawrence G. Weiss, 27, Boston Herald reporter. He has been with the Herald since 1944, specializing in labor reporting.

Post Editorial Writer Awarded Fellowship

An editorial writer for The Washington Post and an amputee patient at Walter Reed Hospital are among 12 newspapermen selected this year as Nieman fellows.

The fellowships—for study through the next college years at Harvard University—went to Alan Barth, on the staff of The Washington Post since 1943, and Capt. Charles D. Willis, a Walter Reed patient for the past three years.

Barth, 41, was graduated from Phillips Andover Academy and Yale, beginning his newspaper career in Beaumont, Tex., in 1936. He later served the McClure Newspaper Syndicate as a Washington correspondent and did war work for the Secretary of the Treasury and the OWI.

Married and the father of two children, Barth won a 1948 award of Sigma Delta Chi fraternity for "distinguished service in American journalism." He plans to study history and political science.

Captain Willis, 33, is a former reporter for the Fort Worth Press, having covered the city hall, politics and the courts for 10 years until he volunteered for the Army in 1942. Wounded while leading a patrol with the Thirty-first (Dixie) Infantry Division on Morotai, Willis has had 23 operations on his legs and over 100 blood transfusions. His left leg was amputated at the hip last month.

He is married and the father of three children. His wife and eldest child, Virginia Dell, 9, are now living in an Arlington Farms apartment.

He plans to study political science and public administration at Harvard.

PM Changes To N. Y. Star

New York, June 23 (AP).—The New York Star, successor to PM, made its first appearance today as a morning newspaper.

The newspaper said in an editorial it would be independent, adding, "as independent of the tyranny of slogans and colors as it is of vested interests."

Contrary to PM tradition, today's editorials were unsigned. Max Lerner, chief contributor of signed editorials in the past, will remain as a columnist.

Edmund Duffy, former cartoonist of the Baltimore Sun and three times winner of the Pulitzer Prize, will join the Star as a cartoonist, the paper announced.

While the Star remains a tabloid, it has a new format typographically and in make-up. Its front page is devoted to news stories instead of pictures, summaries and headlines exclusively as in PM.

The Star said it "will report the news as honestly and well as skill can manage; on other pages it will exercise the old American newspaper's prerogative of telling its readers what the news adds up to."

Today's 48-page edition carried numerous pages of advertising, including many full-page ads.

Management of the paper recently was taken over by Joseph Barnes, former foreign editor of the New York Herald Tribune, and Bartley Crum, San Francisco attorney, from Marshall Field, who retains a minority interest.

Mountbatten in London

London, June 23 (NYHT).—Earl Mountbatten, last British viceroy of India and first Indian governor-general, returned to London today after completion of his mission by which India and Pakistan gained independence.

AMA Rejects Plan for Mandatory Acceptance of Negro Doctor Members

Chicago, June 23 (AP).—The American Medical Association rejected today a move to make admission of Negro doctors to the association mandatory throughout the United States.

The rejection by the AMA House of Delegates was made on the principle that county medical societies are autonomous and the AMA constitution does not empower the parent body to dictate to its member locals.

Membership in the American Medical Association is automatic for any doctor who belongs to his county medical society.

The New York State delegation presented the resolution proposing that it be made mandatory that no county society reject anyone for membership because of race, creed or color.

The association's new president, Dr. Roscoe L. Sensenich of South Bend, Ind., was asked at what places Negroes are barred because of their color. He said he was unable to answer the question. He named New York, Chicago and other cities in which Negro physicians are admitted to county society membership.

George F. Brewer

ECA Names Foreign Aid Comptroller

George F. Brewer, Phoenix, Ariz., yesterday was appointed comptroller for the Economic Corporation Administration in Europe.

His primary job will be to see that United States-financed shipments are put to the recovery uses intended.

Brewer will have assistant comptrollers in each of ECA's missions in the Marshall Plan countries, Administrator Paul G. Hoffman announced.

The 47-year-old Brewer is a native of Indianapolis. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and has had long experience in accounting and corporate advisory work.

ECA's Comptroller Eric L. Kohler will have supervisory direction of the European comptroller's staff.

A major aim, he said, will be to see that American goods with potential war usefulness are not reshipped to countries behind the "iron curtain." Efforts also will be made, he added, to see that United States foods and other supplies do not find their way into black markets.

Dr. Calvin B. Hoover, chairman of the economic department at Duke University, yesterday was appointed to the Paris staff of W. Averell Harriman, Ambassador at Large of the ECA.

Hoover, 51, will become chief of the division of program review and recovery progress, Hoffman said.

A native of Berwick, Ill., and a graduate of Monmouth College, Hoover served last fall on the President's Committee on Foreign Aid (Harriman Committee) which was influential in shaping the European recovery plan.

The first diplomatic moves will be made soon toward linking the United States with the western European defense union, Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett said yesterday.

Lovett told a press conference that it was reasonable to expect diplomatic contact with the so-called Brussels countries fairly soon. These countriees—Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—last spring signed a 50-year mutual defense pact involving the closest possible military, political, economic and cultural cooperation.

The Vandenberg resolution, recently passed by a 64-to-4 vote in the Senate, gave the State Department the signal to start negotiations with the Brussels group. It called upon the President to seek "association" of the United States with such regional defense groupings under certain conditons.

Lovett said the first contacts would be through diplomatic channels. As for miltary talks, which are also expected soon, Lovett said nothing beyond noting that a military committee of the five European nations has already been set up in London.

What the Europeans want is (1) military supplies from the United States and (2) a formal guarantee of American support in case of aggression. Before making an agreement for later submission to the Senate, the United States wants to know what the five countries are doing to pool their military resources and help themselves.

The Europeans have kept the United States informed of their progress in military, political and economic fields. As far as could be learned yesterday, however, they have not yet agreed on a plan for submission to the State Department.

The hope is, however, that an agreement can be completed in time for submission early in the new session of Congress.

Austria Fears It May Be Battleground

Vienna, Austria, June 23 (U.P.).—The Austrian government tonight asked the Allied Control Council for assurances that the four powers are not preparing for a war here.

The government said reports of East-West espionage in Austria had "produced rumors among the population that Austria is to become a battleground area."

The government said charges of espionage filed by the Russians against an Austrian official "undermine the theory the occupation powers have come here on a peaceful mission."

It demanded the immediate release from Soviet custody of Anton Marek, the official involved.

The Russians were involved in another incident last night.

United States Army authorities reported today that a French member of the international patrol was killed and a Russian member injured seriously last night by a Soviet soldier who allegedly went berserk with a machine pistol.

An Army spokesman said the Russian commander already had expressed his regrets and had apologized.

Corpl. Robert Perryman, Clinton, Iowa, an American member of the patrol, escaped with minor injuries when the Russian, reportedly intoxicated, shot up several patrol cars.

A British report said the Russian soldier muttered in broken German that President Truman was a "good man." He stopped firing as soon as he saw American soldiers.

Thus Berlin's 3,400,000 people were caught in the middle of an East-West fight.

Western circles were struck by the fact the railway line developed a "technical disturbance" for the first time a few hours after the western currency move.

Hundreds Invade Chamber

The tension from this latest development exploded late yesterday when hundreds of political demonstrators swarmed into the city hall in the Russian sector. The 2000 or 3000 demonstrators invaded the council chamber and for 90 minutes prevented a special council debate on the currency situation. The American-controlled radio said the shouting crowd was made up of followers of the Soviet-sponsored Socialist Unity party.

Last night the council adopted a resolution declaring both East and West currency should be valid in the city.

As the councilmen left the hall, German reporters said, a crowd shouted threats and assaulted three of the councilmen, including a woman.

Charging that the Russians were attempting to "usurp" life and death economic power over the two million Germans in the western sector, the three powers made the new Deutsche marks legal tender in their sectors immediately.

They closed all banks and all except grocery and drug stores. They ordered a temporary moratorium on debts pending actual issuance of the new currency, which was made legal tender for the three western zones last Friday. Stocks of the new mark already were on hand for distribution.

It was the first time one occupation power had openly countermanded the order of another.

The western powers did not void the new Russian currency in their sectors, however. Financial authorities said they believed the two currencies, Russian and Western, could circulate side by side in Berlin if given Russian cooperation. The Russians, however, outlawed the new Deutsche mark in all Berlin and threatened the arrest of any person using it.

Foreign Ministers Eric Molnar of Hungary, Stanoje Simic of Yugoslavia, Vladimir Clementis of Czechoslovakia, Anna Pauker of Romania, Vassil Kolarou of Bulgaria, Enver Hodza of Albania and Poland's Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz and Foreign Minister Zygmunt Modzelewski.

The announcement, omitting any reference to possible attendance by Communist leaders of France and Italy, appeared to rule out that the Cominform would be a major item of discussion here. (The Cominform is the International Communist Information Bureau organized in Poland last September.)

(However, Palmiro Togliatti, Italy's Communist chief, and French Communist leader Jacques Duclos were reported absent from their home cities.)

All countries represented, however, except Albania are represented in the Cominform by their Communist parties.

German Communist leaders from the Soviet zone of Germany also were reported called here. An unconfirmed report said Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Russian military governor of eastern Germany, had come to Warsaw.

The session are being held in suburban Wilanow Palace.

Montgomery Schools

The School Board of Montgomery County, supported by Parent-Teacher Associations and other citizen groups, has given the Nation an admirable example of what local initiative can do toward improving the public schools. Alarmed by the steady exodus of qualified teachers from the school system, the board proposed to tap local resources in order to raise teachers' salaries. It instituted, at least in theory, a model salary schedule which would have put teachers in Montgomery County on a par with those in the better public school systems of the Nation—and, incidentally, on a level appreciably above that of District teachers. The benefits of the improvement would have accrued directly to the children of the county and, no doubt, indirectly to the county as a whole. But the School Board has run head-on into the kind of parsimony which passes so commonly nowadays for economy. The County Commissioners, who control the budget, have denied the board the funds necessary to pay the teachers the salaries promised to them.

It is a testimonial to the public-spiritedness and good sense of Montgomery County residents that something like a thousand of them turned out one night last week to demand increased school appropriations. And when the commission president declared, "We are willing to give you people the things you want if you have the intestinal fortitude to stand up and tell us you're willing to accept higher taxes," most of them rose to their feet at once. But the commission president, it appeared, was only bluffing. For the commission has decided that it cannot raise the present tax rate of $1.88 and has therefore slashed the budget sought by the School Board to the extent of $611,000. Moreover, it has forbidden the School Board to eliminate certain luxury services in order to use the available funds for teachers' pay.

It would be hard to conceive of a more foolish form of penny-pinching. Perhaps the Montgomery commissioners learned it from the Speaker of the House of Representatives who, on the pretext of economy, declined to let the Federal Aid to Education bill come to the floor. Here we have people who, without waiting for Federal aid, propose to help themselves meet what they rightly deem a vital need, a sound education for their children. It happens that they are well able to do this; Montgomery County, according to the Census Bureau, has the highest rural standard of living of any county in the United States. It can afford good schools. Indeed, it cannot, any more than the rest of the country, afford to do without them.

New German Marks

Significant evidence of the chaotic state of Germany's currency system is found in the official explanation of the reason for calling in the money now in circulation in the western zones before announcing the rate of exchange for new issues. That novel feature of the currency reform system is due to inability even to guess the enormous volume of outstanding issues. By ordering holders of present marks to register them within the current week the occupying authorities will be able to determine the degree of devaluation required to reduce the currency to the amounts needed to do the money-work of the community at stable and reasonable price levels.

The inevitable hardships accompanying what is sure to be a drastic devaluation measure are greatly mitigated by reason of the fact that the Germans long since lost confidence in the currency and have relied increasingly on barter. Unwillingness to accept marks in payment for rationed goods at officially fixed prices has also resulted in the spread of black markets in which goods have been sold at huge nominal prices, reflecting the officially unacknowledged depreciation of the mark. The chief losers from the currency reform, therefore, will be the profiteers, who have acquired marks by their illegal operations, and the minority groups that still have substantial savings. Few wage earners will be affected, since most of them have used all their income to supplement rationed purchases by buying in the black markets.

When the financial foundation prerequisite to economic recovery has been laid, western Germany will be in a position to take advantage of the aid provided through the ECA. With a stabilized mark, it will be possible to set up an exchange mechanism that will facilitate expansion of foreign trade and put the area on the way to becoming self-supporting. Thus German currency reform is important to the American taxpayers, who have to finance heavy German relief programs, as well as to the Germans themselves.

The one regrettable feature of the plan is that it has accentuated the gulf between eastern and western Germany and has created an impossible situation in Berlin. That is an inevitable consequence of Russia's generally noncooperative attitude; it is nonetheless unfortunate, since it will raise barriers to trade between eastern and western Germany. Even so, it is infinitely better to do what can be done to rehabilitate part of Germany than to condemn all of Germany to indefinite dependence upon a demoralizing currency system.

Missing Plank

As a statement of principles, the Republican platform is, for the most part, strong, constructive and progressive. Its tone is skillfully pitched to harmonize with Lincoln's words: "As our case is new, so we must think anew and act anew." Although it abounds in generalities, as most platforms do, it could serve as a useful and reliable guide to a conscientious and forward-looking Administration. Its weakness lies in its silence as to how this admirable statement of principles would be carried into effect.

This weakness is accentuated when the record of the last Congress is contrasted with some of the more progressive planks in the platform. For example, the platform commits the Republican Party to slum reclamation and low-rental public housing along with aid to private housing. That means the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill which the House has just rejected. The platform promises eventual statehood to Hawaii, Alaska and Puerto Rico and self-government to the people of the District of Columbia in spite of the recent failure of the legislation designed to carry out three of these four pledges. Obviously the technique of the platform writers was to take full advantage of the record of Congress where it is good and to gloss over its shabby portions with new promises.

One other significant fact about the platform is its paucity of criticism. In contrast to GOP platforms of previous years, which have bristled with denunciation of the Administration in power, the 1948 declaration of principles takes only a few sideswipes at President Truman. For the first time in 16 years the Republicans are confidently on the offensive. So the platform writers produced a chart of principles rather than an indictment. Obviously this phenomenal rise of confidence makes it the more pertinent to ask how their program is to be carried out.

Some criticism has already arisen because the platform makers blue-penciled a pledge that the party would "implement with appropriations any commitment made by legislative enactment." The effort here, of course, was to repudiate the Taber revolt. Other sections of the platform, however, have the effect of repudiating Congressman Taber's effort to undermine the European Recovery Program by withholding funds. Legitimate objections may be raised, moreover, to any inflexible statement of policy that might be interpreted as meaning that Congress would always appropriate the maximum sum authorized by legislation it has approved. Much more to the point, in our opinion, would have been a plank aimed at coordinating Republican Party strength in Congress behind the Republican program if that party is entrusted with control of both branches of the Government.

The platform gives the Republicans in Congress credit for "the development of intelligent plans and party teamwork" for the day when both the political branches of the Government will be in GOP hands. But that teamwork has often been unnoticeable to ordinary citizens during the last year and a half. Clearly some means of bringing the best elements of the Republican Party to positions of responsibility in the House and of devising a party program, as distinguished from "must" bills hurled at Congress from the White House, will be needed if the fine pledges of the platform are to be regarded as a guide to action.

Human Rights

The International Declaration of Human Rights completed by the United Nations commission is an attempt to codify principles with respect to the individual's relationship to the state. Many of these principles are already observed in democratic societies. Indeed, the statement at first glance is so innocuous as to give a certain superficial validity to the Russian contention that the declaration is weak—that is, until one considers the utterly antithetical Soviet argument for inclusion of positive duties to "combat nazism and fascism."

Agreement between the Russian bloc and the Western delegates on most of the 28 items was not, of course, to be expected. Indeed, agreement as between totalitarian nations and those respecting the rights of the individual, as we understand them, would have entailed either such a whittling away of principles as to render them meaningless or another of those semantic exercises in which there is no true meeting of minds. It is inconceivable, for instance, that the Russians could support, without moral evasion, Article 13, which states that "No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his nationality or the right to change his nationality," or Article 16, which provides for private ownership of property without arbitrary denial, or Article 19, which recognizes the right of everyone to a government which conforms to the will of the people. Even so, there is some victory in the fact that Russia and her satellites did not wish to go on record as voting against the declaration, and instead merely abstained.

Although the Declaration of Human Rights lacks enforceability, except through moral pressure, it is more than just a utopian statement of goals. It represents two years of effort by the United Nations Commission on Human Rights under the able leadership of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt to set down those fundamental conditions which add up to the dignity of the individual. Provided that the declaration is accepted by the Economic and Social Council and later by the General Assembly, it will pave the way for later adoption of legally binding covenants covering a more limited area. The practical feasibility of such covenants demands more study, but at least the declaration of principles can serve to point up clearly the basic cleavage between the police state and freedom of the individual. In giving voice to common aspirations, the declaration of human rights is a first small step toward the better world for which people are slowly and often mutely striving.

Savings Bond Drive

When the Treasury campaign to stimulate sales of savings bonds was launched in mid-April Washington was assigned a sales quota of 22.5 million dollars. Up to June 19, with slightly less than a month to go, sales had totaled only 13.2 millions, or not quite 59 per cent of the assigned quota. This poor showing emphasizes the need for an intensified effort on the part of District civic organizations, banks and industries to bring home to the people of this community the advantages to them as well as to the country of actively supporting the Government's efforts to increase savings bonds sales.

The purchase of savings bonds brings into the Treasury money that can be used to retire bank-held public debt and assists the fight against inflation that is being carried on under the Treasury's debt-management program. Thus the buyers of these bonds enhance the security of all forms of investment and help to maintain the purchasing power of their wages and salaries. Moreover, every man and woman who saves money and invests it in Government bonds helps directly to curb inflation by reducing the amount of money in circulation that might otherwise be spent on consumer goods. At the same time bond buyers are creating for themselves a highly desirable kind of economic security in the form of a safe, attractive kind of investment that grows in value as their bonds approach maturity.

To be sure, the high cost of living has made inroads on savings in some instances and in other cases has cut down the amount of saved income available for investment. Nevertheless, blessed by virtually full employment at high wages, the working people of this country are still saving large sums and could increase those savings very considerably without undue sacrifice of present satisfactions. Now, if ever, is the time to cultivate the habit of systematic saving that yields dividends not only in dollars but also in a feeling of security that is of great value. Under payroll savings plans, millions of employes now allot a part of their weekly pay for the purchase of bonds. Banks also assist the purchase of bonds for depositors under the bond-a-month plan. During the present campaign more than two million individuals have been added to the list of regular savers, while 2500 additional companies have installed payroll savings plans for the benefit of their employes. Private concerns have also made generous donations for financing advertising campaigns. It is up to Washington to show its appreciation of the importance of this savings campaign by resolving to make its quota contribution 100 per cent or better.

Maine Line

How much of Representative Margaret Chase Smith's stunning victory in the Maine Republican senatorial primary was due to her sex would be hard to determine accurately. Certainly Down Easters must have taken some pride in the fact that they had a woman Representative with sufficient gumption to stand on her merits for a seat in the Senate. But politics is traditionally a man's game, and there is no reason to think that Maine voters dealt any special favor to Mrs. Smith merely because she was venturing on new ground. The logical conclusion is that they accorded her the nomination because they thought she was the best-qualified candidate to succeed to the post being vacated by Senator Wallace White.

The victory was the more remarkable because Mrs. Smith was competing against the incumbent Governor, Horace Hildreth, and a popular former Governor, Sumner Sewall, both of them well financed. That she was able to wrest the nomination from such formidable opposition is a tribute to the grass-roots effectiveness of her campaign. Without the benefit of any organized campaign fund, she toured the State intensively, speaking to audiences in the same personal manner with which she maintained liaison with her district during her eight years as Congresswoman. Her appeal, plus the demonstrated quality of service she has rendered, evidently carried more weight than the backstage maneuvering of Senator Brewster on behalf of Governor Hildreth.

The fact that a woman is slated to occupy a seat in the Senate (she will be the second woman elected to this honor) is in itself good news for those persons anxious to see a more equitable representation as between the sexes in American political life. But Mrs. Smith is no ordinary feminist and no ordinary politician. She has proved a first-rate public servant, whose independence of thought and progressive attitude in the House on a wide variety of matters, including, notably, unification of the armed services, have won her deserved respect. Maine voters have chosen wisely not only for their own immediate cause, but for the national welfare as well.

"Schools And Recreation"

I wish to commend The Washington Post for its splendid editorial of June 15, "Schools and Recreation."

I attended the second session of the hearings at which about 18 people presented their views to the committee on community use of buildings and grounds. As I recall there were nine speakers opposed to segregation. In the light of their own successful experiences they were confident that a nonsegregated policy in the use of school facilities during the summer recess would not only add to the efficiency of the recreation program, but also would contribute to the convenience and welfare of the community.

The other speakers, with the exception of Mr. Wender, chairman of the recreation board, represented citizens' associations, including the Federation of Citizens Associations. They all opposed any change in the present segregated policy, and with one exception were thoroughly satisfied with conditions as they are. They quoted some very impressive figures of 12,000, 160,000, 200,000 people for whom they said they were speaking, while indicating that the previous speakers represented small minority organizations.

Now I am not a member of a citizens' association but I have several friends who do belong to the associations of their neighborhoods. In one case my friend tells me that the membership in that association is about 120 people. In another case there is a mailing list of over 2000 people, but the actual paid-to-date membership is considerably less. In a third case it is even smaller. When business is transacted and policies are adopted, except for crucial issues like the Civil Rights report when 60 to 70 people were present, the number of people attending the meetings may be 30 to 40, or even fewer, obviously a tiny percentage of the number of people in the community.

There seems to be a vast discrepancy between the figures that my friends give me and those quoted at the hearings. Can it be that these citizens' associations claim to represent all the people in their geographical area whether or not they belong to the association, attend the meetings and take part in the voting? Can 50 or 100 people speak for 12,000?

However that may be, I wish that the Board of Education, in its consideration of the welfare of the children and the community, might catch the spirit of your editorial and be moved with sufficient courage and inspiration to take the leadership in making this change which would be another step toward a free and truly democratic community life.

Republicans Or Radicals?

Chairman Reece, ringmaster of the Republican circus at Philadelphia, started off the proceedings with the assertion that the Nation must choose between the Republicans and the Communists. "The New Deal," said Mr. Reece, "opened the door to radicals in Government."

The Republicans said something similar after Woodrow Wilson. They stood off the radicals with Harding and went back to normalcy. Hoover staved off the radicals. There were none in the Government. There were 33 million on the verge of starvation. "Prosperity was around the corner."

The 33 million helped to elect a radical. This radical produced a decent minimum wage; social security; guaranteed bank deposits; truth in securities; bread; jobs; freedom from want; freedom from fear. During the war the Truman committee helped to keep the gay profiteers in line. This was radical. So was price control.

Then came Reece and his contemporaries. They took away price control. "Free competition will restore prices to normal levels," they said. It did—roundsteak $1.05 a pound, formerly 27 cents; fish 65 cents a can, formerly 25 cents; butter 92 cents, formerly 35 cents, etc. "Only the radicals want price control."

Veterans wanted roofs over the heads of their children. The Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill was introduced to produce housing the veterans could afford. Reece, Halleck, Wolcott and the "nonradicals" gaffed it because it would have reduced the profits of the real estate men, whose particular graft it was. "Let the real estate men build the houses as they see fit and prices will reach their normal level," as they did in food and clothing. "There must be free competition. We can't ditch the real estate men who risk their capital. The veterans risked only their lives."

The sign on the office door of these men should read: "Reece, Martin, Halleck, Taber, Bricker and Wiley—Public Relations Counsel to Joseph Stalin and the USSR."

Tweedledee Choice

Millions and billions of words are being poured out as lavishly as military appropriations, over the air and on paper, about the quadrennial Punch and Judy show currently showing in Philadelphia, to which a man from Mars—and possibly a man from Moscow as well—would probably have only one bewildered comment: "A tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

If Henry Wallace makes no further contribution to our immature political scene, perhaps he may at least succeed in breaking up the fetish that the concept of "western democracy" is fully served by according to the nameless masses known as "the electorate" the priceless privilege of shoving into a ballot box a piece of paper indicating a choice between Tweedledee and Tweedledum.

Four-Time Winner

In your "Fifteen Exciting Years" of June 13 Shirley Povich refers to Jesse Owens as the first triple winner in Olympic history.

He is wrong. Another American, A. E. (Gus) Kraenzlein, a native of Michigan, scored four individual victories at the 1900 Olympic games in Paris, France: 60-meter run, 110-meter hurdles, 200-meter hurdles and the running broad jump.

This is personal knowledge; I was present in Paris and became acquainted with Gus Kraenzlein. I met him again when I stopped at his filling station on some cross-road in Upper Michigan in 1926.

"Understanding" With Russia

Anxious Americans hoping that someone will show them the road to peace may be interested in a recent declaration by Mr. Henry A. Wallace. Mr. Wallace testified on February 24, 1948, before the House of Representatives Foreign Relations Committee, and the following exchange took place between him and Congressman Colmer.

Colmer: "Mr. Wallace, if I understand your statement, the general tenure of your recommendations in this chaotic condition of the world is based on the idea of cooperation with Russia. Is that correct?"

Wallace: "We cannot have peace until we have an understanding with Russia. I said in the September 12, 1946, speech which occasioned my leaving the Administration, that the first thing we needed was peace with Russia. I still hold to that thesis."

Colmer: "I think we all agree that peace and cooperation with Russia is a very desirable objective. But, if I do understand your whole plan and theory, it is based on cooperation with Russia."

Wallace: "It is based on an understanding with Russia; yes, sir!"

Colmer: "Could you amplify that just a little, please, so we might understand one another? If we have an understanding we must have cooperation, and that is the second step, is it not?"

Wallace: "Not necessarily! England had an understanding with Russia in 1907 with regard to the Near East. It did not necessarily mean cooperation. I think we should have the same kind of understanding, covering a somewhat larger geographical area. As I say, Russia has every right to know just exactly the point beyond which, if she steps, there will be real trouble."

Colmer: "I certainly agree with you on that."

Wallace: "And in reverse fashion, as well."

Colmer: "I am thoroughly in accord with you on that, but I do not see how a mere understanding and not cooperation will get us any place. I think we have an understanding now. From my point of view, there is complete understanding between Russia and America, but there is total lack of cooperation."

Wallace: "I do not think we have an understanding."

The 1907 understanding to which Mr. Wallace refers was a treaty signed in St. Petersburg on August 31, 1907, by Sir Arthur Nicolson for the British Empire and Foreign Minister Isvolsky for Czarist Russia. It assigned the northern part of Persia to Russia and the southern part to England; it made Afghanistan a British protectorate; both sides promised to keep hands off Tibet. This was pure imperialistic grabbing at the expense of small nations.

Mr. Wallace now proposes a similar understanding over "a somewhat larger geographical area." He believes it would not necessarily lead to cooperation. Judging by recent and ancient spheres of influence agreements, it certainly would not.

The Soviets and their foreign friends are advocating a Stalin-Truman or Molotov-Marshall meeting. Since the antagonism between the U. S. A. and the U. S. S. R. arises only very indirectly from their attitude toward one another and much more directly from the interests of each in Germany, Austria, Greece, Turkey, Korea, China, Italy, etc., any bilateral American-Russian talks would have to try to find a way of sharing these countries and other areas between Russia and America.

From 1939 to date, the Kremlin has by word and deed shown a strong predisposition in favor of spheres of influence "understandings" of the kind envisaged by Mr. Wallace. They have enabled Russia to annex territory and extend her influence. An "understanding" between Russia and America about the regions in dispute between them would have the same effects. And since the root cause of the present world mess is the Soviets' postwar expansion this new Soviet aggrandizement could only increase the friction and therefore the danger of war.

The Soviet-Nazi pact of August, 1939, was a spheres of influence agreement. It gave Russia new territory and fixed the lines beyond which neither nation was to advance. Before long, however, they were quarreling about further expansion, and the end was war. The Yalta pacts of February, 1945, likewise constituted a spheres of influence arrangement. The three map-carving major powers determined the fate of small nations in the present world tension.

"Understandings" of the 1907 variety between two great powers either lead to an alliance to make war on a third country or to a war between themselves. An American-Russian "understanding" on Wallace's terms would be a threat to world peace, a rebuff to our democratic friends abroad and a betrayal of decency.

Specter At GOP Feast

By Malvina Lindsay

Pinch Of Living

MOST OF those participating in the political jamboree at Philadelphia this week may be too excited and victory-drunk to think about the size of the greenbacks they are tossing around for hotel rooms and even sandwiches. Besides, it's generally accepted that delegates and satellites at political conventions should expect to be gouged.

But hovering over the festivity is a specter—the pinch of living on the convention's unseen audience. Some at least of the political dervishes are reminded of it every time they pay a breakfast check. Some of the faithful may even recall that the same happy attitude of confidence hung over the convention that nominated Herbert Hoover in 1928—a time when another boom was running.

And after the shouting ends there waits the campaign, one that must be conducted during what many economists predict will be a steady rise in living costs from the record peak they have reached. Some authorities see a rise of 1 per cent a month, others even more, unless price resistance, or other unexpected factors, reverses the trend.

WHAT IS more, if predictions come true, prices will time their rise most inconsiderately for campaigners. Meat, key issue in 1946, is now rising in price. It may go higher this summer. A milk shortage, with resultant higher prices, is threatened for fall. Clothing prices, which have risen 3 per cent since January, are slated to go up in the fall—probably receiving encouragement from the spending of well-to-do wives who profited from the split income-tax windfall.

Coal and oil costs are expected to advance as the campaign goes into high gear. Rents will continue to inch upward. Price rises now being sought by various public utilities may add to the living costs of those who listen to campaign oratory. Makers of electric appliances and of carpets and rugs have announced price rises. Meanwhile families will continue to cash bonds, dig into savings, go into debt, to meet bills. Consumer credit will continue to rise—with its elongating shadow of an eventual payday.

Both parties are heatedly blaming the other for the high cost of living and much campaign wrangling along this line may be expected. It is the issue most likely to rouse politically apathetic housewives. In the 1946 election, many women voters, as opinion polls showed, shifted to the Republicans late in the campaign. The steak shortage was largely responsible. Now many of these women are again short of steak because they can't afford it. Whom will they hold responsible? To whom will they look for hope that they won't have to continue breaking $5 bills every time they enter a grocery?

EVEN THOUGH the Republican Party may not have to fight hard for victory this time, yet it must face in its campaign the big domestic issue of the day, inflation. This cannot be disposed of by charging it to Roosevelt's ghost or even to the Government spending made necessary by world events. What voters want to know is: "What's goin' to be done?"

Candidates may evade the issue by pledges to "cut costs of bureaucracy," "encourage the productive genius of the American people," "inculcate thrift," "promote consumer education." And they can follow the line of the party platform and "pledge an attack on the basic causes of inflation . . . by reduction of the cost of government . . . stimulation of production . . . sound currency . . . reduction of public debt . . . fiscal policies to provide increased incentives for production and thrift."

This of course will be one of the Democrats' main targets of attack as they will probably come out for more specific action on the price problem.

But the real jury on the parties' living cost stands will be the voters who have flattening pocketbooks. And they will continue to sit in judgment on performance after November 2. For the specter that hangs over the convention will most likely ride the elephant into the White House.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Trading From Weakness

PHILADELPHIA—Conditions were ripe in this convention for ending finally and decisively the struggle between the prewar and the postwar Republicans. Nothing would have been so useful to the party and to the country as to have overcome here and now, before the election, the fundamental division between the old and the new men.

LIPPMANN

If that is not done, it will not be because the forces represented by Martin, Bricker, and Green, Taft and Hoover are so strong but because Dewey, Stassen, Warren and Vandenberg, though in principle they belong together, have not been able to rise above factionalism and their personal likes and dislikes, ambitions and hesitations.

AMONG themselves these four men represent enough strength to nominate a consistent and appropriate ticket, and to take over the leadership of the new Administration and the control of the party. If they could unite here in Philadelphia, their candidates would be certain of election, and in office, vested with the immense power of a new Administration, they would be certain to exercise undisputed leadership in Congress for a considerable period of time.

Their potential strength is reflected in the platform which is good enough in itself but is most remarkable because the isolationists, who cannot possibly agree with all of it, have not thought it expedient to argue publicly against it. Their acquiescence does not, however, mean agreement, and there is little doubt that they have acquiesced because they see a better chance of winning out in the deals for candidates and for jobs than on the abstract issues of principle.

THEIR hopes of winning out in the end rest on the divisions among those who could, if united, easily defeat them. There is an ugly dispute between the Dewey and the Stassen headquarters. There has been some evidence of what could be a very nasty dispute between the supporters of Dewey and Vandenberg, a dispute which—it is conceivable—has been engineered by dark elements who are enemies of both of them.

The effect of these disputes is to make it difficult for the postwar men to compromise their differences. Therefore they have exaggerated them, and are seeking compromises outside their natural supporters. Because none thinks he can win by uniting with those who stand for the same things as he does, Dewey has been trying to reach out to the isolationists to override the Vandenberg-Stassen-Warren forces, and they have been reaching out to Taft and beyond Taft to "stop" Dewey. These deals, which could prevent a clear cut victory for the progressive postwar elements, which could give the Old Guard a new lease on life, results from weakness and division, from lack of bold and imaginative leadership among those who, were they united and could they rise to the occasion, have decisive victory within their grasp.

HOW this situation will be resolved I do not know how to predict. But it is evident that if it is not resolved well, a principal reason will be that there are no longer present elder statesmen of wisdom and influence. Mr. Hoover cannot play that necessary role because he is the prisoner of his own resentments. There is no one of the stature of Stimson who is above the battle and can exercise great moral authority.

If there were, he would resolve the conflict among Dewey, Stassen and Vandenberg — a thing that could readily be done if personal ambitions and feelings were not so strong. For the platform which rpresents their common views is in its essential provisions the joint work of Vandenberg, Dewey and Dulles. It would be a pity if men who agree so well on principle should remain divided, and thus jeopardize the effective realization of what they believe in.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Open Convention, Secret Deals

PHILADELPHIA.—The chief defects of our system of choosing a President are not those which immediately assault the casual observer. The blaring bands, the gaudy headquarters, the pretty girls passing out buttons, the general circus atmosphere — all this seems ill-matched with the solemnity of the decision to be taken.

Childs

But most of it must be put down to sheer exuberance and part of it is staged for the benefit of those who want to get their money's worth out of a trip to the convention. It has very little to do with the selection of a nominee.

What goes on behind the noisy sideshow is the serious business of making deals for delegates. It is this backstairs dealing that can hogtie the new President, committing his Administration to men and even to policies that may prove a crippling handicap. Thus the ambitious candidate takes on a long-term mortgage on his future in the White House.

Take a minor example of how it works. The chairman of the delegation from the grand old State of Mishawauka (the names are fictitious but the case is a real one) is a very rich and somewhat pompous gentleman with showy ambitions, named Ponsonby Tolliver. All through the famine years while the Democrats were in power Ponsonby and his equally rich wife have been helping to pay the Republican bills.

They have worked faithfully, going to grubby local meetings, attending all State and national conventions. Now this is the year of victory and Ponsonby and his determined wife are expecting some of the fruits thereof. In fact, they have come to Philadelphia glowing with anticipation.

BACK HOME their friends say, enviously, that the Tollivers already have their trunks packed for London. It is Ponsonby's not-so-secret ambition to be Ambassador to Britain. And if Mr. T. doesn't get that prize, Mrs. T.'s outraged cries will be heard from Nome to Miami.

The practical political fact is that Tolliver pretty much controls the Mishawauka delegation. The manager for Candidate X gets to him first and there is a solemn, handshaking promise that come January 23 the name of Ponsonby Tolliver will go to the Senate as the new Ambassador to the Court of St. James's.

In the older, simpler days—often known as the good old days—there were quite a few random plums that could be promised to the fat cats by discreet delegate brokers. Ambassadorial posts came under that classification.

But today an Ambassador to Britain should be a man of skill, understanding and broad knowledge, who is aware of the supreme importance of a workable relationship between the two countries. While Ponsonby would have been a handsome Ambassador in the good old days, it is highly doubtful that he possesses the qualifications for the present responsibility.

SUCH IS the kind of brokerage that has been going on in the scramble for delegates among the competing candidates in what is laughingly called an open convention. These deals are occurring in a frantic atmosphere in which it seems almost impossible to complete a telephone call or get above the street level in a hotel elevator—so terrific are the demands on the physical facilities of this jam-packed city and on the nerves and skill of the men trying to build up the necessary delegate strength.

Sending good old Ponsonby to London may not do too much harm. But there are other types of deals that can play hob with matters far more vital to the Nation.

When he was campaigning in Oregon, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey urged that the next Secretary of Interior be named from the West. In theory, this could be dandy since the West is most immediately and directly concerned with the problems of conservation.

It is not difficult, however, to imagine a deal for the Interiorship going to a Westerner committed to the powerful grazing interests. The broker for the eager candidate might pause and say: "If we promise you the Interior post in the Cabinet, will you agree to carry out sound conservation policies?"

But he is not likely to do that. Waiting just outside the door is another delegate broker for another eager candidate.

One of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg's chief handicaps is that he has had no managers making delegate deals for him. He has persistently refused to allow volunteer brokers to act for him. It is also true, of course, that this would greatly strengthen his position once he was in the White House. But that fact is not likely to impress the dealers in this frenetic Philadelphia game.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

How Has Dewey Done It?

Philadelphia, June 23.—The prosperous Deweyites, who rather lord it over this convention, would still do well not to count their ambassadorships before they are hatched. The grand alliance against Governor Dewey has at last been formed, very hastily and very late, by the Vandenberg underground and the Taft, Stassen and Warren factions. The alliance claims a minimum of 589 votes on the first ballot, which would at least be enough to prevent Dewey's immediate nomination.

The fact remains that the allies' margin of strength is so slender that they cannot even publicly unite on a single candidate, such as Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, who might rally other recruits. For if Senator Robert A. Taft tried, for example, to transfer his strength to Vandenberg, enough Taft delegates would desert to Dewey to put the New Yorker over. Dewey is so close to capturing the glittering prize that it is already time to consider how he has done it.

The real secret of Dewey's success has been a political organization as hard, as effective, and as tough as one of the huge modern machine presses which stamp out gigantic pieces of solid steel in one rapid, relentless motion.

At the center of the Dewey organization sits Dewey himself, surrounded by his singularly personal staff—Paul Lockwood, political secretary; Elliot Bell, brain truster and speech-drafter, and James Haggerty, jr., public relations man. But Dewey's task, after making the main decisions, is simply to be the candidate, and his staff's task is simply to see that as a candidate he shakes the right hands, tips the right winks, and says the right things. The job of promoting the candidate—the real work of organization — is confided to Herbert Brownell, Russell Sprague and Ed Jaeckle.

The three men are distinctly different—Brownell, a slender, rather school-teacher-looking lawyer-politician from New York City; Sprague, the overlord of Nassau County, and Jaeckle, the tough satrap of western New York. In the preconvention buildup, Brownell was strategist and handled the more elevated political contacts, while Sprague and Jaeckle dealt with those who wished to discuss pork and patronage in good, plain satisfying terms. They were lavishly financed, it should be added, by a considerable number of very rich men, most of them from New York. The chief passer of the hat seems to have been Harold Talbott, a director of the Chrysler Corp.

By unremitting effort, and by shrewdly turning to account Dewey's well-earned success in the Oregon primary, the Dewey organization came into Philadelphia with rather over 300 votes in their pockets. To get more, they then brought to bear all the old tried and true devices of delegate-hunting, along with several new ones.

The main method has, of course, been to mortgage the future. The law has long forbidden heirs to borrow money against inheritances; but in politics it is different. The most important deal made here has been that with the Grundy-Martin-Owlett faction of the Pennsylvania organization. The mere existence of this deal is angrily denied. Yet if Senator Martin does not turn up in a distinguished post, and if he and his friends, Grundy and Owlett, are not allowed to distribute the 100,000-odd Federal jobs in Pennsylvania, one can confidently predict that they will be very embittered men. The effect of this deal is to reinforce the antidiluvian Pennsylvania Republicans, at the very moment when a modern Republican Party was about to be created here by Gov. James Duff.

Other deals have also been made, too numerous to mention, although Governors Bradford of Massachusetts and Driscoll of New Jersey should certainly be listed among the expectant. As for patronage of a lesser order, every hotel lobby seethes with men already wearing their Dewey buttons with the faintly self-important air appropriate in an Ambassador, Undersecretary of this or that, or Collector of Internal Revenue.

To be sure, all candidates mortgage the future to some extent; it is the scale of the Dewey operations which makes them stand out. Again, all candidates assign representatives to ride herd on important delegations, and keep the headquarters in close touch with developments. But the Dewey organization stands out by completeness, having someone to ride herd on every single delegation with as much as one additional vote to offer. Finally, all candidates engage in rumormongering when rumors can be tactically useful. But the Dewey organization stands out by mass production. Somewhere in their headquarters at the Bellevue-Stratford, they have concealed a complete rumor factory from which new stories have poured out every hour, of a break for Dewey in this quarter, a new ally in that quarter, or the collapse of an enemy somewhere else. They have literally manufactured the conversation of this whole convention.

In short, if one is to judge President Dewey by the performance of candidate Dewey, competence, efficiency and a certain ruthlessness will be the keynotse of his Administration.

Murky Convention Atmosphere 'Frigid' to GWU Professor

Dean Elmer Louis Kayser, facing a predominantly Republican luncheon audience of more than 300, yesterday swung with a not-too-gentle tongue at the Republican convention.

The professor of history at George Washington University, addressing the twenty-sixth annual convention of the Round Table International, poked fun at the "frigidity" of the Philadelphia conclave.

Then, he confieded:

"Political conventions make me feel very unhappy at times."

He said he could "well understand the perplexity of mind that comes over our European friends when they contemplate the workings of democracy—with a small d."

Kayser, who had left the Philadelphia convention briefly to address the group here at Hotel Washington, said foreigners are unable to understand why "thousands of citizens should get together in a murky atmosphere—mentally and atmospherically—to select a new President.

Foreign policy, he said, will have to "take a ride for a long time"—until the end of the preelection period of "suspended animation." Calling this "unfortunate," he emphasized that many important issues should be acted upon now—including Korea, control of the Danube, Germany and the Palestine question.

The Washington convention will run through Friday.

U. S. Determined to Block Reds' Advance, Halleck Says

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 23 (AP).—A warning that the United States will not tolerate the further spread of communism in the world was sounded today by the Republican leader of the House of Representatives, Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

A roar of applause from the small crowd that attended the morning session of the GOP National Convention greeted Halleck's statement:

"We declare for all to hear and for Mr. Stalin to heed that thus far and no farther shall they go. We will not tolerate its (communism's) threat to our future nor to the security of the world."

Halleck was among the leading possibilities discussed today for the vice presidential spot if Gov. Thomas E. Dewey heads the ticket.

"In foreign affairs, as in domestic affairs," he said, "our people are paying a high price for the incompetence, bungling and vacillations of the New Deal-Democratic Administrations, past and present."

Senator Harry P. Cain of Washington, delivering the last formal address of the convention, warned the Republicans that while they can win in 1948 they can lose four years later "without half trying."

Cain told the delegates:

"Should we Republicans fail in the next several years to live up to our platform . . . we shall have brought lasting and great harm to our Nation and the world.

"Our failure would so stimulate the world revolution which surrounds us that freedom and free institutions might well disappear forever."

Newspaper Chain Head Has Heart Attack

Philadelphia, June 23 (AP).—Louis H. Brush of Salem, Ohio, 77-year-old board chairman of the Brush-Moore newspapers, suffered a heart attack today.

He was taken to Hahnemann Hospital. Roy Moore, president of the newspaper chain, said his associate's illness was grave.

600 Wives Poses U. N. Problem

Lake Success, N. Y., June 23 (U.P.).—The United Nations Trusteeship Council left unanswered today the question of what to do about the 80-year-old Fon of Bikom, reported to have 600 wives, mostly teen-age girls, in his African stronghold in the British Cameroons.

Iraqi Delegate Awni Khalidi, only bachelor member of the council, objected to considering the Fon's activities by Christian standards.

"If the Fon cannot discover the futility of his actions in God's good time," Khalidi said, "perhaps he will do so later. If he does not, then he doesn't need our help."

All of the Fon's 600 wives were said to disdain clothes.

Britain, which administers the African territory, declared the Fon actually had only 110 wives, 44 inherited from previous rulers.

Khaliki asked the council inquire only as to why the Fon liked marriage so much. He warned that the council might lose if it put the case before the human rights commission.

"The commission might find out it is a human right of a man to have as many wives as he wants," Khaliki said. "They might find it was like a man here in New York who decided to take a lot of women out to dinner."

Tells How to Secure A Mastery of English Quickly

An interesting new booklet offered free to men and women who want to secure a real mastery of the English language tells of a "fool-proof" method for studying English usage without attending classes. The plan, as described in this little book, has been worked out by Grenville Kleiser, who has helped thousands of students to a better command of English.

According to the publishers, this world authority uses no involved rules of grammar or rhetoric, but presents a simple, straightforward, inspiring method that secures real results in very short time. Thousands of users of this method, they say, have gained increased power to express themselves in fluent, convincing clear-cut English and so have improved their possibilities of social and business advantages.

To acquaint more men and women with the advantages of improving their understanding of English, the publishers, Funk and Wagnalls Company, have printed full details of this speedy, pleasant method in a booklet which they will send to anyone who requests it. The address is Funk and Wagnalls Company, Dept. 261, 153 East 24th Street, New York 10, New York. A penny postcard will do. There is no charge for the booklet.

It's Here—

"The book that serves to make the Kinsey statistics come alive, giving them a heart-beat and close touch with living people."

HERE IS A FULL DISCUSSION OF THE KINSEY REPORT'S FINDINGS—IN EASY-TO-UNDERSTAND LANGUAGE. A few months ago, a bombshell was hurled at the American people. The revolutionary Kinsey Report on SEXUAL BEHAVIOR IN THE HUMAN MALE was published. Its revelations about the sex habits of American males soon pushed it high on the best-seller lists. It is a favorite subject for discussion the country over. Now—to explain what the facts in the Kinsey Report mean to our private and social lives—two eminent writers bring you this new book.

In clear, non-scientific terms they examine the Kinsey Report and "bring home" to you its real meaning. Get this book, now!

Retail Sales Seen 7% Off Here in 1947

By S. Oliver Goodman

This will come as a surprise, so brace yourself. Despite the common belief that Washington retail sales set a new all-time high last year, there's one source that reports local retail sales in 1947 were well under 1946.

The publication Sales Management in its annual survey estimates that Washington retail sales last year aggregated $904,435,000 as compared with $967,162,000 in 1946, or a drop of about 7 per cent.

The decline was less in the Washington metropolitan area, which the publication interprets as including the nearby Maryland counties of Montgomery and Prince Georges and the nearby Virginia counties of Arlington and Fairfax. Alexandria is not included. For the metropolitan area retail sales in 1947 were estimated at $1,147,891,000 against $1,148,902,000 in 1946.

Commenting on the national picture, Editor Philip Salisbury of Sales Management said: "The lead in Quality of Market Index goes to the District of Columbia with 139 (meaning 39 per cent better than the national average), followed by Montana, 128; Nevada, 128; California, 124; Illinois, 116; South Dakota, 116; Washington State, 116; Idaho, 115; New York, 114; Connecticut, 112; Colorado, 111.

He also noted that the state leader in per family net income is the District of Columbia with $6661 (for 1947), followed by Nevada $6081, South Dakota $5406, Montana 5249, Connecticut $5192, Illinois $5109, Iowa $5052, North Dakota 24975, New Jersey $4961, Idaho $4916, Rhode Island $4653.

Population 834,000 (9th); families 236,700; net effective buying income $1,576,557,000 (8th); net effective buying income per family $6661 (10th); total retail sales $904,435,000 (12th); wholesale sales $1,324,560,000 (18th); food store sales $236,163,000 (10th); general merchandise store sales $158,525,000 (13th); drug store sales $44,655,000 (6th).

Population, 1,326,000; families, 369,000; retail sales, $1,147,891,000; gross effective buying income, $2,382,804,000; net effective buying income, $2,039,698,000; net effective buying income per family, $5528.

SLOW ADVANCE: Climbing to 58.7 per cent of the $22,500,000 quota, Washington sales of savings bonds in the current Security Loan campaign reached $13,213,145 as of June 19. Thomas J. Groom, chairman of the District Savings Bond Division, expressed concern over the lag in sales of F and G bonds, "which have reached a total of only $3,939,170 or 47.3 per cent of quota."

BECOMES PARTNER: Charles Carroll Morgan, veteran of 29 years in the investment field here, has been admitted as a special partner in Robert C. Jones & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange. He and Col. Robert C. Jones were associated together in the brokerage business from 1921 until 1930. Morgan helped establish and became the first president of the Bond Club of Washington. Since March, 1946, he has been Washington representative of the investment counsel firm of Scudder, Stevens & Clark. During the war he served four years in the Navy.

INSTALLATION: Charles F. Suter, president-elect, and other new officers of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association will be installed at a luncheon today in the Mayflower. Also on the program are a talk by Edward L. Reiley and presentation of quality award certificates. Reiley is chairman of the education committee of the National Life underwriter training council.

NEW MANAGER: Parke Wright 3d is new district manager for National Airlines at Washington. For the past two years he served as National's district traffic manager in New York. The airline started service at Washington in February and has offices at 1625 K st. nw. Wright, a native of Buffalo, was a Flying Fortress pilot during the war. He was a prisoner of war in Germany for nine months until liberated by the Russians in May, 1945. In his new post here he will supervise both traffic and operations.

Business Outlook

GOP Plunges Off Deep End, Favored Thrift and Industry

By J. A. Livingston

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—"I've been reading Punch," announced the Red Queen, "and I can assure you the British will never go along with the Republican Party's platform."

Alice pounded the gavel. "You're out of order. We're here to talk about the economic planks in the platform, not to build a bridge across the sea."

The Carpenter rose. His face was ruddy, his stance statuesque, and he looked surprisingly like Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.), chairman of the GOP platform committee.

Livingston

"At last, we've got a platform. We worked day and night and now it's sandpapered so smooth a baby could walk on it in bare feet and not get a splinter."

"It's so fine, you can see through it," commented the Red Queen.

"It's the most economical platform we've had in four years," said the Carpenter.

"You mean you've balanced the budget?"

"No, we cut down the verbiage from 3550 words in '44 to 2850. That's a reduction of 20 per cent."

"But you didn't change the content," said the White Queen.

"Oh, no, we wouldn't dare do that," replied the Carpenter.

"The platform's inflated," charged the Red Queen. "The Democrats used only 1375 words in 1944, less than half as many as we. That's why so many newspapermen liked Roosevelt. He realized that there was a newsprint shortage. By keeping the platform short, he left that much extra space for columnists like Walter Lippmann, Marquis Childs, Tom Stokes, David Lawrence and, of course, Mrs. Roosevelt."

"BUT OURS is such a resonant platform," defended the White Queen. "Such lovely, sweet sounding nothings are in it. Even the foreign plank sounds familiar! We promise to 'protect the future against the errors of a Democratic Administration'."

"How do you do that?" asked the Lobster.

The Mad Hatter answered. As he talked he hopped from one foot to the next. "You get in a jet plane that flies faster than sound and listen to the news over the radio. Since you're always hearing what happens before it happens, that gives you time to send a message to the Republican President so that he can keep what's going to happen from happening."

Alice rapped again for order, recognized the Walrus, who fixed his spectacles firmly on his nose. "One plank is sheer genius," he said. "Let me read it to you: 'We pledge . . . fiscal policies to provide increased incentive for production and thrift'."

"Those are contradictions in terms," protested the Red Queen. "If you have increased production, then prices go down, people lose jobs, and they have no money to save. There can be no thrift. Not in this country."

"Precisely what I'm saying," said the Walrus. "Who but a genius could contradict himself so quickly in the same sentence?"

THE CARPENTER gave the Red Queen a New England look—kindly, suave, but nonetheless crushing. "I disagree," he argued. "When prices go down the dollar becomes worth more, therefore there's greater incentive to save. The more dollars you have the greater the rainy-day value of each."

"Smart, smart," muttered the Mad Hatter. "Then if there's a depression, we can say we prepared for it by recommending saving."

"Nonsense," said the Red Queen. "Only the other day in Punch, I read an article, 'Advice to the Young.' A father says to his son: 'My boy, you are going out into the world and I want to warn you against two things—industry and thrift.'"

Alice got red in the face pounding her gavel. "Out of order. We're for production and thrift, and that's final."

"You'll never sell that to the American people," protested the Red Queen. "If a man in this country is industrious and makes a lot of money, why the labor unions call him a profiteer, a rapscallion, and a Republican. And if a man saves up a lot of money, so that he can live contentedly in his old age, then the rising cost of living—the lower value of the dollar—filches his nest-egg away."

THE MAD HATTER jumped up and down, caught Alice's attention, said: "That's 100% American. I move the platform be adopted. After all, you can't take it with you."

The Red Queen refused to let the motion pass unanimously. Whereupon, Alice said, measuring every word, "Before closing the meeting, I want to thank all of you for exercising great restraint. Not one of you accused the Red Queen of being Punch-drunk. I know how sorely you were tempted."

Retail Prices Set New High, Led by Meat

Retail prices hit a new high mark on May 15, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

The cost of goods and services for moderate-income families advanced seven tenth of 1 per cent from April 15, BLS said.

Food prices, in spite of lower prices paid farmers, were six tenths of 1 per cent above the January peak, just before the break in commodity prices. Food now costs 12.4 per cent more than a year ago; 44.8 per cent more than in June 1946, and 125.6 per cent more than in August, 1939.

The rise in the price of meats was responsible for the increase in food costs, BLS reported. The only items the report mentioned as lower than the month before were onions, sugar, dairy products (only slightly) and house furnishings, including radio - phonographs, vacuum cleaners and electric refrigerators.

Higher coal prices sent costs of fuel, electricity and ice up, and new rent laws permitted an increase in the average rents in the country.

The report showed that food in Washington that cost $1 in 1935-39 now costs $2.09.7. All items have gone up in the 10 years 66.7 per cent.

Railroad Retirement Benefits Bill Signed

President Truman signed into law yesterday a measure raising retirement benefits under the Railroad Retirement Act by 20 per cent.

The new act cuts the railroads' contribution to the unemployment insurance fund, the reduction to be effective as long as the fund stays above 450 million dollars. The cut is from the present 3 per cent to ½ of 1 per cent. On April 30 the fund stood at $928,274,000.

U. S. S. Toledo to Sail On Good Will Tour

Honolulu, June 23 (AP).—The heavy cruiser Toledo will make a good-will tour in August to the Far East, the Navy announced today.

Accompanied by the destroyers Chevalier and Higbee, the ship will visit Singapore August 6-7, Trincomalee August 12-13, Karachi August 18-23, and Bombay August 25-30. Rear Admiral Roscoe F. Good will command the cruise force.

AFL, CIO, Others Ask GOP to Act on Housing

The AFL, CIO and 24 other organizations representing labor, religious, farm and other groups announced yesterday they had wired national Republican officials at Philadelphia urging that Congress be called into special session to act on the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill.

Argentine Move

Peso Drops In Dollar Exchange

New York, June 23 (AP).—A major reshuffling of Argentina's exchange rates and import rules sent the peso down today in the New York market, and the American dollar up in Buenos Aires.

Some New York banks quoted the peso nominally at 20¾ to 21 cents, compared with 24.95 yesterday. Others did not quote the peso today.

The Argentine government decreed a new rate of five pesos to the dollar on proceeds from sale of Argentine manufactured exports. On other goods the rate remained 3.35 to the dollar. By mid-afternoon Argentine banks were paying 4.85 pesos for the dollar, against 4 pesos yesterday.

The Argentine decrees also lifted restrictions on payment abroad of profits made by foreign companies, held for the last year at from 5 to 12 per cent.

Trade sources said this might free millions of dollars American companies have been unable to take from the country.

Most restrictions on importation of British, French, Italian, Dutch, Belgian and Spanish goods into Argentina were also lifted.

The Buenos Aires stock exchange reacted sharply and stock prices advanced an average of two pesos in the first two hours of trading.

Reds Blasting Key China City

Nanking, China, June 23 (U.P.)—Supported by heavy artillery, 50,000 Communist troops tonight blasted strategic Kupeikow in Jehol Province, key town on the government supply route from north China to central Manchuria.

Admitting the situation was serious, government leaders called a special meeting of the legislative Yuan (parliament) tomorrow to review the civil war. Defense Minister Gen. Ho Ying-chin was instructed to report.

Reports to the Defense Ministry claimed the Reds were evacuating Kaifeng, capital of Honan Province, which they won earlier this week.

Truce Uneasy In Indonesia

Lake Success, June 23 (AP).—The United Nations Good Offices Committee reported today little progress has been made toward a long-term settlement of Dutch-Indonesian differences.

The three-nation committee reported to the Security Council that, outside the actual cessation of hostilities, the Indonesian truce agreement "has been largely a disappointment."

British Troops Unload Ships

London, June 23 (NYHT).—British troops under Labor cabinet orders today commenced unloading food ships tied up in the Thames for 10 days by a dock workers' strike.

A back-to-work movement failed. About 2500 workers returned, leaving 18,000 still on strike.

Dockers in other British ports have not struck in sympathy.

Leaders of the unofficial strike tonight sent out peace feelers to Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee. These suggested as a basis for immediate negotiations the removal of the "unjust sentences" on 11 dockers disciplined for refusing to handle a cargo of zinc oxide without additional pay.

School Head Resigns

Danville, Va., June 23 (AP).—G. L. H. Johnson, superintendent of Danville schools since 1925, has resigned because of his health. The school board announced that O. T. Bonner, assistant superintendent, would take over the work.

11 Housebreakings Laid To 3 Silver Spring Boys

A six-weeks looting spree which netted three Silver Spring juveniles valuables and cash estimated at $685 from 11 housebreakings was revealed yesterday by Montgomery County Police.

The youths, two 15 and one 14, were turned to Montgomery County Juvenile Court. Pvts. Coy Morefield and Clyde Ward of the Silver Spring substation said the spree ended when the trio was arrested in a stolen truck.

Maryland Tobacco

Upper Marlboro, Md., June 23 (AP).—Little change occurred in prices paid for southern Maryland tobacco auctioned today, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Maryland State Department of Markets.

Net auction sales Tuesday totaled 561,948 pounds at an average of $43.65 a hundred pounds. This brought the season's net auction sales to 15,956,054 at an average of $43.40.

Tips—Fair cherry red $39, down $1; fair green $11.75, down 50 cents.

Policy Cash-ins Show Upsurge

New York, June 23 (AP).—Americans are surrendering life insurance for cash at a rate almost 23 per cent faster than last year.

Relentlessly rising prices are mainly responsible for the change, information disclosed by the Institute of Life Insurance today indicated.

Many people are cashing in policies to buy automobiles or to pay off bank loans, one insurance man said.

Others over-extended themselves in the war years, buying too much insurance. Now that inflation has wiped out their margin-for-living, they can no longer handle the heavy premiums, he added.

If the rate of surrenders in the first four months of 1948 continues through the year, almost 461 million dollars will be paid out this year, the institute said.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 23 (AP).—With enough rain to last for a long time falling over the grain belt, the two basic cereals moved in opposite directions on the Board of Trade today. Wheat went up and corn went down. Oats were lower with corn.

Although the reaction of grains to the moisture seemed contradictory, there was good logic behind it. Some damage to wheat probably resulted from torrential pourings and, in any case, harvesting and shipment to market would be delayed. The Midwestern rain was needed by corn.

Prices moved up and down quite a bit during the day, and trading was relatively active. Wheat closed ½-¾ higher, July 2.33⅛@2.33½; corn was 1 to 2 cents lower, July 2.22⅛@2.22⅜; oats were ⅛-⅜ lower, July 95⅛@95½, and soybeans were 2 cents higher, July 4.16.

GE Union Accepts 8 Pct. Wage Hike

New York, June 23 (AP).—A spokesman for the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America said today its members have accepted an 8 per cent wage increase offer from the General Electric Co.

The agreement—equivalent of a 9 to 15 cents an hour wage increase—affects 125,000 union members in GE plants throughout the country.

Beer License Refused Alexandria Pool Room

The Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has refused to renew a beer license for Lyles Billiard Parlor in Alexandria on complaint the establishment admitted "undesirable elements."

The action, announced yesterday by Alexandria Inspector W. W. Duncan, jr., followed hearings both in Alexandria and Richmond.

Duncan also announced the American Legion clubhouse in Quantico had been fined $25 and had its alcoholic beverage license suspended 15 days by the State board on a charge of keeping slot machines and untaxed beer on the premises.

Southeast D. C. To Stage Parade Friday Evening

With "American Youth" as its theme, the annual Greater Southeast Washington Parade, featuring 75 decorated floats and six bands, is set for Friday evening.

Sponsored by the Southeast Businessmen's Association and other citizens in the southeast section, the parade will include the Metropolitan Police Band, Metropolitan Police Boys Club Band, Washington Boys Club Band, Elks Boys Club Band, Anacostia High School Band and student cadets, Washington Gaslight Band, Southeast schoolboy safety patrols, American Legion Honor Gurd, a Fire Department unit, a detail from the Navy recruiting office and others.

The parade, to last about 2½ hours, will start at 8 p. m. at Texas and Pennsylvania aves. se. and continue more than a mile to Pennsylvania ave. and Prout

One on the Aisle—

Musical Comedy Offers Neither

By Richard L. Coe

"UP IN CENTRAL PARK," at Keith's, is one of those dreary pictures that make one feel the climate of California is conducive to insanity.

Here you have the film version of a successful musical comedy now starring two popular young singers, Deanna Durbin and Dick Haymes. Despite a meager book, "Up in Central Park" was long-lived because of its sprightly dances and Sigmund Romberg music.

So what happens when they put it on the screen? They give you the plot, gallons of it and hint at such mildly reminiscent tunes as "Close as the Pages in a Book," "The Fireman's Bride" and "The Big Backyard" but never, never come straight out with them. Boss Tweed, who was a burly type in real life and as he was done in the original show by Noah Beery, now is played by the nicely wicked Vincent Price.

Had the great minds in charge of the screening managed to substitute even a reasonably amusing scrit, this might have made some sense for, heaven knows, musical comedies such as this arent sacrosanct. But Producer Karl Tunberg, who also wrote the script, has come up only with a mass of cliches—interspersed with wordy panegyrics to our gur-ate and nob-le country—and it's mighty fierce listening.

Tough on Deanna

All this is indeed too bad, for Miss Durbin's screen charm is too affectionate a commodity to be thus weighted. She is asked to play an Irish immigrant who captivates the great Boss Tweed and her brogue has all the Irish quality of Mister Benny's Rochester. Playing one of those movie characters imbued with operatic ambition, Miss Durbin offers "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio" from "La Forza del Destino." It is a dull peace, my lord.

All this is the more peculiar since the extensive credits—introducing the film with goodish background and hints of music—boast the names of most of the people who performed similar duties for the original. Helen Tamiris is permitted one sequence for her dances, Howard Bay's Currier and Ives finish has little sweep and "When She Walks in the Room" and "Carousel in the Park" are the only songs that get much attention.

Though Albert Sharpe, the original of "Finian's Rainbow" makes his bow as Deanna's father, his material is flat and stale. "Up in Central Park" is a musical comedy which has neither music or comedy, only a vast reach of dullness.

CONNIE B. GAY, keeping busy with his Saturday night Constitution Hall hillbilly shows, will be even busier this Saturday when, along with the "Grand Ole Opry" stars, he makes a one-hour mountain music appearance at Hecht's record department . . . The time will be 3 o'clock and on tap will be Clyde Moody, Hank Penny, Grandpa Jones and Cowboy Copas.

BOOKING DEPT.: Today's openings include "All My Sons," at the Palace; "The Big City," at the Capitol and "Hazard" at the Warner . . . "Magnificent Obsession" gets a one-day revival Friday at the Apex . . . Saturday the Hippodrome will present another of those well-spoken-of Italian films, "Furia."

"UP IN CENTRAL PARK." Universal-International release. Produced and written for the screen by Karl Tunberg from the musical comedy with music by Sigmund Romberg and lyrics by Dorothy Fields. Dances by Helen Tamiris. Directed by William A. Seiter. Production designed by Howard Bay. Photographed by Milton Krasner. At Keith's.

'Miss America' to Marry Doctor Saturday

Memphis, Tenn., June 23 (AP).—A marriage license was issued yesterday to "Miss America," 22-year-old Barbara Jo Walker, and Dr. John Vernon Hummel, 24.

They plan to be married Saturday night in a lavish church ceremony before 2000 invited guests.

From White Sulphur Springs To Olney Took Play 21 Years

NOEL COWARD, who wrote "The Marquise" at White Suphur Springs 21 years ago, would have been amused, possibly perplexed, at the happy welcome his comedy received from the Olney opening-nighters.

The play is a gentle pistache of Eighteenth Century life, an incident in the crowded hours of a wise, foolish lady of fashion. As played by Lillian Gish, Ralph Clanton, John Williams and their Olney associates it is an agreeable, elegantly outfitted performance that shows few signs of the high comedy the master was to unleash in later years. The first nighters treated Miss Gish to an ovation worthy of Mrs. Siddons and laughed without restraint at her battle for young love versus the older generation.

What makes "The Marquise" of particular interest to the theater-minded is that, although it came after his first hit, "The Vortex," it's not been played in these parts before.

In his autobiography, "Present Indicative," Coward makes a few references to his comedy, although in "Who's Who" he ignores it and has refused to have it published. He was in America 21 years ago for the opening of "This Was a Man" and after that strenuous premiere, went down to the White for a two-week rest.

"I really should have rested completely," recalls Noel, "but I had promised Marie Tempest that I would write a comedy for her and as an idea had been kicking about inside me for some time I huffed and puffed and poured out nervous energy which I should have been conserving and finally completed a pleasant little eighteenth century joke called "The Marquise." The last act was a bit weak but I thought on the whole it would make a good evening's entertainment."

Later, he records, it was "beautifully played" by Miss Tempest' W. Graham Browne and Fran Cellier in London and had "a big success." Until Miss Gish dusted it off for its summer theater vogue, only Billie Burke had played it on this side and then in New York. It is now bruited about that a musical version is in the works for Maggie Teyte.

For Miss Gish it is a vehicle of some charm; her revelations of the Marquise's fruitful past among the best-dressed men of Europe are amusing. As Miss Gish has pointed out, the role of the merrier of her two lovers suggests the Coward of the '20's; the more solemn chap suggests Coward as he has become, in his intimates' eyes, today.

Another matter Coward fans will note is his touch at depicting servants. Neil Fitzgerald makes a great deal of this early Coward minion, underplaying him deliciously, uttering all those wise, fruity sayings that one expects from Coward's butlers, footmen and maids.

Making their final appearances of the Olney summer, Mary MacArthur and Ralph Clanton are outstanding. Miss MacArthur has a sweetness in her ingenue style and does all that can be done with a traditional role; Clanton has a good deal of fun with what few Coward epigrams the comedy contains.

$820,000 Loss In 1947 Cited For Hospitals

Nonprofit hospitals within the Greater Washington area last year operated at a total deficit "in the neighborhood of $820,000," Charles D. Drayton, attorney and civic leader, reported yesterday.

"The prospect for 1948 is equally dark," declared Drayton, in an address yesterday before the Washington Lions Club, at Hotel Mayflower.

The 1947 losses, declared Drayton, were met individually by the hospitals, with some borrowing from banks, and others dipping into reserve or special funds.

"Such funds are now practically exhausted," declared Drayton. "Other hospitals have been forced to cut important services."

The $820,000 figure cited by the speaker, a member of the Hospital Council of the Greater Area, represents the first public report of total operating losses incurred by nonprofit hospitals here. On May 11, the council issued a "preliminary report" to show that five area hospitals sustained 1947 losses totaling $418,695. These included Garfield, Children's, Alexandria, Suburban and Providence.

Drayton, president of the board of Children's Hospital for 10 of the 14 years he served on that board, cited rising costs as the main cause of losses. As a solution, he advocated that nonprofit hospitals "must become a community responsibility to a greater degree than in the past."

"If these hospitals are forced to curtail the amount of free care they can give, the medically indigent must be cared for in tax-supported municipal institutions already staggering under a terrific burden."

P-TA Leaders Open 5-Day Session Monday

A five-day workshop for leaders of the Parent-Teacher movement in five States and the District of Columbia is scheduled to open on the University of Maryland campus at College Park Monday.

Representatives of Parent-Teacher Association units are expected from Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, New Jersey, and the District. Mrs. Robert G. Doty, president of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, will be presiding officer.

Taking Pictures

Here's That Argument Again: Can Photography Be Art?

"Reflection" is a mirror picture by P. F. Lambert, 2940 South Dinwiddie st., Arlington. The subject is Mrs. William Roberts. It's another 4x5 Speed Graphic shot on Super Panchro Press type B at one-fifth second, F/5.6 with blue floodlight illumination

By Ollie Atkins

IS PHOTOGRAPHY ART?

Few artists of the paint and brush will admit that a photographic reproduction is art. Most galleries, the National Gallery included, will not show photographs.

One thing is certain—that both painting and photography are created in the minds of men and transformed into human recognition through material media—the oil, pigments and brushes or emulsions, chemicals and cameras.

Basically you might assume that the dictionary definition of art as the application of skill and taste to the production of beauty would classify what is and is not art.

Our personal contention is that, although photography can be art, just a small proportion of the millions of pictures made rise into this exalted classification.

Even in some of the better salons, I have seen photographs no more deserving of being called art than the efforts of a painter who hides his sorry work behind the chesterfield or in the attic.

Since photography is so young in comparison with painting, it is quite natural it should have to fight for a place in the sun. The Museum of Modern Art in New York City has improved photography's place with the appointment of Edward Steichen, who keeps a constant display of photo art on display there. At this level we find photography equal with modern painting and craftsmanship.

Eventually photography will be on equal ground with painting as a true art. No single group prejudiced against it will hold it down, for public acceptance is the real judge of what is or isn't craftsmanship and beautiful.

ANSCO UV and conversion filters for Ansco color film are now available in glass-mounted form. The initial line of the new glass-mounted filters will for the present be limited to those most widely used with Ansco color film.

In summertime skies spotted with clouds which make the sunlight flash on and off take your exposure for regular sunlight condition present and should you need to make a picture when an average cloud is shading the sun just open lens one stop.

Editor Jack M. Kleiman in the "Lensletter" of the Photographic Seminar of the Department of Agriculture Graduate School writes, "Summer is picture-taking time. Let's not be armchair photographers. They aren't worth their weight in expired color film. Criticizing other people's prints is useful up to a point, but you can't make better pictures without first making bad ones."

The American Standards Association has taken color picture transparency viewers under consideration with the aim of standardizing the color temperature of the viewers. This project may result in the development of viewers which will make all color pictures look identical so far as viewing light is concerned.

It seems this week marks two important developments in photography. Sixty years ago George Eastman introduced the No. 1 Kodak. The ancestor of all the Kodak line was sold ready-loaded for 100 exposures. Cost of camera and film was $25. Today a good box camera sells for about one-fourth as much.

And it's the first 25 years for home movies during which movie making on 8mm and 16mm films has grown to an internationally popular hobby and an important aid to education, science, business and industry.

Caves No Good As Shelters in Atomic War

The public has a "greatly exaggerated" idea of the value of caves in atomic warfare, William E. Davies of the United States Army Map Service, declared here yesterday.

Actually, said Davies, some of the Nation's caves may be of practical value for the storage of important documents, scientific instruments and such things. But as shelters for humans, he said, most caverns are "both inaccessible and generally uninhabitable."

Davies, nationally-known speleologist (cave scientist), of Arlington, Va., addressed a closing day session of the eighth annual meeting of the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping, at Hotel Statler.

The public, said Davies, gets "a false idea" about caves by visiting "the commercialized ones." In contrast, speleologists find them "muddy, poorly ventilated and dangerous." Some consist of tunnels, with vertical drops as deep as 600 feet, he said. None offers easy progress, he declared, adding that the floors are generally choked with huge boulders that have dropped from the ceilings.

No Snakes Live in Caves

As to animal inhabitants, Davies said one can expect to find most any animal in a cave excepting snakes, with rats and bats predominating. The Nation's largest caves seldom run more than 1000 feet long, though one measuring 2200 feet is currently being surveyed in West Virginia, said the speleologist.

One practical value of caves, said the speaker, is in storage of natural gas. Several in Southwestern United States, he pointed out, have already been sealed off and used for such purpose.

Other speakers yesterday included Comdr. Elliott B. Roberts, U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, who talked on surveying problems due to vagaries of the magnetic compass; Harry A. Marmer, USCGS, who spoke on methods of surveying mean sea level for precise geophysical data and Dr. John A. O'Keefe, Army Map Service, who explained the use of scientific observations of eclipses of the sun in surveying and mapping.

Wright Remains President

The congress reelected Marshall S. Wright, 2613 S. Kent st., Arlington, as president. He is technical assistant to the chief of the office of plant and operations, office of the Secretary, Department of Agriculture. Prof. George H. Harding, engineering professor at Ohio State University, was chosen vice president.

Directors elected include Gerald Fitzgerald, U. S. Geological Survey; Gordon B. Littlepage, U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey; Burton Adkinson, Library of Congress; K. T. Adams, USCGS; Admiral Paul A. Smith, USCGS; Robert Wing, Sacramento, Calif., engineer.

Also: S. Bauer, Cleveland, Ohio, surveyor; Capt. F. Gorden, USCGS; F. H. Peters, Surveyor General of Canada; Prof. John Dodds, Iowa State University; Carl Keufell, Hoboken, N. J., official of a scientific instruments company, and Dr. O. M. Miller, American Geographic Society.

New Record Low Mortality Rate Seen for 1948

New York, June 23 (AP). — A new record low mortality rate among life insurance policyholders in the United States may be set this year, the Institute of Life Insurance reported today.

The upturn in the death rate in the early months of the year has been reversed, it said, and last year's low mortality record may be topped by second half trends.

Several death causes set new record lows in the first half of 1948. Tuberculosis deaths are now 40 per cent under 10 years ago. Communicable diseases of childhood take only one fifth the toll of 10 years ago. The influenza death rate is one third that of a decade ago.

However, heart disease and cancer deaths showed increases and kept the over-all rate from setting a new low record in the first half, the institute said.

Virginia Registration Books Close July 3

Richmond, Va., June 23 (AP)—Registration books throughout the State must be closed on July 3, Levin Nock Davis, secretary of the State Board of Elections, reminded local registrars today.

Virginia election laws require that registration books be closed for a 30-day period prior to a primary election. Books will be reopened August 4, and will remain open until 30 days before the November general election.

Rabbis Hit Britain's Pro-Arab Policy

Kansas City, June 23 (AP).—The central conference of American rabbis today urged abandonment of what they termed Britain's pro-Arab policy in Palestine.

The 250 rabbis attending the National Convention also urged United States financial aid to Israel and suggested that "such financial aid to England under the United States European recovery program as would support the war against Israel be withheld."

Md. Papers Oppose Court News Curbs

Support for Maryland press associations in their announced fight against proposed restrictions on crime and court news came yesterday from many of the State's weekly newspapers.

Leading the unsolicited endorsements was one telegram to the Prince Georges County Press Association from Oscar L. Morris, editor of the Salisbury Times, Salisbury, Md., daily, urging "vigorous" opposition to Rule 9 of the proposed rules of practice of the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Rule 9, target of the press associations' fight, provides among other things that "issuance by the police, the State's attorney, counsel for defense, or any person having official connection with the case" of details concerning a defendant in a criminal case, either before or after indictment, is prohibited under penalty of contempt of court proceedings.

Would Bar Forecasting

The proposed rule would also prohibit "forecasting future course of action" by any official including defense counsel, and prohibits photographing defendants without their consent.

Even as the newsmen girded for the fight they received at least partial support from the Maryland State's Attorneys Association. J. Bernard Wells, State's Attorney for Baltimore and president of the association, said the association has gone on record asking deletion of some of the portions to which the newsmen object.

Terming Section 3 of Rule 9 as "too general," he said the association has proposed deletion of the phrase "or other matter bearing on the issues to be tried." Such change would limit imposition of secrecy to disclosures of "statements relative to the conduct of the accused, and statements or admissions made by the accused."

The association, Wells said, further asked that Section 4 of Rule 9 "be deleted in its entirety." It is this section that forbids "forecasting future course of action," which newsmen say can be interpreted as prohibiting defense counsel from telling them, for example, that the defendant will plead innocent. Under such a rule, said the newsmen, lawyers and court officials would be forbidden to tell reporters a case was even scheduled for trial.

Posed As War Hero

Keller Gets Probation in Records Case

"The world does not hate you . . . now get out and make a better man of yourself."

With those words—and a year's probation—a Federal judge in Chicago yesterday freed John A. Keller, jr., one time Pentagon clerk who "made" himself an Air Force lieutenant by falsifying Government records.

Keller

Keller, a wartime 4-F because of an atrophied arm, formerly lived in Arlington while employed at the Pentagon. With access to official files, said the Army, he filled out papers showing him to be a second lieutenant with parachuting raid service overseas, numerous citations, and even hospital discharges.

Army officials said this was discovered after he left the Pentagon when he demanded to know why he had not been promoted from a second to a first lieutenant.

Md. Tobacco To Get 44-Cent 'Floor' Jan. 1.

An increase in the Federal support price of Maryland tobacco will become effective January 1 as the result of a "rider" to the compromise farm bill passed during the closing hours of Congress.

Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.) of Upper Marlboro, who prepared the rider, said yesterday it would provide a "floor" support price of 44 cents a pound next year, instead of the 38 cents now in effect.

Maryland tobacco farmers received a price slightly better than the 44-cent figure this year, Sasscer said, and the newly approved support price, he said, will serve as a guarantee against any major price drop next year.

Under the price parity bill, farmers have the opeion of selling their crops to the Government, or borrowing Federal funds on the crops, at a figure based on the 44-cent price. Present parities were extended to 1950.

The Maryland rider, spearheaded in Congress by Sasscer, also had the support of Senators Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.), Millard W. Tydings (D., Md.) and Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.).

Frogs' Cool Croaks Soothe Hot Tokyo

Tokyo, Japan, June 23 (U.P.).—A radio program which features cool, croaking, comfortable frogs is giving the sweltering residents of Tokyo relief from the heat this summer.

On the edge of a pond near Sendai some genius of the Japanese Broadcasting Co. has set up a microphone.

Since the Japanese radio is government-controlled, there are no commercials. Just the singing frogs," which are in a placid pond 200 miles to the north.

Americans loosen their neckties, Japanese loosen their kimonos, everybody forgets about the heat and the rubble and the crowded shacks. They sit back, close their eyes and listen.

There used to be more poetry on the program than there is now, but the listeners objected. They just wanted to hear the frogs and forget about their troubles for 15 minutes.

Good Templars Convene

Death Toll From Flash Flood In Oklahoma Totals at Least 8

Hydro, Okla., June 23 (AP).—At least eight persons are known dead in a flash flood that struck this west central Oklahoma town during the night.

Deer Creek flooded U. S. highway 66 after an unofficial 18 inches of rain fell.

A State highway patrolman reported three persons missing. Hundrers of acres are under water in scattered areas throughout Oklahoma.

Rampaging streams also are out of their banks in Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri after 24 hours of heavy rain.

One of the dead was a passenger in a Greyhound bus which, with 100 cars, was marooned on U. S. highway 66 near here. The bus driver said the other 43 passengers have been accounted for.

Towns affected by the flood were Kingfisher, Clinton, Geary, Watonga and Depew.

Budget Surplus Tops 8 Billions

The Government's budget surplus has topped eight billion dollars for the first time in nearly 160 years of United States history.

Treasury records released yesterday showed the surplus—which is the excess of income over spending—reached $8,251,054,534.55 on June 21. Responsible for the upsurge were heavy receipts of quarterly income tax payments that fell due June 15.

Before the fiscal year ends June 30, however, the surplus is expected to go down nearer to President Truman's January estimate of $7,482,000,000. Quarterly tax receipt tallying will be completed by then and heavy year-end expenses will show up on the balance sheets.

Repeating: Louis, Walcott Settle It Tonight—If . . .

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, JUNE 23.—It was a grim, stony-faced Joe Louis who weighed in at 213½ pounds today for his fight with Jersey Joe Walcott, two hours before the announcement that New York's wettest month in 77 years had caused a postponement until tomorrow.

POVICH

Walcott followed Louis into the enclosure in the Garden's lower lobby where the scales were set up, and champion and challenger presented a contrast that couldn't be missed by reporters. Jersey Joe, not at all flustered, wore a wide Uncle Tom-ish grin and was chewing gum in complete lack of awe at his proximity to the man who would try to knock him dead that night or the next. They didn't bother to shake hands. Walcott did wave his hand in a cheery greeting to the champ and got only a slight nod in return. That didn't appear to bother Jersey Joe who continued to flash his toothy smile at the folks he recognized. He was at ease, Louis was tense and eager to get the unimportant ritual of the weights over with.

It might have been that Louis was a bit self-conscious, too. He was presenting the rare spectacle of a champion with a mouse under his eye even before the fight.

It was a souvenir of his last sparring session, and his handlers had tried to paint it out.

IT WAS THE FIRST championship weighing in, incidentally, in which a presidential candidate ever got into the act. Indirectly Governor Dewey, with his hands full—of delegates—at Philadelphia, was represented. State Boxing Commissioner Eddie Eagan, Dewey's appointee, officiated at the scales wearing the biggest Dewey button you ever did see. "It's a lousy ad," said Mushky Jackson, "there ain't a delegate in this crowd.

At the scales there was palaver about the application of grease by Walcott's handlers in the last bout and the Louis camp had complained that the Walcott crowd should be warned about grease. Eagan did warn Jersey Joe. "Grease only facial cuts, not on the body," said Eagan. "They orter grease Walcott's back," said Mushky, an avowed Louis supporter, "then they can drag him off easy when Joe knocks him out."

Eagan had a couple of more things to say. He told 'em this was to be a clean fight and the commission expected 'em to be sportsmen. "Remember," he said, "you're both representing a race that has made more progress in the last 150 years than any other people." There was a gasp from the literate-minded when Rhodes scholar, Yale-Harvard man Eagan, forgetting his comparative, and meaning to say "may the better man win," actually came up with "may the best man win."

THERE WAS NOTHING friendly toward Walcott in Louis' manner. There's no doubt that Walcott has taken rank with Max Schmeling as the only other man Louis actually hates. The champion long ago was miffed by his own sorry showing against Jersey Joe in their last bout, and the indignity of being dumped on the floor twice, but he could have forgiven Walcott for that.

What he dislikes about Jersey Joe most is something else.

Out of Walcott's training camp repeatedly has come the charge that Louis is a "dumb fighter." Jersey Joe may have been motivated more by his own forthrightness of talk than by any desire to insult Louis, but that's the tack he has taken. And Louis is hopping mad at him. Louis is a proud guy, has pride in his intellect, and doesn't like to be called dumb, even as you and I.

No secret is the fact that Louis wants to demolish Walcott quickly, even as he lit into Schmeling in the first round. Louis wants vindication. He wants to put a loud-mouth in his place. He wants to walk out of the ring still champion, and hush the folks who say he has slowed up and he wants Walcott above all others as his victim. He wants Walcott as the tenth man he has knocked out the second time around.

BUT AS OF TODAY, before the fight, the whole picture is somewhat incredible. No man to fight Louis since he became champion 11 years ago was ever held at such short odds. The price against Walcott has drifted to 11 to 5, maybe 2 to 1 at ring time. Louis never imagined that the likes of Walcott, who may be even more than the 34 he claims to be, would be conceded such a high chance to lick him.

When he was in the Army in 1943, Louis ventured the prediction that "the fellow who takes my title is right now some 17- or 18-year-old kid whose gonna catch me when I'm too old." But tomorrow night Louis will find himself in there against a fellow older than he is, who was fighting before Louis had on a pair of gloves, and was supposedly washed up eight years ago. Walcott hasn't won Louis' title yet, but the high possibility is there.

'Theft of Property'

Admission Fee to Television Showing of Big Fight Banned

Philadelphia, June 23 (AP).—Common Pleas Court today halted a hotel and theater from charging admission to unlicensed television reception of the heavyweight championship fight.

The ruling was the first by courts here affecting television reception under such circumstances.

President Judge McDevitt said such shows, without permission of the owners of the television rights are "a theft of property from the person who bought the television rights."

Boston Judge Concurs

Boston, June 25 (AP).—The promoter of a boxing match has a property right in televising it, Superior Court Judge Frank J. Donahue has ruled.

Judge Donahue today denied a motion by three Boston men to vacate a temporary restraining order he issued yesterday to halt them from showing a televised broadcast of the Louis-Walcott match at the "Springtime Follies"—a show at Mechanics Building in Boston.

Hogan, Demaret Favored Today

Toledo, Ohio, June 23 (U.P.).—Sixteen of the top professional golfers in the Nation fired final tune-up rounds today for the eleventh annual Inverness Invitational Best-Ball Tournament which opens tomorrow.

Blazin' Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., winner of the tournament trail's two top prizes—the National Open and PGA tournaments—along with his partner Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., were favored to win the title they captured as a team three times previously.

Their big competition was expected to come from the Bobby Locke-Ed Furgol combine which became a hot dark horse contender after Locke's recent sensational win in the Chicago Victory Open.

Griffs Win, 2-1, on Hit By Wooten

By Morris Siegel,
Post Reporter

Detroit, June 23.—Junior Wooten, Washington's favorite son from Pelzer, S. C., made the straight Nat ticket a winning one when he declared himself with a game-winning single in the sixth that beat the Tigers, 2-1.

Wooten's hit, one of only four Paul Trout allowed, escorted Gil Coan in from third with the tally that broke a 1-1 deadlock in the sixth and produced the third straight success for the about-face Nats.

Although the Bengals, who now have dropped five in a row, made only six hits themselves, it required four Nat pitchers to finally subdue them.

The victory was credited to Earl Harrist, the third of the quartet Kuhel employed, but he wasn't around when the game was over. Forrest Thompson, making his second relief appearance in two days, finally corraled the Tigers, but it took a running catch by Ed Stewart to enable him to do it.

Stewart Saves It

Thompson entered the scene in the ninth after Tom Ferrick had loaded the bases on two singles and a walk. Right-hand batter Jimmy Outlaw, swinging for George Vico, slashed a 2-2 pitch into rightfield which Stewart chased and finally speared one-handed to wind up the game.

All three of the game's runs were unearned, the Tigers kicking in a pair in a defensive display reminding of Washington's performance last night. Al Kozar, guilty of his third error in two days, paved the way for the Detroit score in the fourth.

Kozar fumbled Pat Mullin's easy roller to put Starter Walter Masterson in a hole he couldn't pitch himself out of. A sacrifice and three walks later Detroit had a run and Masterson, who walked six, was out of the game. Harrist made his appearance at this point and he needed only one pitch to extricate himself from the jam Masterson left him in.

Detroit Strands 15

Eddie Mayo accepted his first delivery and shot it to Johnny Sullivan who channeled it via Jake Early and Mickey Vernon for a double play. It was one of three times the Tigers, who left 15 stranded, loaded the bases and did practically nothing about it.

The Nats tied it up in the fifth when Dick Wakefield dropped Eddie Yost's fly in left, permitting Harrist, who had forced Early, to score from first.

Paul Campbell, making an infrequent appearance at first base for Detroit, set up the tie-breaking run in the sixth. After Coan had singled, Vernon rolled to Campbell who threw into left field trying to force Coan, Coan speeding to third.

Stagger Through

Wooten sliced Trout's second pitch into right to break the deadlock and the procession of Nat pitchers clung to their one-run command, only after repulsing several king-sized threats.

In the seventh, for instance, Harrist pitched singles to Wakefield and Hoot Evers with two away and he was excused in favor of Ferrick. Ferrick walked home-run hitter Pat Mullin to load the sacks, but got pinch batter Vic Wertz on an easy grounder to Vernon.

Ferrick enjoyed a 1-2-3 eighth, but the Tigers growled again in the ninth and Tom finally yielded the job to Thompson, who muzzled them.

Yanks Win, 5-1, On Henrich's Grand Slam

Cleveland, June 23 (AP).—Tommy Henrich blasted a grand slam home run in the eleventh inning tonight to break up a pitching duel between New York's Ed Lopat and Don Black to give the Yankees a 5-1 victory over the league-leading Cleveland Indians before 65,797 Lakefront Stadium fans.

Black and Lopat battled to a 1-1 tie until Johnny Lindell opened New York's half of the eleventh with a single to left.

Lindell moved to second and George Stirnweiss was safe on a fielder's choice when Black's throw was too late to force Lindell. Lopat moved the runners along with a sacrifice.

Hil Rizzuto was purposely passed, filling the bases for a possible double play. But the Cleveland strategy backfired when Henrich belted his homer over the right-field fence to plate four runs.

Wm. & Mary Net Team Advances At Los Angeles

Los Angeles, June 23 (AP).—Victor Seixas of the University of North Carolina stroked his way into the quarter-finals of the National Intercollegiate Tennis Championships today and William and Mary sounded a threat to retain team honors.

Seixas dropped the first set to Gene Garrett of UCLA but rallied to play the best tennis seen thus far to win the match, 2—6, 6—2, 6—3, 6—3.

William and Mary's two title threats, Fred Kovaleski and Bernard Bartzen, marched through the round-of-16 to score two points in the battle for team point honors.

Kovaleski, seeded No. 6, encountered trouble from unseeded Arnold Saul of the University of Southern California, but won 2—6, 6—2, 6—2, 4—6, 6—2. Bartzen, No. 7 in the seedings, was never threatened by Harold Burrows of Virginia and won, 6—1, 6—3, 6—2.

The Cold Facts

Joe Louis Has 24 for 24 in 11 Years; Walcott 28 Out of 37

In the 11 years of campaigning since he won the world heavyweight championship in 1937, Joe Louis has chalked up a remarkable record, far better than that of challenger Jersey Joe Walcott.

Louis has never lost a bout as champion, his solitary defeat since he turned professional in 1934 being a 12-round knockout by Max Schmeling in 1936. Walcott, on the other hand, is down for 37 bouts since 1937, 28 of them victories and the other nine setbacks.

(The 1948 edition of Nat Fleischer's Ring Record Book lists Walcott's bouts only since late 1936, when the heavyweight contender dropped a 10-round decision to Billy Ketchell. Thus the Walcott records available almost match those of Louis since he won the championship from Jim Braddock in the eighth round of their title bout in Chicago August 30, 1937. Except for the small matter of wins and losses, that is.)

Polly Riley, Babe Win in Western; Will Meet Today

Chicago, June 23 (AP).—Fort Worth's Polly Riley did some torrid Texas sharp-shootin' over gusty Skycrest Country Club today to trim a State running mate, Bettye White of Dallas, 6 and 5. Her victory was the most convincing second-round triumph in the Women's Western Open Golf Tourney.

What well may be the meet's "title" match is expected in tomorrow's quarterfinal round when Miss Riley tangles with Babe Didrikson Zaharias of Grossinger Country Club, Ferndale, N. Y. Babe eliminated a former jinx, Mary McMillin of Green Bay, Wis., 5 and 4, in today's play.

Two other upper bracket matches today resulted in mild upsets. Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., bounced out the tourney medalist, Margaret Gunther of Memphis, Tenn., 4 and 3. Helen Dettweiler, formerly of Washington, D. C., now of Indio, Calif., outlasted Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Tex., 1 up in a showdown between two professionals.

Laurel's 3d Card Features Long Shots

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Form, or what the novices established as form, prevailed in the feature race at Laurel Raceway last night, but four long shots provided the biggest prices of the young meeting.

The crowd of 7200 saw the top upset scored in the sixth race when Rose Majesty, out of the money in seven previous starts this year, was driven home by Jimmy Myer to the sweet tune of $75.80.

Other surprises included English Abbey in the second ($45.40); Miss Ginger Guy in the third ($28.80) and Earl's Hildegard in the fifth ($26.20).

The crowd kept up a relentless march to the windows despite the hot, sticky evening and bet a total of $127,269.

In the feature, Theron Hanover, trailing in the fourth spot at the half-way mark, made a determined move around the three leaders and crossed the wire a half-lenth in front of Scott Cash, who had led most of the way.

Driver Dumped

Miss Ginger Guy's triumph in the third was the more remarkable in that she unceremoniously dumped Driver Bill Schinn in the post parade and went around the track almost twice before she was apprehended. Evidently, the additional workout was what she needed.

Veteran Jim Britt, Dinnon, S. C., won the second with his English Abbey, a reformed pacer, to complete a $105.40 daily double. Bill Myer's favored Leo Hanover took the first half. Britt's 8-year-old gelding, a former trotter, hadn't started in two years.

The fifth race was marred by a spectacular spill in front of the stand when Angus P. C. Grattan somersaulted at the start and had to be destroyed.

Fairfax VFW nosed out Fort Belvoir Legion, 5-4, and Lorton Legion defeated Fairfax Legion, 2-1, last night in Fairfax Veterans League games. They were played at Fort Belvoir and Fairfax, respectively.

Rain May Postpone It Again; Odds Drop to 11-5

New York, June 23 (AP).—Showers forced a one-day postponement of Joe Louis' twenty-fifth heavyweight title defense today and fresh Jersey Joe Walcott money continued to slice the betting odds.

Louis now is a 5-to-11 favorite with indications it might be only 1 to 2 by ring time tomorrow night (9 o'clock EST) in the Yankee Stadium.

Showers Predicted Today, Tomorrow

New York, June 23 (AP).—A forecast of showers and thundershowers for both Thursday and Friday threatens to delay further the Joe Louis-Jersey Joe Walcott heavyweight championship fight.

The Weather Bureau's 9:30 p. m. (EST) prediction for the next two days was: "Partly cloudy, warm and humid, with afternoon showers and thundershowers."

Louis, deadpan as usual, scaled 213½ pounds, the heaviest of his career, at the noon weigh-in at Madison Square Garden. Jersey Joe, smiling for the photographers, hit 194¾ pounds.

Louis "Condition" Better

Not a word was exchanged between the two 34-year-old Joes, either during the weigh-in or the physical examination by Dr. Vincent Nardiello, New York State Athletic Commission physician. Dr. Nardiello found Louis "physically and mentally better than in December" for his first fight with Jersey Joe. Walcott's condition was labeled "excellent."

In judging the fighters' reaction to the layoff, it was recalled that Louis was knocked out by Max Schmeling for his first and only loss in his pro career after a postponement in 1936. Then again in 1937 in his first title defense, the Tommy Farr bout was put off four days and the challenger went the limit.

Dr. Nardiello, who examined Louis at the time of the first Schmeling fight, recalled that Joe was not able to sleep the night before the bout. He said he did not think either would be seriously affected by this rainout.

The champ was hustled back to his Pompton Lakes, N. J., training base after the decision to postpone. He was to work out lightly tonight, punching the heavy bag and doing calisthenics, returning to New York tomorrow afternoon.

Under New York State rules there will be no weigh-in tomorrow but the fighters are supposed to hit the scales again if there is a 48-hour postponement. They may waive that second weigh-in by agreement of the managers if Chairman Eddie Eagan of the boxing commission agrees.

When he walked into the crowded Garden lobby under the full glare of the movie photographers' lights, Walcott showed no signs of being aware of Louis' return-bout jinx. The fate of Billy Conn, Max Schmeling, Bob Pastor and the others apparently meant nothing to him.

"V" For Victory

Waving to the cameramen, Walcott stuck up four fingers in a sort of double V-for victory salute. It was taken to mean that he expected to win in four. If so, that's more than he has said throughout his training grind when he steadfastly refused to name a round except to say that he expected to win.

Eagan warned both fighters that there must be no external use of grease on the arms or body. The Louis camp has announced it would protest against such use by Walcott.

There were no last minute changes in plans. Dan Florio and his brother Nick and Joey Allen will be in Walcott's corner while Louis will be seconded by Manny Seamon, Larry Amadee and George Nicholson. Marshall Miles, Louis' manager, will watch activities in Walcott's corner and Joe Webster, who at one-time managed Walcott, will be in the opposite corner. As of now, there is no licensed manager of Walcott.

They'll Still Fight, But . . .

Science Goes Out on the Limb for Joe Louis, Probably by K. O.—Unless Walcott Wins

New York, June 23.—Champion Joe Louis should keep his title by a knockout of Joe Walcott.

By scientific methods of study and prediction, that is the greatest probability in the return match of the two foes. And Louis' best probability for a knockout is in the early rounds. It could come later on.

The second probability is for a decision, with the chances about even for Louis or Walcott to win the vote.

There is only an outside chance that Walcott will score a knockout.

The postponement due to rain should not have any real effect on either fighter psychologically. If anything, a one-day delay would increase the amount of anger and irritation that each man feels toward the other. The delay would be more likely to influence the members of each man's team, making them more apprehensive. A

New Sports Head

Hoyas Revise Staff, Sign Mike Palm

Georgetown University, shooting for a high place among the country's football schools, yesterday announced sweeping changes and additions designed to strengthen its coaching staff.

Named as faculty director of athletics, replacing the Rev. Matthew Kane, who remains the school's treasurer, will be the Rev. Robert Parsons, former dean of the university and an Army chaplain during World War II.

Assisting Father Parsons in his new post will be the Rev. Cornelius Herlihy, for several years the prefect of discipline and athletic director at Gonzaga High School.

Mike Palm, former member of the New York Giants' coaching staff, will take over as varsity backfield coach. He fills one of the two jobs until now held by Head Coach Jack Hagerty, who will now confine himself to an over-all supervision of the coaching.

Retained in their present capacities will be "Mush" Dubofsky, line coach, and George Murtaugh, end coach of the varsity.

With the decision of Freshman Coach Joe McFadden to stick to his law practice, the Hoyas have signed Mac Cara of Central Catholic High School in Steubenville, Ohio, as freshman mentor. The former Pittsburgh Steeler player will be assisted by three former Hoya stars—Ollie Oja, George Perpich and Bill Wixted.

Mare Takes 1st Victory In 5 Starts

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 23.—W. H. Leachman's Our Bid, a cast-off from the Brookmeade Stable, found opposition she could whip today and ran away with the Eugene J. Olmi Purse, named for the Alexandria, Va., sportsman. Out of the money in four previous tries this year, the 5-year-old mare came into the wire two lengths in advance of A. C. Stanfield's Iron Penny with R. N. Boerner's Breakable Miss third in the field of eight.

Our Bid earned a $7.40 mutuel for her many backers after Breakable Miss had been installed the favorite by a crowd of 5000. In addition, the mare was presented with a new bridle and Jockey Ray Arduini of Washington took down, in addition to his winning fee, an award of $25.

Fast Time

The winning daughter of Psychic Bid and Glorious Hour was clocked in 1:46 4/5, only a second and a fraction over the track record for a mile and one-sixteenth held by Boston Man. The racing strip was graded overnight and was in fast condition.

It was simply a case of chasing Our Bid with no catchers. Arduini took her to the front and it was all over but the pay-off. However, both Iron Penny and Breakable Miss had excuses. The latter almost ran to the outside fence at the first turn and the latter had to be taken up sharply when in close quarters directly after the start.

Anyon Rides Well

One of the day's better rides was the work of Jockey Eddie Anyon, a capable boy who should get more work hereabouts. He was aboard J. Myers' Hopeful Play in the third race and brought the 8-year-old from far back to hang a camera defeat on S. J. Corrar's Love My Gal. G. A. Saportas' by Bardy's Baby was third. Hopeful Play paid $12.40.

In the W. E. Wood Purse, the day's secondary feature, E. C. Gott, jr.'s Her Highness was an easy winner in the fine time of :49, only two fifths of a second over the track mark shared by Flying Raid, Annie's Dream and Miss Prime. Ridden by Jockey Jimmy Baird, Her Highness paid $7. This was Baird's twentieth winner of the meeting.

D. C. Lands 5 on Olympic Canoe Team

The United States Olympic Committee yesterday officially approved five Washington athletes on the team of eight to represent the United States in canoeing at the Olympics in London this summer.

These five are the only local men whose names appear on any of the Olympic teams representing the United States.

They are Raymond G. (Ken) Clark, jr., and John Eiseman of the Potomac Boat Club, who will compete in both the 1000- and 10,000-meter tandem double blade races; Thomas F. Horton, also of the Potomac Boat Club, in the 1000-meter one-man double blade event; Frank B. Havens of the Washington Canoe Club, who will match blades with the world's best in both the 1000- and 10,000-meter one-man single blade races, and his brother, William D. Havens, jr., whose all-around ability caused his selection as a substitute in any of the events.

The other members of the team are Ernest Reidel of the Pendleton Canoe Club, New York, who competes in the 10,000-meter one-man double-blade race, and the team of Steve Lysak and Steve Macknowski of the Yonkers Canoe Club, New York, who will compete in both the 1000- and 10,000-meter tandem single-blade races.

The five representatives from Washington all served in the armed forces during World War II, and are members of Quentin Roosevelt Post of the American Legion.

Clark, Eiseman and Horton are students at Maryland University, Frank Havens at Montgomery Junior College, and his brother Bill is a physical education major at George Washington University.

Tech High Club Presents Awards

One of the "little Oscars" went to Dr. Charles E. Bish, who yesterday completed his first year as principal at Tech. Others went to boys voted by club members as most outstanding in the four major sports during the past year. Recipients were Richard (Flea) Fletcher, football; Paul Pacini, basketball; Romano Mascietti, baseball, and Harmon Brown, track.

Jack's, McLean Win Softball Games

Fred Kramer pitched a 10-strikeout shutout in the District Recreation Department's West End softball league yesterday as Jack's Cafe defeated Georgetown Haberdashery, 2-0, on the Georgetown Playground.

In another league game McLean Gardens edged out Post No. 40, 4-3, as Pitcher Tracey allowed but four hits and whiffed eight.

Jim Castiglia Slams Homer, Four for Four

Jim Castiglia, the Redskins' star fullback, showed yesterday that he can clout a baseball, too. He whacked out four hits in four trips and paced Sunnybrook Tavern to a 6-3 win over Thrifty Liquors in a Washington Post-Industrial League game on the West Ellipse.

Castiglia socked two singles, a double and a home run, drew a walk, drove in three runs and scored two himself to enjoy his best day at bat since he played for the Philadelphia Athletics a few years ago. The win was the first in two second-half games for Sunnybrook.

Yanks Win At Wimbledon

By Gayle Talbot

London, June 23 (AP). — Two crack men's doubles teams from the United States got off to impressive starts in the Wimbledon tennis championships today, partly recompensing the huge crowd which eddied through the plant for an otherwise dull program.

Frankie Parker of Los Angeles and his lanky young partner, Bob Falkenburg of Hollywood, showed why they were seeded No. 1 as they scorched to a 6-1, 6-3, 6-0 victory over the South African pair, Bill Muller and Walter Musgrove.

Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla., and Tom Brown of San Francisco, seeded second in the doubles competition, eliminated the strong Yugoslav Davis Cup team of Drago Mitic and Josip Pallada, 9-7, 6-3, 6-4.

The only men's pair seen in action which looked like it might trouble either of the American teams was that of John Bromwich and Frank Sedgman of Australia, which won a smooth 6—4, 6—1, 6—2 decision over the veteran Dutch Davic Cuppers, Ivo Rinkel and Dr. Hans Van Swol.

Grays Face Elites Tonight

The Washington Homestead Grays, sporting a 2½ game lead in the Negro National League pennant race, entertain the second-place Baltimore Elite Giants tonight at 8:30 at Griffith Stadium.

Several newcomers will be in the Grays' lineup, including Shortstop Ervin Fowlkes, formerly of the Detroit Senators, and Catcher Luther Clifford. These two, both 24-years old, have sparked the Grays to their 20-9 record.

Peiritsch Slams Four Home Runs

Pete Peiritsch and his Quantico Marine teammates had a field day yesterday in a doubleheader at Quantico. Pete hit four home runs, a double and a single as Quantico beat Air Transport Command, 20-8, and Bethesda Medical Center, 20-7.

Three of Peiritsch's homers and a single came in the first game, and they drove in eight runs. His homer and double in the nightcap accounted for four more. In the first game, Pete received home run support for Bob Johnson, Les Veigel and Adam Gruga, who hit one each. Quantico home run hitters in the second game were Chuck Samis and Don Neidringhaus.

Blessed Sacrement Wins CYO Loop Title

Pitcher Billy Smith bounced into a fielder's choice in the tenth inning to drive home the run which gave St. Gabriel's a 5-4 victory over Blessed Sacrament and the championship of the 115-pound class Catholic Youth Organization league in a game played at Georgetown Prep.

Smith hurled a four-hitter for the winners and fanned 19 although his mates booted home four runs with their five errors. Bing Milstead scored the final run for the winners. He had reached first on an error and advanced to third on Pat Walker's single.

Court Holds Gibbs in Old Murder Case

John Gibbs, alias Rochelle Young, 50, laborer, lost his District Court fight yesterday and must return to North Carolina for trial on a 22-year-old first-degree murder charge.

Justice Richmond B. Keech ruled against Gibbs, who sought to stop extradition by a writ of habeas corpus. Gibbs' attorney M. Edward Buckley, jr., announced he will take the case to the United States Court of Appeals here.

Gibbs is charged with the shotgun killing of his brother-in-law, Alexander Satterwhite, in 1926, in Asheville, N. C. Gibbs was never apprehended for the crime, but was arrested here in March on a drunk and disorderly charge, Buckley said. North Carolina authorities asked that the man be held in custody.

Gibbs claimed he was in South Carolina when the murder occurred. He was arrested in that State in 1935, according to evidence, but the North Carolina authorities declined to request his removal because their witnesses were not available.

Sometime before 1940, Gibbs came to Washington. He was arrested that year and again, the court was told, the North Carolina police declined to request extradition for the same reason.

Assistant United States Attorney Oliver O. Dibble successfully countered defense claims that Gibbs was not in Asheville when the crime was committed and therefore should not be returned. He proved the evidence did not uphold such a claim.

Four-H Hears Marshall Aide Blast Russia

If the United States foreign policy fails to establish a "constructive peace" in the world, the ultimate result will be war, a State Department official warned yesterday.

Francis H. Russell, director of the office of public affairs, termed the present world situation "a struggle between two ways of life for the minds of men." He blamed Russia for preventing realization of world peace.

Speaking in the absence of Secretary Marshall, who was in Walter Reed Hospital for a checkup, before a final-day meeting of delegates to the eighteenth National 4-H Club Camp here, Russell asserted the "best possible device" to insure peace is the United Nations.

"'Russia,' he charged, "has become the leading nation in an international movement dedicated to the overthrow of everything the democratic world lives by and stands for."

To combat that movement, the United Nations is the "best possible device," he said. "We should go into the U. N. determined to make it succeed and prevent it from becoming a mere sounding board. We should develop our own goals, and press for their realization through the U. N."

"If we don't win this struggle," he declared, "anything else we do will be of no avail."

In another session yesterday, the top 4-H Club boys and girls of the country, 192 strong, held discussions on marriage and family living, politics, the family-type farm, participation in and study of religion, and other subjects. Later they motored to Mount Vernon, where they placed a wreath on George Washington's grave.

The week-long camp wound up last night with candlelight ceremonies at Departmental auditorium.

Tire Recapper Sues For Overtime Pay

An Alexandria man yesterday sought $2222.10 from his former employer in Alexandria Federal Court, charging violation of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Complainant James Jarvis claimed in his suit that while working as a tire recapper for Winchester, Inc., 1704 Mount Vernon ave., Alexandria, from 1945 to 1947, he was forced to work more than the maximum weekly hours set by the act and received no extra pay.

1 Killed, 19 Hurt in Blast Of Gas in Winchester Store

believed undamaged, were bulging and in danger of collapsing. Late yesterday a portion of the rear wall collapsed and a small part of a sidewall fell onto the roof of an adjoining building.

A siren disaster signal brought police, firemen, National Guardsmen and Red Cross units to the scene. The block was quickly roped off and rescue squads clambered into the wreckage to free clerks and customers buried under or pinned down by the wreckage. Clothing was stripped off the store mannequins to provide material for improvised stretchers. The injured were rushed to Winchester General Hospital, where all available physicians were called for emergency duty.

Blast Rips Off Clothing

With Owens, the assistant manager, in the basement at the time of the blast was Chris Spanos, a stock clerk. Although seriously burned, Spanos was able to crawl out of the basement. The explosion ripped off all of his clothing.

Owens, a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Owens of Frederick County, was unconscious when taken to Winchester Hospital and remained in a coma until his death at 7:40 p. m.

Three women were seriously injured when buried by the falling debris. They are Mrs. Delia Johnson and Sara McIlwee, store clerks, and Mrs. Bertha Bumgartner, Martinsburg, W. Va., a customer.

Others hospitalized or treated were:

Lucille Lowers, Parkersburg, W. Va., customer; Mrs. Ollie Kirby, Inwood, W. Va., customer; Bertha Swisher, clerk; Madeline and Vallie Hileman, Winchester, customers; Martha Richardson, clerk; June Clowser, clerk; Esther Williams, clerk; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Johnson, Cumberland, Md., passersby; Mrs. Paul Anderson, Winchester, passerby; Catherine MacFarland, clerk; Emerson Cook, store employe; Betty Lewis, clerk; Stella Hockman, clerk.

Saw Flash And Ducked

Miss Hockman was waiting on a customer when she saw a flash—she heard no explosion—and then saw the ceiling falling. She ducked under a ledge, pulling a customer in with her.

Emmett S. Spencer of Lynchburg, who has been acting as manager of the department store for the past week, was in his rear-of-the-store office and heard a muffled explosion. He escaped unscathed although the rear of the store was almost completely wrecked.

Others to get out of the store unhurt were Mrs. Evelyn Jeffcoat, a cashier, and Frederick W. Spicer, a shoe salesman.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were walking across the street—they had just arrived here to begin their vacation—when they were hit by flying glass and rubble. Mrs. Anderson was walking past the store. She remembers no loud explosion, only the splinters hitting her.

City officials said they believed the building, owned by the estate of the late Florence Sheets, would have to be completely razed. Virtually all the department store stock was ruined by the blast and a small fire that broke out in the basement. Estimate of damage was unofficially placed at several hundred thousand dollars.

William Starkey, district manager for Consumers Utilities Co., said that at the request of the city council, his crews had been installing cut-off valves at the curbs so as to stop the flow of gas from the main pipe in case of fire. This move had been recommended by the experts who investigated the Harrisonburg disaster.

Neither the department store, nor the two buildings on either side, were using the gas, so that the new valves were turned off, according to Starkey. One feeder pipe fronting the Rayless store, however, had been completely capped yesterday, and an investigation of this 1¼-inch pipe this afternoon showed evidence of a leak. It is believed a sharp stone had pierced the capped pipe when the earth was tamped down.

At the request of Winchester authorities, the United States Bureau of Mines has dispatched two disaster experts here, C. W. Owinss of Washington, who investigated the Harrisburg blast, and George W. Jones of Pittsburgh, who participated in the Texas City probe. Investigators are also being sent here by the State Corporation Commission.

Police Chief J. Thomas Boyd said a public statement was expected to be made Thursday as to the probable cause of the blast.

Winchester (population 15,000) is the seat of Frederick County and lies in the heart of the Blue Ridge apple-raising country. Officials said today's explosion was the worst disaster here in recent years.

FBI Academy To Graduate 55 Officers Friday

Fifty-five law enforcement officers from 32 States and the District of Columbia, Canada and Puerto Rico will graduate from the thirty-eighth FBI National Academy Session Friday.

Exercises are to be held in the Departmental Auditorium at 10:30. Secretary of the Air Forces W. Stuart Symington and Dr. Norman V. Peale of the Marble Collegiate Church of New York will make the principal addresses.

Sergt. Arthur D. Cook of the United States Park Police is among the graduating class. Students have completed a 12-week course in more than 330 subjects dealing with police organization and administration, traffic control, firearms training, investigative techniques and others bearing on crime problems.

Mrs. Keleher Loses in Plea For Alimony

Mrs. Anna B. Keleher, 38, of Woodley Park Towers, yesterday lost her plea for temporary alimony from her husband, John B. Keleher.

Judge F. Dickinson Letts, in dismissing her petition in District Court, said in effect Mrs. Keleher already had enough money from her husband to get along satisfactorily until her suit for a limited divorce is tried "upon its merits."

She has enough money, Judge Letts qualified, "unless the plaintiff has improvidently expended or lost such sums."

Keleher, represented by Alvin L. Newmyer, had testified his wife cleaned out their safety deposit box while he was out of town on vacation in 1946. Judge Letts said Mrs. Keleher "took the law into her own hands and amply provided for her maintenance in taking from the safety deposit box a considerable sum of money belonging to the defendant."

Judge Letts pointed out that Mrs. Keleher admitted taking "$32,000 or $33,000. She says she didn't count it. Other evidence fairly shows . . . the amount taken was considerably" more than she admitted.

In her plea for the temporary alimony Mrs. Keleher had told the court she was getting along with only one servant instead of three, cutting her beauty shop bill to $75 a month. She said she budgeted only $50 a week for food and allowed only $100 a month for medicine. She also said she had accumulated debts of $20,000 and had no resources with which to liquidate her obligations.

2 Priests Honored

12 Schools Award 2155 Diplomas

Seventy-five students, ranging in age from 12 to 67 and representing 25 different countries, were honored for their proficiency in English yesterday at Webster Americanization School graduation exercises.

The program was one of 12 held by D. C. public schools. A total of 2155 students received diplomas as graduates of junior, senior or vocational high schools.

Twenty of the younger students at the Americanization school were promoted to junior high school while 55 men and women received diplomas for having completed the advanced English course.

Two of the graduates were Franciscan priests from Columbia, Fathers Anthony Olivarez and Bernardo Uribe, who are continuing their studies at Catholic University.

Dentist, 67, Fled Poland

A third was Dr. Rudolph Ripper, a 67-year-old dentist, who fled Poland under Hitler and Yugoslavia under Tito before coming to America six months ago.

The students joined in choral reading of excerpts from the Declaration of Independence and Patrick Henry's "liberty or death" speech as part of the program.

"I have just come from Europe where people are tired and pessimistic," said Mrs. Marguerite Meersseman of Belgium, one of five student speakers. "At this school I have acquired some of America's fresh and constructive optimism. I have found Americans to be people of vitality and courage who have more to give Europe than bread and material things."

At Shaw Junior High School Principal J. G. Logan, retiring after 20 years, presided over exercises for the last time, giving diplomas to 124 graduates.

Logan

Superintendent Hobart M. Corning awarded 271 diplomas at Western High School, and Board of Education Member Adelbert W. Lee spoke to 337 graduates at McKinley High School commencement.

Eighteen-year-old Lawrence Chambers, colonel of Negro cadets and valedictorian at Dunbar High, received a faculty scholarship prize from Assistant Superintendent of Schools Garnet C. Wilkinson. Chambers has been appointed to the Naval Academy by Representative William L. Dawson (D., Ill.).

Deal Junior High School, 241; Hine Junior High School, 119; Paul Junior High School, 258; Powell Junior High School, 117; Stuart Junior High School, 151; Banneker Junior High School, 182, and Phelps Vocational School, 18.

Montgomery County commissioners yesterday sent a letter to county school officials assuring them the county government will meet the schools' basic financial needs.

The letter, made public by County supervisor I. G. McNayr, was signed by Commission President Brooke Johns.

Informing the school officials of its "continued interest in the educational program, the letter said the commissioners desired the county supervisor and school superintendent to "cooperate closely" to provide "the best possible liaison" between schools and general county government.

The commissioners Tuesday signed a $6,135,246 county budget which slashed the schools' request for funds from $3,429,000 to $2,818,000. School supporters had raised a ruckus, more than 1000 protesting the cut at a public budgetary hearing.

Falls Church Has Plan on Annexation

The town of Falls Church, Va., with a population of 5300, is considering two moves it hopes will help "sell" the idea of annexation to five nearby Fairfax communities.

The town council, which shortly hopes to be granted city status, is planning:

1. To hire an annexation expert, Dr. Thomas Reed, to survey Falls Church's problem and translate its annexation situation into facts and figures.

2. To put facts obtained by Dr. Reed before citizens in the areas earmarked for possible annexation, leaving it up to the areas themselves to request the move.

Dr. Reed now is working with the city of Roanoke, Va., which is attempting to annex the adjoining town of Vinton. Falls Church officials said he would be hired for a brief survey if he is free to do the job, and if his fee proves acceptable.

Communities which Falls Church hopes to annex eventually are the East Greenway Downs, Jefferson Village, Lee Boulevard Heights, and Birch subdivisions, plus the remainder of Hillwood.

Scholarship Winners Congratulated

Student Group Told How to Help Prevent War

Four ways to help prevent future wars were outlined to some 300 high school student council members from over the United States, Hawaii, Canal Zone, Argentina and Sweden last night by Dr. William G. Carr, associate secretary of the National Education Association.

Principal speaker at the opening session of a three-day conference here of the National Association of Student Councils, Dr. Carr urged the student delegates to:

1. Avoid racial prejudice—"Appraise each individual for what he is."

2. Control and direct your impulses—"There isn't anything in human nature that makes war inevitable."

3. Keep informed of what the United Nations is doing. "If the United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization is successful, schools the world over will teach the necessity for international understanding and peaceful ways," he said.

4. Stand for freedom as well as peace. "Any invasion of freedom is a threat to peace," he declared.

Greetings were extended to the youthful delegates by Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of public schools, Norman J. Nelson, assistant superintendent in charge of secondary schools, and John F. Brougher, principal of Calvin Coolidge High School, conference headquarters.

The students, together with faculty representatives from their schools, will break into discussion groups today to consider student council projects and improvement. The conference closes Friday.

Air Reserve Unit To Give Operation At Anacostia

Washington's Naval Air Reserve Training Unit will stage a demonstration of wartime aircraft carrier operations as part of public ceremonies marking its second birthday at 2 p. m. Saturday at the Anacostia Naval Air Station.

In addition to the featured "Battle Stations" event, the unit will demonstrate procedure in operating new-type planes and exhibit various rockets, bombs and guns. The main gate, a half mile from the Eleventh st. bridge, will open at 1 p. m.

Canary Club Slates Show for Baby Birds

A show for baby birds—canaries, parakeets, foreign and exotic fledglings, is to be held Sunday by the National Capital Canary Club.

The exhibition will be at Tent Hall No. 7, on 4th st. ne. Judging will start at 1 p. m. Judges are Mrs. Faymond Barclay of Baltimore, for the canaries, and Malcolm Davis, curator of birds of the National Zoological Park, for foreign and wild birds. Admission is free.

District Land Meeting Today

With the District budget for fiscal 1950 in mind, the Commissioners and the Redevelopment Land Agency will meet this afternoon with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to look at Washington's redevelopment program.

In an earlier meeting today, the NCPPC will also discuss the city's recreational land needs with a Recreation Board committee to formulate land acquisition plans for the year beginning July 1, 1949.

Together with a study of Washington's comprehensive plan, those items are the major business on the calendar of the NCPPC's monthly meeting, which opens this morning and continues through Friday afternoon.

At a press conference yesterday, Planning Director John Nolen, jr., said that the meeting with the Commissioners and the Redevelopment Land Agency is "merely a consultative meeting."

"It is not expected any joint action will be taken at this time," he said. Details of the "informal" conference will not be made public, Nolen added.

'Sensitive' Jobs Listed By D. C. for Loyalty Test

D. C. Installations Vital to National Security Are Noted By Commissioners

The District Commissioners have completed their lists of jobs and installations considered "sensitive" elements of national security, it was learned yesterday.

Both Commissioner Guy Mason and Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young said "sensitivity" reports concerning the departments under their administrative control had been forwarded to the eight-man loyalty committee.

Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young, said Young's report had been completed and would be forwarded to the committee soon.

Mason said it would be up to the loyalty committee, headed by Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher, to determine who will check employes in the "sensitive" installations and how it will be done.

Maher was out of the city and could not be reached to determine when the loyalty committee will meet to consider the Commissioners' reports.

Mason admitted his check revealed several "spots" where a loyalty check on employes would be in order. But neither he nor General Young disclosed which of his departments would be affected.

The Commissioners ordered the "sensitivity" survey May 20, on the loyalty committee's recommendation. Criteria for determining "sensitive" posts were drawn from a memorandum submitted to the committee by General Young April 30.

The Federal Diary by Jerry Klutz does not appear today because of illness in his family.

Mother Is Awarded Custody Of Son, 4, in Bitter Court Fight

MOTHER HAS HER WAY—Mrs. Nancy Lykken Wheeler embraces her son, Craig Lykken, 4, after a District Court justice ruled yesterday she should retain his custody

Craig's father, Richard C. Lykken, 31, an advertising man living in Presidential Gardens, Alexandria, brought the suit. He charged Craig's mother, Mrs. Nancy Lykken Wheeler of 1451 Fairmont st. nw., with drinking to excess, staying out late and otherwise being an unfit mother.

Mrs. Wheeler, who was awarded custody of the child in her uncontested California divorce, had remarried.

She countered Lykken's charges through Attorneys George J. Boden and William McCollum with a claim that the boy's father agreed to have him adopted by the stepfather for "a monetary gain of $350." She further contended Lykken owes her $975 in back alimony.

Lyyken, in his claim for court custody of Craig, said that, though he was making but $70 a week and couldn't now afford a maid for the boy, he planned to be married within a month and that his bride-to-be agreed to accept the boy as their own.

Justice Alexander Holtzoff, who heard the case, declared in conclusion that "though neither (Lykken or Mrs. Wheeler) is an ideal custodian of the child, the mother is the fitter of the two."

The custody fight, it was testified, caused Mrs. Wheeler's mother, Mrs. Bernice Cunningham, of 1802 Stafford st., Arlington, and two sisters, to side with Lykken. Mrs. Wheeler's father, however, remained steadfast with her throughout the trial.

The stepfather, Marvin E. Wheeler, testied that the situation was one reason why he reenlisted in the Army a short time ago.

Md. Bookie Is Convicted In Retrial After Appeal

Wilburn Morrow Took Racing Bets, Jury Decides; Sentence Delayed

A previously convicted gambler in both Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties was convicted of a gaming charge in a retrial yesterday by a jury which deliberated only 45 minutes.

He was Wilburn E. Morrow, 53, who was convicted in Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday of accepting racing bets. Judge Charles W. Woodward postponed sentencing.

On June 3, Morrow, who lives at 5911 Harrison ave., Riverdale, Md., was fined $1250 in Hyattsville Police Court for bookmaking and operating a lottery.

Morrow earlier had been convicted of the same offense he was tried for yesterday in Montgomery County. He appealed the case and the Maryland Court of Appeals ordered a retrial. The successful appeal set aside a maximum conviction of $1000 and one year in jail.

The appellate court ordered a reversal because of the lower court's refusal to admit in evidence a garage receipt which purported to show that Morrow was in South Carolina at the time of the alleged offense.

Five defense witnesses testified that Morrow was in Union, S. C., on August 9, 1947, the date Detective Corporal Edward Barber of Montgomery County Police said he placed two $2 bets with Morrow.

Police testified Morrow threw $2147 into the gutter when arrested on August 16, and State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson described Defense Attorney Joseph B. Simpson's case as "well concocted."

SCHOOL'S OUT!—The shortest distance between two points being a straight line, Raymond School children made for the front door when the final bell of the school year peeled yesterday. It was the same for all of Washington's 90,000 public school students. They won't have to return to classes until September 13. (School graduations story on Page 22)

3 Prisoners Captured After Five Escape Jail

Prince Georges Jailer Overpowered; One Still at Large Reported Armed

Five prisoners escaped from the Princes Georges County Jail at Upper Marlboro, Md., last night but three of the men were captured a short time later by two Brentwood town policemen.

Of the two men still at large, one was reported to be armed and police were advised to use caution.

Washington police joined in the search for the escapees in the belief they might have gone into woods behind the National Training School for Boys on Bladensburg rd. ne.

Overpowered Jailer

The three men captured near the Prince Georges County incinerator were Alfred Coléman, 19; Morris Irvin, 28, and Charley McManus, age undetermined. At large, police said, were Preston Wallace, jr., 19, and John T. Ford, 19.

The prisoners were reported to have overpowered Jailer Benjamin Richards, 54, while he was making his rounds in the jail at about 9 p. m., and taken his keys.

The men cut all telephone wires, looted the jail safe and then escaped in Richards' car in the direction of the District.

County police said 25 other prisoners in the jail did not escape. Among those who remained behind bars was Thomas Hall, accused killer of County Policeman Charles Caldwell.

Police Spot Car

By an ironic coincidence a dance was being held at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club last night for the benefit of Caldwell's widow and children and three county policemen en route to the dance spotted the getaway car containing the five escaped prisoners.

The three policemen were Pvt. Emmett F. G. Gray, Corpl. Roland Sweitzer and Pvt. Harry G. Gosman. They recognized the description of the car which had just been broadcast over the police radio.

The policemen were driving in Bladensburg on the Annapolis rd. They watched the car stop for a red light, then turn left into River rd. Going after it, they managed to hook their front bumper with the rear bumper of the car containing the five escaped prisoners.

Shot Pierces Window

The policemen lost sight of the car momentarily, then came upon it about 500 yards up the road, abandoned against an embankment at the edge of the woods.

A police cordon was immediately thrown around the area and a short while later Brentwood Police Chief Carl G. Schatz and one of his men, Sergt. William Reamy, captured three of the men near the county incinerator about a quarter of a mile from where the car had been abandoned.

Citizen Unit Hears Option Plan Criticized

Members of the Citizens' Forum of Columbia Heights last night heard criticism of the recently publicized "option plan" to replace property covenants ruled unenforceable by the Supreme Court.

John Savage, chairman of the forum's committee on public utilities, said he had a friend who proposed tn establish "a covenant among neighbors—without racial or religious discrimination."

"This plan," Savage said, "would be drawn up with the idea that no house and property could be sold to anyone before neighbors agreed to the sale. This plan," he reiterated, "could be enforced in the courts because it is not against color or creed."

"We cannot meet the covenant problem by paying $1 a year and adopting resolutions, as we've been doing heretofore," Savage concluded.

Dunbarton College To Hold Benefit Dance

Dunbarton College of Holy Cross, 2935 Upton st. nw., will hold an informal dance in its auditorium from 9 to 12 p. m. Friday to raise funds toward expenses of its delegate to an international youth conference in London this summer.

Twenty American colleges have been asked to send a delegate to the conference. The Dunbarton delegate will be the only representative of a Catholic woman's college.

Rep. Smith to Speak

Representative Howard Worth Smith (D., Va.) will speak before the Soroptimist Club of Arlington at its meeting at the Washington Golf and Country Club tonight at 7 o'clock.

Heiress Sues Violinist For Divorce

A marriage valued at more than four million dollars only two years ago by heiress Claudia Stone Mezzanotte was written off as a devaluated investment yesterday.

She filed suit for an absolute divorce from her concert violinist husband, Matteo Mezzanotte, in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md., on grounds of desertion.

Her father, Paul Stone, millionaire realtor, had promised Claudia full title to the four-million-dollar Skyline Housing Development when she reached 21. He changed his mind when she insisted on marrying the violinist.

Three months after the marriage, the heiress took an overdose of medicine that landed her in Gallinger Hospital. It wasn't serious. Police said she had scribbled a farewell note to "Dear Mat," in which she declared, "I couldn't take it any longer. I had to." The note was signed "Dolly."

Police said she was upset because of the serious illness of her husband, who had undergone several operations at Sibley Hospital after being stricken on a West Coast concert tour.

The separation, the suit said, is "deliberate and final," has continued without interruption for 18 months and is "beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation." There are no children.

Claudia, now reconciled with her parents, lives with them at 6103 Wilson lane, Bethesda, Md. The suit said Mezzanotte is living at 3730 Davenport st. nw., the home of his parents.

Judge Scott Asks $3000 Bonds Be Set In Holdup Cases

Apprehended robbery suspects will have to raise $3000 bond henceforth or else stay in jail until trial, if Judge Armond Scott of Municipal Court has anything to do with it.

The defendants are Benjamin F. Prince, 33, and Otis Moberly, both of 937 New York ave. nw.; Miss Lorraine Aronstein, 30, no fixed address, and Miss Sharon Martel, 33, of 936 I st. nw.

Woman, Hit By Streetcar, Critically Hurt

Mrs. Justa Terres, 59, of 1015 N st. nw., was critically injured when struck by a streetcar at 11th and F sts. nw. yesterday afternoon.

Operator of the streetcar, Withrow V. Knode, 23, of 1425 North Carolina ave. ne., told police he was traveling west on F st. when Mrs. Terres crossed in front of him against a red light, apparently saw an east-bound streetcar approaching and stepped back into his streetcar.

Mrs. Terres was admitted to Emergency Hospital with a possible skull fracture.

Meanwhile, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said an inquest will be held today in the death of Walter S. Hall, 77, of 746 12th st. ne., the District's thirty-ninth traffic fatality.

Mr. Hall died at Casualty Hospital June 12 of injuries suffered June 7 when he was struck at 11th and I sts. se. by an auto operated by Carl J. Birckner, 29, of 5900 Tucker rd. se., police said.

Summer Program Of Recreation To Open Today

Launching its summer program, the District of Columbia Recreation Department today will open swimming and wading pools, day camps and additional recreation areas.

Throughout the summer, the department will operate 145 recreation units, including 57 community playgrounds, 74 school grounds, 7 community buildings at housing projects, 9 day camps and 8 swimming pools.

Today, swimming pools at Georgetown and Rosedale will be open, together with 16 wading pools and spray areas. The full aquatic program, including 58 street showers and free swimming lessons at six Government Service pools, will be underway by Monday.

False Report Brings Arrest Of Man, 4 Boys

A gas station operator, who told police he was robbed of $196 by two holdup men, was charged with making a false report yesterday, after an 8-year-old boy admitted he had stolen the money.

Police said Irving H. Mager, 28, reported two men, one of them armed with a .38-caliber revolver, robbed him of the money Tuesday when he was making out a bank deposit slip in the gas station he manages at 1001 Rhode Island ave. nw.

Later, when confronted with the child's statement, he admitted making a false report and explained he did it after the money was taken because his insurance policy covered only robbery and not larceny, police said. He was released under $300 bond for his appearance in Municipal Court.

The child and three of his buddies were first picked up by police after they received a report that all four were showing large sums of money near 3d and P sts. nw., police said.

The 8-year-old youngster readily admitted that he slipped into the gas station and took the money without Mager seeing him. He and a friend then rented bikes and with two other boys rode out to Soldiers' Home, according to police. Later, the boy bought a number of comic books and a cap pistol, while all four went to a movie and bought soda pop.

The 8-year-old was charged with grand larceny, the other three with receiving stolen property and all four were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Alibi Fails to Work For Knife Carrier

That was the excuse offered yesterday by Edwin Priest, 32, of 640 New York ave. nw., when he was charged with carrying a deadly weapon and with drunkenness. Priest said he used the hunting knife "all over town to cut grass and hedges."

Priest was given 30 days in jail for the knife carrying and a $10 fine for the drinking.

Imports 'Mistreated'

Maid Admits She Made Raid On Diplomat's Liquor Closet

Mrs. Mildred Angelic P. Hinds, 48-year-old housemaid, pleaded guilty yesterday in Municipal Court to raiding the liquor closet of the second secretary of the Iraqi Embassy.

The diplomat, Khalid Chorbachi, 2946 Legation st. nw., said the liquor was "all the finest imported."

He said he hired Mrs. Hinds about two months ago, and left her in charge of his house and children when he went on a trip. On his return, he said, he found his children had been mistreated.

Judge Armond Scott cut him short, saying, "That's enough about the children. Just tell us how she mistreated the liquor."

Chorbachi said that when he fired Mrs. Hinds, an inspection of her baggage revealed liquor, a silver bowl and his wife's gloves.

Compromise Offered in Fairmac Plea

Attorney John J. Wilson, representing the Fairmac Corp., owners, told Rent Control Examiner Denis K. Lane the corporation was willing to cut in half the proposed raise for double rooms in dormitories.

Fairmac's petition for a 10-percent hike for 720 apartments and a $5-a-month boost for 1175 dormitory rooms specified that in 144 double rooms, each occupant should pay the $5 increase. Wilson said Fairmac was willing to cut that amount to $2.50 an occupant.

The proposal came near the end of the three-day hearing. Lane took the case under advisement after yesterday's session.

In his closing statement, former OPA Administrator Paul A. Porter, representing a group of tenants, said, "Reduction in services more than cancels the increase in operating expenses" claimed by Fairmac.

Porter, who charged Tuesday that Fairmac was making an "extravagant" profit on its investment, said any boost in rents "would result in further exorbitant return." This, he added, would amount to "exploitation" of the Government-built development for private gain.

Wilson called Porter's statement "sheer dilly-dally" and "demagogic argument." He attacked what he called the "socialistic theory" that private interests are not entitled to a "fair return."

Fairmac not only proved its case for the boost, he maintained, but showed it was entitled to even more than it asked.

Earlier, while tenants were testifying about reduction in services—including lack of hall lighting—Wilson invited Lane to visit McLean Gardens and inspect the lighting. Porter suggested Lane should come equipped with a flashlight when he made the inspection.

Firemen Open 56th Convention In Maryland

Ocean City, Md., June 23 (AP).—The fifty-sixth annual convention of the Maryland Firemen's Association got under way here today with the reading of numerous reports from officers and committee chairmen.

Representative Edward T. Miller (D., Md.) welcomed the delegates in the afternoon. Speakers were Dr. Harry C. Byrd, University of Maryland president; State Insurance Commissioner Claude A. Hanley, and Representative J. Caleb Boggs (R., Del.).

Speakers at the evening session were Warren Y. Kimball, editor of the National Fire Protection Association's Firemen Magazine; Clement Murphy, chief engineer of the District of Columbia Fire Department; James W. Just, director of Fire Service Extension, University of Maryland, and Col. Beverly Ober, State police superintendent.

Tomorrow's program will include the parade of floats and beauty contestants on the boardwalk and the selection of Miss Firefighter.

Saved From Gas—Uses Rifle

Father of Three Kills Self After Failing on First Try

By Charles E. Davis, Jr.
Post Reporter

He must have wanted to die very badly, this father of three.

(Drinking doesn't help much . . . you wake up and there's still not enough money to buy food for your family . . . there's still that notice to move . . . the back rent . . . the sickness.)

His wife found him once, in the kitchen, a rubber hose feeding gas into his mouth.

Wimberly

No, he'd be all right, he told her. It had been a mistake. But he was weary. Yes, he'd go to sleep, now.

But the sleep Gordon D. Wimberly, 45, wooed, was eternal. When his wife returned to bed early yesterday in their home, at 1030 D st. ne., after balking one suicide try, he picked up a .22-caliber rifle and fired a fatal shot into his brain.

Wimberly, a filling station attendant, was pronounced dead at Casualty Hospital at 6:15 a. m. And a short time later Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

There hadn't been any doubt of that. There was that note left by Wimberly for his 3-year-old son, Ronnie. At the top the father had penciled, "June 23, 4:30 a. m."

"Please be a good boy," the note said in part. "Say goodby to the others for me. Tell Mama to do the best she can."

He also wrote "tell Mama I have insurance to cover this," and "tell Sis to call the gas station and tell them I won't be in to work anymore." The note ended, "By, By, Ronnie."

Wimberly's wife, Edith, 38, told police she awakened at about 4:30 a. m. and smelled gas. In the kitchen she found her husband seated on a chair next to the gas range. He was huddled under a blanket. A rubber tube led from a gas connection to his mouth.

Her screams brought Wimberly's daughter, Lucille, 19, and a roomer, Amiel Saul, to the kitchen. When he assured them he would be all right they returned to their bedrooms. Then came the sound of the shot.

The family (there is also a son, Bradley, 14) seemed dazed by their tragedy yesterday.

Mrs. Wimberly said the six-room brick house they had occupied for 10 years had been sold recently and they had been asked to move. The father had been ordered to appear in court because the rent was three months in arrears.

Tried to Raise $100

She said her husband had put down $200 on a new house but needed an additional $100 to complete the transaction.

"He went out to try and get the money yesterday," explained the daughter. "He was gone all night, until early in the morning. He didn't get the money."

And there was so much sickness, everyone in the family.

"He was a good pop," said Lucille. "He worried to death because he couldn't meet the bills and he thought we'd be put out on the street."

She said her father occasionally drank, trying to forget his worries. She said he told her it didn't help, for long.

Capital Transit Fare Hearings Start July 13

Public hearings of Capital Transit Co.'s request for a boost in bus and streetcar fares here will begin July 13 at 10 a. m. in the District Building board room, the Public Utilities Commission announced yesterday.

The company wants permission to increase fares to 15 cents cash, two-for-a-quarter tokens, and a $1.85 weekly pass. CTC now charge straight 10-cent fares and $1.50 for a weekly pass.

The company bases its petition on the need for additional income to offset employe wage increases, higher costs of equipment and maintenance, and a drop in the number of bus and streetcar passengers.

Public hearings will be resumed July 6 at 10 a. m. in the District Building board room on Potomac Electric Power Co.'s petition for an electricity rate increase that would add about 10 cents a week to the average home electric bill.

These hearings, which began June 7, were recessed the following day to permit opponents of the proposed rise to study financial statements and other exhibits presented by Pepco.

Adventists Open Meeting Today

Representatives of 50 Seventh-Day Adventist Churches from Washington, Virginia and Maryland will assemble today in Takoma Park, Md., for the annual camp meeting of the Potomac Conference. The meetings conclude July 4.

The Rev. N. C. Wilson, vice president of the General Conference, North American Division; the Rev. D. A. Ochs, president of the Columbia Union Conference, and the Rev. H. J. Detwiler, president of the Potomac Conference, will speak at the opening session at 7:30 p. m. today in the Sligo Church, Flower and Carroll aves.

Approximately 5000 Adventists are expected to attend the weekend services and meetings. Set enty tents have been erected for families and youth departments on the campus of the Washington Missionary College.

A Latin From K Street

Gallant Witness Won't Guess Age of Girl 'Causing' Crash

Testifying in Spanish in a case in which his friend, Catalino E. Olivo, 40, watchmaker, was found guilty of failing to yield the right of way, Ramon Lopez, 1204 K st. nw., said the accident was caused by a "nina." He accused Joseph S. Lancaster, 1502 P st. nw., driver of the other car of paying more attention to a "nina" than to his driving.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert F. Kneipp knew enough Spanish to recognize that "nina" meant "girl," and he asked through interpreter Romeo F. Garza, "How old was this nina?"

To which Lopez replied in Spanish, "I will not answer. That would call for a scientific conclusion."

Chris Arth Rites Scheduled Today

A requiem mass will be said today for Chris Arth, 75, for many years the conductor of the National Theater orchestra, who died Monday at Garfield Hospital after three months' illness.

Mr. Arth succeeded his father, Christopher Arth, soon after the turn of the century, as leader of the National's orchestra, and held that post until about 10 years ago.

A product of the Berlin Conservatory, he played the violin, viola, cello and saxophone, and as a young man he toured this country as director of several musical comedies. Later he was assistant concert master of the Washington Symphony Orchestra in the Reginald De Koven regime, and next served as concert master under Herman Rakeman and Heinrich Hammer.

Before joining the National Theater he was orchestra leader at the Academy of Music.

He lived at 1015 N st. nw. Surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Charles Hosch and Mrs. George E. Frech, Washington, and Mrs. John W. Llufrio, Columbia, S. C., and two nieces, Mrs. Norman H. Smith, Verona, N. J., and Mrs. William J. Hopkins, Silver Spring.

Services will be held at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., at 9:30 a. m. today, with requiem mass at 10 a. m. at the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Spectre Dies; D. C. Resident Half Century

Benjamin Spectre, 58, District resident for more than 50 years, died yesterday in his automobile parked in front of his grocery store, 12th and Irving sts. ne. He lived at 441 7th st. sw.

His brother and partner, Abraham Spectre, 1275 Brentwood rd. ne., said Mr. Spectre became ill while working in the store about noon and went outside to the car to rest. He was found dead a few minutes later.

Mr. Spectre was born in Russia and was brought to Washington as a child by his parents, who went into the grocery business here. He had been in the business since he was old enough to work. He had his last store, known as the Irving Delicatessen, for about four years.

He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Kay, 4311 16th st. nw., and Mrs. Jack Weinstein, 1133 Tewkesberry pl. nw.

Funeral services will be at 10 a. m. Friday at the Danzansky funeral home, 3501 14th st. nw., with burial following in Baltimore.

Edward D. Smithers

Funeral services for Edward D. Smithers, 47, former Washington newspaper man, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. Smithers died Tuesday at his home, 4518 14th st. nw. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Catherine Smithers, a sister, Mrs. Thomas D. Quinn, 3310 Stephenson pl. nw., and a son, Edward D. Smithers, jr., of California.

Mrs Martha O. Hovey

Albany, N. Y., June 23 (AP).—Mrs. Martha Owen Hovey, 84, artist, died yesterday at her home. She was the widow of Dr. Otis Ellis Hovey, former director of the Engineering Foundation in New York City.

He's 'The Chief' to Staff

Former President Hoover Crowds His Busy Days With 16 to 18 Hours Work

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. June 23.—The convention's high spot has been Herbert Hoover's spontaneously roaring quarter hour ovation followed by his magnificent, mercifully brief speech. So, bright and not too early, we persuaded former Congresswoman Ruth Pratt to take us in tow to humbly congratulate Mr. Hoover. As we approached the Hoover suite half a dozen presumably elder statesmen filed out. Mr. Hoover, pink complected, neat as a pin in his traditional long jacketed blue serge suit, stood receiving well wishers in the precise drawing room center. Affable, smiling his very small smile, we dared kid, saying last night's applause was so overwhelming the nomination seemed his. Mr. Hoover relaxed a bit more, "You didn't think I'd get caught in this?" he said.

We asked how long it had taken to write his speech. "It was a painful experience," our only living former President answered soberly, "it took two weeks alone just to boil it down."

Allan Hoover and his father's staff were in the next room coping with congratulatory telephone calls, slitting open mail and telegrams. We made a nuisance ferreting facts about the life and habits of our former President. First-everyone calls him "The Chief." His staff has been with him years, has never heard him utter a cross word. It's the Quaker in him, they believe. He eats everything, has no personal eccentricities, years ago gave up those stiff high collars which are featured in all Hoover cartoons, orders approximately the same style suits always in dark colors from the same New York tailor.

Fishing Is His Relaxation

HE lives in a Waldorf Astoria apartment, takes his brief vacations fishing for any kind of salt or fresh water fish. While he has no collecting hobbies, he does own some very fine fishing tackle. "You can safely say," remarked an aide, cautiously, "that The Chief always has the proper equipment."

A more than omnivorous reader, he zips through everything except novels. "Sometimes we draw his attention to things we are sure will interest The Chief," added another aide. "But he has almost always seen it before we have. Yes, he reads detective stories, all the newspapers and a surprising number of magazines."

Mr. Hoover, they all agreed, works between 16 and 18 hours on an ordinary day. Besides various writing assignments and his Government reorganization program he is on the board of a great many institutions. Mr. Hoover never lends his name to any organization unless he actively works for it. He writes longhand, incidentally. This is typed, then corrected, then retyped and so on until the article or speech is perfect.

"What does he do for fun besides fishing?" this frivolous department asked hopefully. "Why a constant stream of visitors come to call," replied the surprised aide.

What Do They Say on Eighth Floor?

LEAVING Mr. Hoover we sauntered through the turbulent Bellevue-Stratford. A loud speaker warns crowds not to block the entrance or elevators, the overworked, somewhat antique elevators are only allowed seven passengers a trip, with the annoying result that would-be up or downers get stranded quarter and half hours on middle floors.

A harassed chambermaid wandered down the hall muttering, "They must think you've got arms in the back." A waiter trundling out a breakfast order at high noon grumbled, "They eat all day long."

A Stassen band made up of college kids marched in and out of the lobby. Outside a loudspeaker truck blared Taft's Four Leaf Clover song. Politicians, huddling together, chorus anxiously, "What do they say to that up on the eighth floor?" The eighth floor is where the Dewey gang do all their shrewd horse trading. Inner circle Dewey guys reported straight to this correspondent: "We've just seen the Governor. He didn't go to bed last night, yet he looks fresh as a daisy. They say, though, he had a nap yesterday afternoon."

So many are climbing on the Dewey bandwagon that ordinary badges are scarce as convention tickets. However, there is a new badge just out—a red, white and blue disc. It has the word Dewey, then underneath "Do We or Not?"

The Kansas delegation is easily distinguishable because they wear huge felt sunflowers as boutonnieres. They would make nice pin cushions.

Mrs. Warren Watches the Fun

PRETTY Mrs. Earl Warren, the California Governor's wife, is having a swell time. She puts on a pair of black glasses, sits unrecognized in lobbies watching the fun. We recognized her because of her two pretty young daughters. Blue-eyed, blonde-banged, they look like well-proportioned John Held drawings. Mrs. Warren was wearing a broad-brimmed natural straw hat trimmed with bright red poppies. Asked how she had liked her television appearance she replied, "I looked like an Indian but it was great fun and I kept on my make-up all afternoon."

An amusing and flattering situation has occurred to Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Pennsylvania National Committeewoman and Philadelphia's official hostess, because of her newly whittled figure. Mrs. S. had shed an estimated 20 pounds and many of her old but rarely seen political acquaintances fail to recognize her.

Toughest convention break happened to New York Congresswoman Katherine St. George, who was assigned the speaking spot right after former President Hoover. Not only did half the audience rush out because of a rumor of a Taft-Stassen merger, but one platform sitter chose that time to become ill. Since an alternate delegate had died a day ago, policemen, ushers and State Troopers, taking no chances, rushed to the platform, causing disconcerting commotion.

Mrs. St. George, though she is a Republican, is a first cousin of the late F. D. R. She claims speaking comes easy to her as it did to President Roosevelt because they were made to read aloud every day during their youth.

Mrs. St. George's speech was carefully prepared. She first made a platter in the Congress recording room, then played it over to correct errors.

We've heard two bits of humor lately. Sitting beside Socialist Candidate Norman Thomas during the 45-minute keynote speech of Governor Green of Illinois, we both sighed when it ended. "Well," drawled Mr. Thomas, "I'll give him E for effort." The other trifle concerns a Chicago reporter who cleverly discovered Senator Vandenberg's private telephone number and dialed it a scant five minutes after the famous dark horse arrived in town. A voice answered, asked who was calling. Impatient for a scoop the reporter gave his name. A long silence ensued, then the voice on the other end said, "Hello, Jim, what can I do for you? This is Scotty Reston." Scotty is, of course, James Reston, the New York Times Washington Bureau's distinguished political reporter.

Miss Goodbody, Mr. Semmes Are Married

MISS Luette Goodbody, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pim Goodbody of Perrysburg, Ohio, became the bride yesterday of Harry Hodges Semmes, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hodges Semmes of Washington. The ceremony took place at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Maumee, Ohio.

The bride's wedding dress was of white lace with appliques of satin and was fashioned with a court train. Her veil of illusion was arranged with clusters of orange blossoms. She wore an heirloom brooch that had been given by Commodore Semmes to his bride in 1864 and she carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and ivy. She was given in marriage by her father.

Mrs. Carter Smith of Madison, Conn., was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Olive Watson of Washington, Miss Isobel Crew of Sewickly, Pa., Miss Carolyn McNerney of Toledo, Ohio, and Miss Sally Goodbody of Madison, N. J., niece of the bride.

Mr. Semmes was best man for his son and the ushers were John Gibson Semmes and David Hopkins Semmes, brother of the bridegroom, and Albert Solton of Milwaueke and Frank Peter Slingluff of Vienna, Va.

A reception was held at Inwood, home of the bride, after which the couple left for Bermuda. They will live in Washington.

The bride was graduated from Maumee Valley Country School in Maumee, Ohio, and from Vassar College. The bridegroom finished at Woodberry Forest School and Dartmouth College.

Henri Claudels Say Goodby At Farewell Party in Garden

By Elizabeth Maguire

HENRI CLAUDEL, French Attache, and Mrs. Claudel said goodby to several hundred friends yesterday in their garden in Chevy Chase. The couple will sail for France on July 15 on board the De Grasse, taking up residence again at Chatou, their house just outside Paris.

Young Paul Claudel, his brother, Francois, and sister, Marie Sygne, age 8, 4 and 11, respectively, all dressed in crisp white, helped their mother receive. Paul is named for his grandfather who served as French Ambassador to this country in the late thirties.

A bar was set out on the lawn, and hors d'oeuvres were passed around. There were representatives from just about every European embassy and many from residential society.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet were there, as well as Senora de Belt, wife of the Cuban Ambassador; the Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani. Senator and Mrs. William Fulbright attended, and the British Military Attache and Lady Prior-Palmer.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, Mrs. Leonard Rist, Alexis de Aminoff, Counselor of the Swedish Embassy; the Swiss Commercial Counselor and Mme. Fuchss, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Tartiere, and Mrs. Helen Diplarakos of Athens, Greece, mother of the hostess.

Mme. Diamantopolis, wife of the late Ambassador of Greece, was there, talking to Mme. Spyros Stathopoulos and Kyriakos Varvaressos, Greek delegate to the International Bank. From the French Embassy came the Counselor, Jean Daridan; another Counselor, Arnauld Wapler, Mme. Benard, wife of the First Secretary, and Capt. Pierre Lancelot, Naval Attache.

Still other guests included Miss Beatrice Phillips, who was squired by Paul Jolles; Miss Irene Boyle, British Attache; Mrs. William Mann, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Delattre-Sequy, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Villard, Dr. Donald Honeywell, Mrs. Harold Hinton, the Danish Counselor and Mme. Bertelsen, Dean Rucker, Michael Bartlett and Col. Curt C. Schiffeler with his son, Carl Schiffeler.

Durskis Entertain

Capt. and Mrs. Malem Durski of Chevy Chase entertained at cocktails yesterday in honor of Capt. and Mrs. Lancelot A. L. Pell and Col. and Mrs. William S. King. Both couples have been on duty in this country and are returning shortly to England.

Dominicks Leaving

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Dominick and their young daughter will leave on Saturday for Chatham, Mass., to spend the summer. They entertained a few close friends at cocktails on Tuesday at their home in Georgetown to say goodby until fall.

Schlosbergs Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Schlosberg entertained a large company of friends at cocktails and supper, last evening at the Woodmont Country Club.

Bennetts Return

Col. and Mrs. William C. Bennett and their daughters, Miss Suzanne Bennett and Miss Julianne Bennett, have recently returned to Washington from the American-occupied zone of Germany.

Longyear—Hopfield

In the Little Sanctuary of St. Albans School at the Cathedral Close, on June 18, Miss Helen Elizabeth Hopfield and Robert Rudston Longyear were married at 12 o'clock noon, Canon Albert H. Lucas officiating. Mrs. Longyear is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph Hopfield, and Mr. Longyear is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dudley Longyear of Geneva, Switzerland, and Washington.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white taffeta and a fingertip veil. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of white roses. Miss Barbara Jeane Hopfield of Akron, Ohio, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Phyllis Bates of Weeping Water, Nebr.; Miss Heloise Albritton of Somerset, Md., and Miss Barbara Taggart of Washington.

Peter Rudston Longyear, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Edward Ernst of Washington and Christopher Rudston Longyear and Andrew Rudston Longyear, brothers of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The bride attended George Washington University and Marietta College. Her parents are physicists with the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory. The bridegroom has lived abroad, attending schools at Uckfield, England, the College de Geneva and St. Albans School. He left the University of Virginia in 1942 to enlist in the Royal Air Force, whence he returned in 1946 with rank of flight lieutenant. His father has recently retired from the U. S. Department of State.

The couple will live in Washington, both attending George Washington University.

A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Longyear left for two weeks on Cape Cod and then to Europe for the remainder of the summer.

Moonlight Cruises For Servicemen Are Planned

There will be a moonlight cruise on the S. S. Potomac on Sunday for men at Patuxent River, Indian Head and Darwin Naval Training Stations. Also invited on the cruise are a number of men from the Quantico Marines, Coast Guards, 8th Street Barracks, Army Air Forces, Andrews and Bolling Fields, Third Infantry and Fort Myer.

Mrs. Merrill Winslett, wife of the president of Congressional Secretaries, has invited some of its members to be on the reception committee the evening of the cruise.

Another moonlight cruise on the S. S. Potomac will take place on Monday, June 28. Mrs. William Renz, wife of the director of the Civilian Personnel of the Chief of Naval Operations has invited a group of young women to assist her in receiving the various non-commissioned officers invited on the cruise.

To New Jersey

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Simon and their family have left for Margate, N. J., where they have taken a cottage for the summer.

Woman Is Disturbed Because Her Husband Seems Amiably Disposed Toward Her Teen-Age Sister's Baby-Vamp Coquetting With Him; How Curb This?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My sister Ruth, now 17, has been called cute and packed with personality since she was a baby; and from babyhood she was allowed to sit on the lap of every man who entered the house and kiss and cuddle him as much as she liked.

Our parents called this cute and when she was 12—the year I married—she was still doing it. Now she has grown into the sort of girl who is wild and fast. She is very beautiful but seems to have no moral sense or principles.

She frequents my house with all her beaux, sometimes gets us out of bed at night, makes a mad dash for the victrola, plays loud boogie and mushy numbers, and then if no one will dance with her, she dances anyway, flipping her skirts high.

Girl Laughs Off Gentle Protests

WE HAVE to keep our liquor hidden or she and her crowd will drink the last drop before leaving; but what bothers me most is that for the past year she has been mauling and kissing my husband passionately at every opportunity, whether I am present or not. Also she makes vulgar remarks in anybody's hearing about how he affects her romantically.

Bob says it's all in fun, nothing serious, and seems to have quite a time with her, but none of our friends act like this, nor do I. I've tried to tell Ruth delicately that a little restraint would make her a very attractive girl. She laughs at that, says we only live once and she's out for all the fun she can get.

Our parents have tried to curb her a bit, but this only makes her more wild. I hate to see such beauty and energy wasted on the type of boys she associates with, and particularly do I deplore her vulgarity, especially in relation to my husband. He is 13 years her senior and surely he could help curb her if he would; but he refuses to do so. She is now at a stage where help seems practically impossible unless you have a good suggestion. Please advise me.

T. N.

Girl Reminds Us Of Headless Hen

DEAR T. N.: As a type, Ruth is passe, as out-of-date as the term "arrested development" which best describes her.

She is cutting the capers of "flaming youth" which were the "new look" in wayward behavior 25 years ago, when Greenwich Village and Bohemian sectors of Paris were the camp meeting grounds of adolescent rebels against respectability.

Incidentally, the famous personalities in that rebel camp who turned out well all returned to the beaten path as wisdom dawned.

As Ruth says, we live but once; yet what's the use of living at all, if one ekes out his allotted span figuratively dead from the neck up? Ruth's jive performance, day and night, reminds me of a chicken with its head cut off—brainless cavorting, painful to behold.

One can't do much for Ruth at her age. If she is in love with herself as is, although lacking modesty, delicacy, reserve, a sense of dignity and positive respect for the logic inherent in standard practices of decency.

Don't Blame Man; Tackle the Girl

HOWEVER, given moral backbone and common sense, one can and certainly should explode her notion that she is a privileged character, whose sex appeal entitles her to play havoc in anybody's life regardless of ethics if it suits her pleasure.

In relation to you, in guise of "fun," Ruth is unscrupulously playing "the other woman." The smart wife, thus brazenly defied, doesn't hold her husband to blame for being a sucker, as that would amount to rejecting him when he most needs her protection. Instead she tackles the snake in the grass.

So for advice: Don't reproach Bob for his reflex reactions to Ruth's baby-vamp technique. Rather tear into Ruth, in private first, and thereafter in company if she tests your mettle.

Give her warning, in effect: "Hands off my husband. I won't have him coarsened by your strumpet necking et cetera, by which I mean the vulgar line that goes with it. If you try it ever again, in my presence or behind my back, and I hear it, count on an out-and-open kickback from me that will go down in history as something special." Then deliver as per promise if she oversteps again.

Sorority Convention Season Begins

By Genevieve Reynolds

WHILE the Nation's politicos are shouting themselves hoarse for their favorite presidential candidates, the country's indefatigable feminine clubdom continues its annual round of resoluting conclaves.

Streaming into Washington today will be approximately 200 members of Phi Delta Gamma, National Fraternity of Graduate Women, for the organization's Silver Jubilee convention in the Statler Hotel. Following registration Friday afternoon, delegates will turn out for a banquet honoring the group's founders, three of whom will be on hand. They are Helen Gould, Arbutus Stange and Catherine Koch. Miss Antoinette Loury, national president, will conduct the ceremony.

High-lighting the program will be a series of skits by Phi Delta Gamma Thespians. Each chapter will present a skit based on an installation event. Beta, the George Washington Chapter, which is hostess for the convention, was installed in 1927. Miss Vera Mowry, Beta's president, will be mistress of ceremonies.

Jubilee Banquet

Featured convention occasion will be the jubilee banquet Saturday, when principal speaker will be Dr. Earl A. Dennis, acting assistant chief, Division of International Exchange of Persons, United States Department of State. His topic will be "The Role of Educational Exchange in International Cultural Relations."

Dr. B. H. Jarman, registrar and professor of English at George Washington University, who is a patron of Beta Chapter, will give the welcoming address. Dr. Dorothy H. Veon, past president of Beta Chapter, will serve as toastmistress, and Miss Jean Moffatt will pronounce the invocation.

Business sessions will get under way at 9:30 a. m. Saturday. Convention delegates, however, will take time out to honor Dr. M. Virginia O'Neil of Washington Alumnae Chapter, and Miss Clara Fielder of Alpha Chapter, at a luncheon. Another honoree will be Miss Louise Trembly of Beta Chapter, who is slated to speak at a professional session later in the afternoon, spotlighting "Women in Unusual Fields of Endeavor." Miss Winifred Cox, former Beta Chapter president, will preside.

Interspersed with speeches and business will be sight-seeing tours, teas and receptions. Members of Beta Chapter will show visiting delegates historical points Sunday morning, lunch at Collingwood and return to town for a 5 p. m. tea given jointly by the Washington Alumnae and Alpha Chapter of the American University. The gala event will be held in Columbian House, on the George Washington University campus. Presiding at the tea table will be Miss Evelyn Draeger, Alpha Chapter president, and Miss Clyde Roberts, head of the local alumnae group.

In charge of tea arrangements are Miss Leona Clark of Alpha and Miss Mildred of Washington Alumnae.

To Attend Convention At French Lick Springs

When Pi Beta Phi Fraternity holds its biennial conclave, June 27 to July 3, in French Lick Springs, Ind., several representatives from the Nation's Capital will be present. Mrs. Charles P. Trussell, president of the Washington Alumnae Club, will head the delegation, accompanied by Mrs. Benjamin Harrison Lingo, alternate. Representing the active chapter at George Washington University will be Miss Betty Ann Paisley and Miss Peggy Babcock.

AT SAFEWAY

Ask Anne

Is It Safe to Use Juices From Can?

Is it okay to keep canned fruit juice in the can after it has been opened? P. L. A.

Yes, indeed. Cans are made nowadays so that they are safe and excellent containers for food after opening. In fact, you're less likely to get harmful bacteria in the juice if you leave it in the can than if you transfer it to another container. You'll want to keep it in the refrigerator in any case, of course.

To "An Appreciator": A chemist at the United States Bureau of Standards advises that the cleaning product you asked about does not contain harmful chemicals of any sort.

I have a large, old-fashioned music box, roller type, which has been damaged in shipping. Is there any place in Washington where such things are repaired? K. L. C.

At least two local concerns repair old music boxes. They may be contacted by telephoning National 4532 and National 5757.

Will the antitarnish tissue sold for silver pieces prevent gold slippers from tarnishing? R. C.

It will help prevent tarnishing. Of course, if you wear the slippers often, they will have a chance to tarnish while thus exposed to air.

How can I clean a pair of pink satin slippers and a pink feather hat? M. M.

You may be able to do a successful job on the slippers with cleaning fluid. However, the safest thing to do would be to take them to a reliable shoe repair and cleaning shop. A dry cleaning powder (sold in the notion section of a large F st. department store) would be helpful in cleaning the feather hat.

Where in the city may matching material and wallpaper be purchased? H. W.

These can be purchased through the interior decorating departments of several local department stores. If they do not have the paper and materials on hand, they will have sample books for use in ordering them.

Will you print directions for making shrimp cocktail? M. E. C.

Chill cooked shrimp, allowing about ¼ cup shrimp per cocktail. Arrange in cocktail glasses, pouring a savory sauce over shrimp. One cocktail sauce is made as follows:

1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons horseradish (grated)
3 drops Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt

Mix and chill well before serving. This makes one third cup sauce. Celery salt or finely chopped celery can be added if desired.

I recently purchased a twin-type waffle iron (the kind in which a waffle can be made in the top and underside at the same time.) Could you give me instructions for the care, use and cleaning of the iron. So far, I have had no luck in making waffles, as they stick so badly and, as a result, the iron is very difficult to clean. E. C. C.

Some models of waffle irons are pretreated at the factory so that no "seasoning" is necessary. Others are not. Since you've been having trouble with yours, I'd suggest that you season it, using the following method:

Apply a thin film of melted, unsalted fat to the grids with a small brush. Close the baker and turn on the current. (Set the thermostat at "low" if the iron is automatic.) Heat about 8 minutes. Wipe off any excess with paper toweling. Unless the waffle iron is left unused for a long period or has to be cleaned with steel wool because of burned waffles, one seasoning should be enough for the life of the iron.

As to care, always leave baker open after use until the grids are cool. Wipe off excess fat with paper toweling. When baker is cold, wipe off outside with cloth wrung out of soapy water. Rinse with cloth wrung out of clear water. Polish with dry cloth. When necessary, brush grids with stiff wire brush to remove crumbs. If batter has burned on grids, use slightly dampened steel wool to remove it, and reseason the grids.

Sometimes, the sticking of waffles is the result of not having enough shortening in the batter. If you continue to have trouble, try adding an extra tablespoon or two to your batter recipe.

Red Cross Offers Canning Classes

Two additional short courses in food preservation to be given within the near future have been announced by the District Red Cross Nutrition Service.

Designed to help Washington women with their summer vegetable and fruit canning, they will be taught by Mrs. Francis Chapin, assistant director of nutrition for the District Red Cross. An evening class will be held from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m on June 29, July 6 and July 13. A daytime class will be held from 1 p.m. to 3 p. m. on July 7, 12 and 14.

No charge is made for the course. Those wishing to register for it may do so by calling HObart 6800, extension 20.

Community Leader Becomes Bride

Mrs. Nellie Procter Hewitt and Jules Fritz were married yesterday in the home of the bride, with Dr. Ralph Smith officiating. Following the reception, the couple left for a West Virginia wedding trip. On their return they will reside in Silver Spring, Md.

The bride last September was crowned "Mrs. Maryland," winning a $500 prize in a field of 200 contestants. The judges awarded her the title on the basis of being attractive, a good mother, and a community leader.

Aim At Flabby Muscles

Exercises Help Correct Middle-Age Feeling

By Ida Jean Kain

The worst thing about middle age is not the spread—it's feeling middle-aged! And, unhappily, that middle-age feeling is part and parcel of the spread. The spread lets the midriff out . . . and you down. It's a sure sign the most important muscles have gone flabby and are no longer a match for gravity, and gradually fat settles amidships. You can no longer wear youthful styles, and naturally this affects your viewpoint.

But you physically feel middle-aged because of what happens inside. The flabby muscles let the organs sag and crowd against each other, which interferes with circulation, digestion and elimination. You're slowed up—no wonder you look and feel older.

Toning Up

Why does this happen? Largely because our everyday activities do not afford the type of exercise that keeps these important midsection muscles in tone. We don't stretch and bend and reach to use our joints or our muscles, so they become rusty and flabby and the aging process sets in. Are you willing to put up with it? No! Then take action . . . in the form of toning exercises.

First, give the abdominal organs a lift . . .

POSITION: Lie on your back, legs across seat of a staright chair with bend of knee at chair edge, arms down at sides.

MOVEMENT: Pull firmly up and in with the abdominal muscles and raise hips off the floor, flinging your arms back overhead. Lower hips to floor. Repeat 6 times, later 12.

For Girdle Muscles

POSITION: Lie on your back, both knees flexed to chest, left knee clasped in hand.

MOVEMENT: Keeping the left leg clasped to the body, slowly raise the right leg up in the air. Now slowly lower the leg to the count of 10, lowering not clear to floor but to a low foot stool. Keep knee straight. Flex knee back to chest and again raise and lower leg. Repeat five times with each leg—keep building up each day until you can perform 25 counts.

Final Test

POSITION: Lie on back, arms stretched back on floor, legs straight down.

MOVEMENT: Come up to a sitting position and go on over to touch outstretched fingers to toes. Can you do this exercise three times without raising your feet from the floor? No? Then tone the middle muscles by anchoring feet under a piece of heavy furniture and repeating exercise three times, adding one count each day up to 12. As the muscles get stronger, you can do the exercise without the feet anchored.

Exercise-minded Karin Both, MGM dancer, has a routine of calithenics that will keep any girl in shape. This exercise is a midsection streamliner described in today's column by Ida Jean Kain.

GI College Students Find Formula for Happy Marriage

East Lansing, Mich. — Married GI's attending college apparently have a successful formula for happy marriage, a survey here shows.

The great majority can be rated as happy or very happy, says Dr. Judson T. Landis, associate professor of sociology at Michigan State College. Mutual agreement on goals and mutual interests seem to be the big factors.

Many of them are having a difficult time in combining college and marriage, because of money problems. But Professor Landis finds that about the greatest problems are in-laws who are too ready to give advice.

Marriage while in college is something new on campuses all over the nation. About one-fourth of veterans in college now are married. Half of them are or expect to be fathers before they graduate. But the college marriage is working out well enough so that some educators are in favor of seeing it continue.

Professor Landis submitted questionnaires to 544 married couples here. They live in trailer camps, barracks, or small apartments characteristic of college housing throughout the country.

Three-fourths of them said "yes" to the question: "Knowing what you know now, would you marry before finishing college if you were unmarried?" The other quarter said no, or expressed doubts. More of the wives than the husbands said they would do it again. The men's main reason against it was financial.

Two-thirds said they would advise friends to marry while in college. Again, more wives than husbands felt this way. Unmarried students, however, were more doubtful. Only a third of the men and about half the girls among 600 unmarried students questioned thought college marriage a good idea.

Unless there's enough money, the arrival of children makes things tougher. Happiness ratings, Professor Landis said, "showed that those with children are not so happy at present as those without." The children often are too much an added responsibility atop an already difficult schedule.

Most of the college wives have few complaints, even though their barracks or trailer homes are small, lack running water or other comforts. Most of the men said they felt their wives were a real help to them.

The married students are better students. A University of Wisconsin study showed that married men generally made better grades than the unmarried, and that fathers made better grades than students without children.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received by the Federal Works Agency, Washington, D. C., up to 2 o'clock p. m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, July 1, 1948, and then opened publicly to lease the Belasco Theater Building, Washington, D. C., except the fifth floor, that portion of the fourth floor containing approximately 2,125 sq. ft. and located immediately in front of the storage loft over the stage, and that portion of the basement containing approximately 700 sq. ft. and lying south of the main south wall of the building, which are reserved to the United States and to which there are direct means of access from the adjoining Treasury Department Annex No. 3, for a term of years commencing on September 1, 1948, and ending on August 31, 1958. Provided that if the Congress shall appropriate funds for the construction of a new building on the site of the Belasco Theater Building during the term of the lease, the Government shall have the right to cancel the lease on one year's notice in writing. PROVIDED FURTHER that, at the expiration of the first five years of the term of the lease, the Government shall have the right to cancel the lease for any cause whatsoever on one year's notice in writing. All proposals must be accompanied by the required deposit and must be submitted on the form of proposals which may be obtained in Room 7023 of the Federal Works Agency Building, 19th and F Streets N. W., Washington, D. C. The Federal Works Agency reserves the right to reject any or all proposals, and to waive any informality in proposals received when such rejection or waiver is in the interest of the United States. If more than one proposal be offered by any one party, by or in the name of his or their clerk, partner, agent, or other person, all such proposals may be rejected. Prospective bidders may view the property by appointment only by calling EXecutive 4900, Branch 3727, or by addressing a letter to the Commissioner of Public Buildings, Washington 25, D. C. PHILIP B. Is our backyard an acre?
Acre schmacre. In England it's 4,840 yards. In Eire, 7,840 yards. Scottish acres are 6,140 yards. An acre is a state of mind. The thing is to put our minds to it—
Oh.
Concentrated farming! If we're a rod or so short we merely concentrate harder—
Will you have to buy a book?
Buy a book? To farm an acre part time? With my grasp of agronomics, I could write such a book.

"I see they've written an item about a Washington man who invented some collapsible playground equipment," came the voice from the living room.

"Yes, pet, I saw that," I replied. "What about it?"

"Oh—nothing. Except that I don't see what's so wonderful about it. Every piece of playground equipment you've ever built has collapsed."

PIGEON ON THE GRASS

Agnes K. Mackey of Aldie, Va., is sure that the the following information will have significance to pigeon fanciers. Neither Agnes nor I know what it means.

A young pigeon has been found by a lad in Aldie, and has been temporarily parked with the house mother of the American Youth Hostel there.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Some time ago, District Liners had quite a discussion of the fact that the Pentagon had been renamed the National Defense Building.

The result was that we decided that, to us, it would always remain the Pentagon.

Now I see that your caption writer backslid the other day, and called it the National Defense Building again. How about a little uniformity?

Lester C. Harlow
4215 S. 32d rd.
Arlington, Va.

Dear Les:

The caption writer can call it the National Defense Building if he likes. Mr. Forrestal can call it the National Defense Building if he likes.

But so long as it has five sides, in this space it'll be the Pentagon.

Bill

MISCELLANY—

Somebody is always ruining my stories. The item about GW students listing their religion as "Druid" moves Gerald Movius to point out that, in "With Malice Toward Some," Margaret Halsey wrote: "There is something about filling out printed forms which arouses lawless impulses in me and makes me want to do things that will have the file clerks sitting up with a jerk, like putting in 'Religion — Druid'" . . . Incidentally, if District Liner Movius would change a "u" to an "e" he'd have a perfect name for his job. He's with Eric Johnston's Motion Picture Association . . . My complaint that there's never any parking space nearby when the Senator Theater has a good picture prompts Bernard Pollack of 3516 A st., se. to suggest that I leave the car at home and walk . . . What a horrible thought! Ten miles over a golf course—yes. Five blocks to the movies—never . . . Which reminds me. On July 4, Claude Quackenbush of 814 K st. se. and Peggy Feyling of 812 K st. se. will stage a walking contest over a measured 25-foot course between two No Parking signs. Claude is just getting over an illness, and Peggy is hobbling about on a cane because of a sprained ankle . . . Zora W. Butler of 1441 Clifton st. nw. wonders why the newspapers can't permit Princess Elizabeth to have that baby in peace . . . Ruth Nations Slaughter of 3206 Manning pl. nw. clipped an item from this column and submitted it to Reader's Digest. The magazine sent it back to her with the explanation that it was funny enough, but too long. The item contained 44 words, the magazine's explanation 47.

HAIR TREATMENTS

FROM WASHINGTON'S OWN AND LARGEST SCALP EXPERT

R. W. PLASTERER
Trichologist

METHODS?
Hair & Scalp Clinic treatments are locally applied and consist of everything that has been proven beneficial to the treatment of hair and scalp problems. Cleansing and germicidal agents, electrotherapy, including Ultra Violet ray; physical and mechanical massage. The very methods used and recommended by foremost authorities.

RESULTS?
Each client accepted for treatment sees visible results within 5 treatments. New, replacement hairs are visible within 10 treatments. Thicker, healthier hair—stronger hair is evident within a few months. Dandruff, too, dry or oily hair, other annoying scalp conditions respond immediately to Hair & Scalp Clinic treatment. No one is ever accepted if results are not certain.

COST?
Any man or woman can afford Hair & Scalp Clinic treatments. Fees are reasonable and vary slightly with each case, but can be paid as treatments are taken. The cost is the lowest available for the most advanced treatments anywhere.

WHERE?
Hair & Scalp Clinic specialists are outstanding because of their past record of achievement. They administer the most effective, fatest acting methods, developed in their own laboratories. Professional, business and theatrical people—people in all walks of life—take these treatments and praise the results.

HOW?
If you are worried about your hair—have the symptoms of approaching baldness—don't delay. Come in today, for a FREE PRIVATE CONSULTATION. Phone, if you wish, for an appointment, but don't put off giving your hair a chance. Let us prove to you that you need not accept baldness, and weak, unhealthy hair. If we accept your case—you'll get results.

EXPERIENCE?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Vandenberg Backers Pull Boner

By Drew Pearson

Philadelphia.—The supporters of statesmanlike Senator Vandenberg should have known that hell hath no fury like a woman scorned.

Their biggest mistake at the opening of the Convention was to kick out Mrs. Dudley Hay after her many years of hard work as National Committeewoman and as Secretary of the GOP National Committee.

Mrs. Hay

For thereby hangs a tale of political finagling which goes straight to the doors of some of the biggest Republican leaders in Michigan—a tale which does not help the presidential future of Arthur Vandenberg.

Some time ago, two big-shot Michigan gamblers, Danny Sullivan and Lincoln Fitzgerald, were indicted. Skipped to Nevada, they established the Nevada Club in wide-open Reno and stayed there.

Efforts to have them extradited by Ed Jacobs, McComb County Prosecutor, failed.

Finally, Jacobs and Mrs. Dudley Hay, Secretary of the Republican National Committee, went to Washington, enlisted the support of Senator Malone of Nevada, and he in turn appealed to Governor Vail Pittman of Nevada, who immediately moved to send Danny Sullivan and Lincoln Fitzgerald back to the arms of the law in Michigan.

From that moment on, says Mrs. Hay, her chances of reelection as Republican National Committeewoman from Michigan were nil. County Prosecutor Jacobs bears her out. The big GOP leaders of Michigan turned thumbs down.

Campaign Contributions

The Michigander who led the ouster of Mrs. Hay was Arthur Summerfield, Republican national committeeman, also one of the vigorous urgers of Vandenberg for President.

Summer field has been president of the Detroit Automobile Dealers Association, which, during the war, worked out a deal with the State whereby its books were not audited for payment of the sales taxes. The dealers were supposed to pay the tax without any audit.

Now it develops that some of them did not pay sales taxes and they have been indicted. Simultaneously, Michigan Attorney General Eugene Black charges that though the auto dealers did not pay taxes to the State, they did pay GOP campaign contributions to Mr. Summerfield. They could afford one but not the other. In fact, Summerfield held one meeting of the auto dealers at which they agreed to go into the GOP campaign chest for Vandenberg.

Attorney General Black, himself a Republican, strongly hints that this donation to the Republican Party was tied in with the deal whereby the auto dealers did not have their books audited for sales-tax payments. Black also has stated that he planned to bring Summerfield himself before a grand jury just as soon as the Republican convention is over.

Behind the Scenes

Another backstage development inside the Michigan group was a private conference between Senator Vandenberg and Frank McKay, big-shot Republican leader of Michigan. McKay, who comes from Grand Rapids, has always been a political backer of Vandenberg, in addition to being a powerful wire puller in the liquor and race-track fraternity.

McKay was a defendant in a famous trial involving graft and corruption in the sale of liquor, along with a bunch of minor goons and gangsters, but got off after two hung juries. He also has been indicted on other counts but never convicted.

William McKeighen, former Mayor of Flint and a close associate of McKay's, also was indicted along with the two gamblers, Sullivan and Fitzgerald. He also has been a fugitive from justice.

McKay traveled on the same train to Philadelphia with the Vandenberg forces and has been snug as a bug in a rug with them since.

Politicians recognize that a Senator sometimes has to compromise with political leaders back home to be re-elected, but many also feel that with President Truman's weakest spot the Pendergast machine in Kansas City, the Republicans should be careful that their candidate, while a great statesman internationally, does not have clay feet.

GOP-Go-Round

Jim Farley created a hubbub by bobbing up at Republican headquarters . . . "Aren't you a little early?" asked a reporter. Jim only grinned . . . Most conspicuous convention absentee is Walter Brown of Ohio, former Postmaster General and GOP "Kingmaker." Brown has been a familiar figure at every Republican conclave since 1920 when he put Warren Harding across in the famous "smoke-filled" hotel room. Defeated for this convention in a delegate race, Brown remarked: "Guess I'll get caught up on my fishing" . . . Philadelphia police did a good preconvention job of rounding up pickpockets and loiterers for the protection of delegates. All suspicious characters with past records were brigged for 90 days.

What! All-wool tropical worsted Sheldon suits at a sale price so early in the season! Right, sir!, and here is why you save so lavishly! The astute maker decided his plant would operate more efficiently if his entire organization took their vacations all at the same time. So he closed down for two weeks! Not wanting an expensive stock on the premises while everyone was away, he clipped his price way down and allotted us 480 brand new suits right off the cutting table! Not a close-out, mind you, no leftovers, but complete size ranges. Every suit finished with the fine details you look for in Sheldons, including hand-tailoring at the collar. Every suit breeze-cool, light weight tropical wool worsted . . . rich enough to hold its shape and drape even in muggy Washington weather. Sizes 35 to 46 regular; 35 to 42 short; 36 to 46 long.
